HI SPOTS FROM THE HI SCHOOL

By EMORY M. HINES, JR.

After a period of over two hours debate Robert Logan was selected by the staff meeting of this year's Reflector as the editor-in-chief for the publication of next year. The other positions of the paper have been changed somewhat in title; Mary Landon Russell will act as News Editor, and Betty Beck will fill the position of Associate Editor. Another associate will be selected early next year from the 1937-38 class, the two to then compete for editorship in 1938-39. The duties of the Humorous Editor have been increased, she being given a column to fill if she so desires, telling of various school personalities and humorous events that are not recorded in the customary column of "Reflections". Mary Liz Humphreys will manage this. Louis Anthony, the first boy to fill this position in the past four or five years, will edit the doings of the school in "Reflections" column. Other members of the staff include the Sports Editors, Milton Dorf and Elizabeth Wheatley, who will write of boy's and girls' sports respectively. Commentory events in the athletic news will be recorded by Helen Marie Culver; while activities of the alumni will be taken care of by Laura Greenwood. The so-well filled position of Business Manager that Gerson Bonnett held will be replaced next year by his equally able assistant, John Eliason. Assistant to John will be William Baldwin. Exchanges are to be Ruth McVean's responsibility. Photography will be handled by Alan Eliason, he already having held the position for the past year. Typists have not been appointed as yet, but Mr. Martin is expected to announce them before graduation in June. Miss Hermione Riches will continue in the capacity of faculty advisor.

While speaking of publications, I might say that the May issue of the Reflector will be the last one to be put out by the present year's staff. A June issue will not be attempted because of the inadequate time that presents itself.

Part of their work in the commercial department here was exhibited at Beacom College in Wilmington last Friday, April 23, when a typing and shorthand meeting was held there. Typing work showed artistic designs and the latest in letter styles; while shorthand work was displayed by others. Several pupils from this Senior class made the journey to Wilmington to see the "business art" and contributions that were made by students from Maryland, Pennsylvania, and Delaware high schools.

The bulletin board in the lower hall seems to be pretty well filled with notices of inviting scholarships to many schools and colleges. A summer course on board the "Marsala" is offered to all boys and young men who are interested in careers as officers in the United States Merchant Marine, it being sponsored by the American Nautical Academy, National Training School for Merchant Marine Officers, Washington, D. C. It offers minimum expenses and several competitive scholarships to be awarded after examinations at the ned of the summer course giving the winners advantages of the regular session. To girls, Wilson College at Chambersburg, Pennsylvania, offers their Curran Scholarships to be competed for by examination in College Boards in June from the 19th to the 26th. West Nottingham Academy offers the advantages of both camp and school life during the summer for boys. Being located near Rising Sun, advantages of land and water sports plus tutoring extra school subjects is given. The offer that comes the fartherest is that of the University of Redlands who give ten Competitive Four-Year scholarships in the school of Liberal Arts to the five men and five women that rank highest in their respective groups as a result of their first year of college work.

The Drama Club party that was held here at the school last Thursday night was a success from every viewpoint. With tempting food and different entertainment taking up the evening, the club and their guests felt that their annual affair held all the pep, vim, and vigor that they had expected it to.

When I went to press last week, I commented on the outcome (perhaps I said contemplated) of the Senior Play. It was definitely everything I said it was, and a crowd of approximately 400 people attended. We liked the excellent performance that Katherine Strong turned in—her acting was as natural as could be wanted and her interpretation pleasing Estelle Beaver, Nellie Bexley, Anne Turner, Margaret Coleman, Neal Truslow, and well, the whole cast did superbly in their respective roles.

A casual look here and there this week finds: the completion of the hanging of the curtains on the stage entrances in the assembly hall by many of the girls and the faculty—the active participation that many, both boys, girls, and faculty members, will have in the Wheeler plays in production now—interesting speeches being given in the Senior-Sophomore Biology class on various phases of the subject that the text book does not discuss in detail—the sodding and cutting of the grass around the school—a speech given to the Seniors in Economics by Miss Jessie L. Snow on the League of Nations and other international peace organizations.

Mother Nature

A melody of the mocking birds
Rang in the tall weaving trees
A fresh breeze murmured softly.
Giving a faint rustling of leaves.

The foiledge of the oak and the maple
Contrasted softly with that of the pine,
Sending a fragrance so sweet that the animals
Gloried in their spring home so devine.

On the surface of the shady pools
Sunfish rippled away
Swimming in the bright sun,
That shone in the clear blue day

Farther down the still water was broken;
By the under ground current so strong,
Pink lilys drooped with bull frogs
As they happily croaked their song.

The sun gave a scarlet radience,
Which reflected in the golden sand
This is a scene of mother nature,
Presented by God's own hand.
