RADIANT LIVING

The Merry-go-Round

By Rev. C. M. Griffeth
Pastor Calvary M. E. Church
Sudlersville, Md.

There is an age when the merry-go-round with its gilded horses, long-neckd giraffes, and big mouth lions, with its swift movement and its jingling music, is most captivating.

Thre are some boys and girls, however, who never develop beyond the merry-go-round state of mind. They have left the carousal, to be sure, but they are still riding some merry-go-round of night life.

Samson rode the merry-go-round when he played around with Delilah. He went around and around and around with her. It certainly was very captivating for him.

It captured him. At least, Delilah did.

Then she turned him over to the Philistines, his enemies. The first thing they did to him was to put out his yees. But Samson had ceased to see long before this. He thought he was making a fine progress; but he failed to see that he was only going around in a circle, a circle that was becoming smaller and smaller until it became as a rope entwined about his body tying him up into a pitiless slavery.

The playboy was lead away to do the work of a beast of burden. They hitched him to the tongue of the grinding mill and with the goad that they used on the beasts they lashed his body, driving him around and around and around the treadmill grinding corn.

Samson was still going around and around and around. But it was no longer mrry. It was torture.

Thus does sin finally enslave its devotees.

Th merry-go-round is delightful for children. But there comes a time in life to stop going around in circles and begin purposeful living toward achievements that are worth while.

THOSE WHO REMAIN

When death visits a nome, the first concern is to perform the last service to the loved one in a becoming manner. What ever is done must express all the reverance and affection that is felt at such a time. But in addition to this a further responsibilty rests upon the funeral director. It is his privilege and duty to lessen as far as lies with in his power, the burdens laid upon those who remain. By countless little acts of thoughtfulness he can make the way easier for them.

We consider this part of our work as important as any other. Our highest aim is to have our patrons look upon us as trusted friends, ready and anxious to render sympathetic assistance to those who remain behind.

Telephone Service to China Launched

Radio-Telephone Communication Between the United States and China Is Now Available

In a recent ceremony in the office of the Secretary of State, Cordell Hull, in Washington, telephone service between the United States and China was inaugurated. Participating in the formal opening were Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt who spoke to Mme. Chiang Kai-shek and Mme. H. H. Kung; Chinese Ambassador and Mme. Sao-Ke Alfred Sze who conversed with high Chinese officials and their wives in China; Secretary Hull who extended official greetings to Dr. Wang Chung-hui, Chinese Minister of Foreign Affairs and also to our Ambassador to China, Nelson T. Johnson; Anning S. Prall, Chairman, Federal Communications Commission who exchanged greetings with General Yu Fei-peng, Chinese Minister of Communications. Dr. Stanley K. Hornbeck, Chief, Division of Far Eastern Affairs of the State Department, spoke to C. E. Gauss, American Consul General at Shanghai and to Minister O. K. Yui, Acting Mayor of Greater Shanghai.

The circuit was formally opened by T. G. Miller, vice president, American Telephone and Telegraph Company. The arrangements for the ceremonies were made by J. W. Adams, manager of the Washington division of the A. T. and T. Long Lines Department.

Nearly 10,000 miles of wire and radio circuit are used in making a call from Washington to China, about 6,000 miles of which is short-wave radio and the balance land wire.

Vail Medals for Noteworthy Public Service Awarded

3 New Names Added to Long List of Outstanding Telephone Men And Women; Employee Groups Also Honored

There was an echo of the serious emergency created by the floods in March, 1936, in the recent announcement of the National Committee of Award for the Theodore N. Vail medals for acts of "noteworthy public service," according to a recent statement of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. Two of the three individual silver medal winners and sixteen groups of telephone employees awarded bronze plaques performed outstanding services in connection with the flood emergency. One silver medal winner got the award for prompt and resourceful action in caring for seriously injured victims of an automobile accident. Checks for $250 each went to the individual medal winners.

Groups of employees working in eleven communities served by the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania and four groups of employees of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company located in Maine and Massachusetts received plaques and citations. Employees of the Southern New England Telephone Company engaged in flood emergency work throughout the Connecticut River valley received similar recognition.

The individual awards were made to Michael J. O'Connor, a lineman of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company of Concord, New Hampshire, for his courage and prompt and intelligent action in saving lives during the flood at Contoocook, New Hampshire, and to John T. Steck, a construction foreman of the Southern New England Telephone Company of New Milford, Connecticut, for performing a similar service.

In both cases the telephone men rode out on cable lines with flood waters lapping beneath them, to effect the rescue of persons caught in positions of peril by the rising river. The third individual award went to Robert Hildebrand, a toll repairman of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company at Fulton, Missouri. Hildebrand, rounding a sharp curve near Boonville, Missouri, came upon a serious automobile accident. Putting out warning flags he climbed a pole and with his test set called a nearby town for a doctor and ambulances. While waiting he gave first aid to the five injured occupants of the car.

Vail medals are provided from a fund created in memory of Theodore N. Vail, who at the time of his death in 1920 was chairman of the board of directors of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. They commemorate acts on the part of telephone employees throughout the United States which conspicuously illustrate Mr. Vail's ideals of public service.
