THE SOCIAL WANDERER

DEAR ROAMER:

Well, I hope you had as Happy Easter I did, and that the Bunny Rabbit left you one or two little surprises at the breakfast table. The day, though cold and a little windy, was at least bright, and everyone seemed in the spirit of the season. Many attended the tea at the Country Club Sunday afternoon, which passed off as a very enjoyable occasion. Some of the out-of-towners whom I did not know were here were present and included Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shaunghessy, of Emmittsburg, Pa., who were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Kratzer. Mrs. Shaunghessy is remaining here throughout the week. Mr Fred. Fetter, of Washington, known to this community as Freddie, rendered several real selections on his saxaphone to the delight of those present, bringing back to the memory, days of yore when Freddie and his sax could oft be heard as one passed by. He was a guest over the week-end at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Harry Simpers.

Miss Virginia Jones, of Baltimore, looked quite smart, as usual, in a costume of navy blue, as she sipped her tea alongside of a certain young lawyer, who was her escort. She was the guest, while here, of Dr. and Mrs. J. S. Wm. Jones.

At the dance on Monday night, mostly the so-called younger set held sway. Feeling like the "Little Old Lady" sung over the radio at frequent intervals, I sat and watched those pretty cute creatures as they danced and they were adorable. All of the girls looked dear and there seemed to be no wall flowers in the midst.

The two Mead boys had the only two out-of-town girls, not counting the school girls home. They were most attractive and I later found out they were Miss Elizabeth Osborne, of Duquesne, Pa., a cousin of the boys, and her friend, Miss Betty Rhetmeyer, os Aspinwall, Pa. Both are on vacation from Allegheny College, Meadville, Pa., having arrived that day with Mrs. W. J. Osborne, who is a sister of Dr. Mead. They will be guests here all this week.

On Saturday, Dr. and Mrs. Mead will go to Baltimore to be week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Hellman at their home in Ruxton. Mr. and Mrs. Hellman, who have visited here on various occasions, are entertaining at a dinner for 22, preceding the Aviation Ball at the Belvedere on Saturday night which they will later attend.

But to get back to all of those who were here Easter and I'll try not to get side tracked. I mentioned a crowd last week, but as I told you, there would sure to be ones I wouldn't know about till later. Here are a few more who joined us:

Baroness Karin Von Hedenberg and Dr. Jane Leslie Kift, of Philadelphia; E. Joseph Maxwell, of Detroit and Dr. and Mrs. S. R. Hall and Miss Mary LeRoy, of Baltimore, were week end guests at the home of Mrs J. D. Maxwell, at Worton Point.

Dr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Franklin, of Cumberland, will arrive at the Maxwell home today, Saturday, to visit until Wednesday, the former attending the Negro Health Week activities and the inspection of the Chestertown Medical Detachment here on Monday and Tuesday.

Miss Cottrell is vice-principal of the elementary school in East Orange, and also Secretary for the Safety Council of New Jersey. She expects to teach summer school in Newark, Del., this summer and is making the trip in planning her work. Miss McIntire is also a member of the teaching staff in New Jersey.

But now for a walk in the Spring sunshine. Won't you join me?

Yours, the pedestrian,

THE WANDERER
