NOW AND THEN

DAISY FIELD

Who hath passed here?
What feet have pressed
This gentle path,
What eyes caressed
This living lace,
This Summer snow?
Who hath walked through?
I may not know.

Perhaps a maiden
To her tryst
When dawn was pearl
And amethyst.
Perhaps a child
Who ran to school
All in the morning
Green and cool.

Perhaps a nun
Who smiled and blest
The daisied dusk
With peace and rest.
But sure it is
And crystal clear,
Angels have passed
And lingered here.

Barbara Young.

In The New York Times

The abundant rains this summer have kept the fields unusually fresh and green, while wild flowers deck them in profusion, each in its turn as the season advances. The daisies and clover have had their turn, and are now giving place to the corn flower and the Queen Annes lace, the latter more beautiful than any lace that can be made by human hands. Soon now the brilliant flowers of autumn will take their place. And so the seasons come and go, each bringing with them new beauty to delight the eye. Nature is a wonderful instructor and teachs us " to look through nature up to Nature's God."

THE CITY OF BALTIMORE

We were on the pier matching the fine steamer "The City of Baltimore" getting ready to sail. Lighters were around lading her with freight, and passengers walking the deck with the anticipation of a pleasant trip, had no fear of danger.

It is sad to think of that proud vessel, now only a smoking hulk of ruins. We sail on life's journeys but cannot tell what will happen before that journey ends.

LINDBURGH

Lindburgh. has had another lone eagle flight, that is he came and visited the same field in France, on which he landed after his famous venture, but this time, there was no publicity, and he carried on his investigation without a soul knowing he was there. It must have been a pleasant change, for when in this country, he would have to disguise himself to avoid the publicity which he dreaded.

He is now engaged with Dr. Alex Carrell, the Noble prize winner, in trying to manufacture an artificial heart.

THE YARD MEASURE

In England is kept the original yard measure. It is so important that it should not vary in length as heat expands it, and cold contract it, that it is kept in a room that has the same temperature all the year long.—A very necessary part it has to play in the worlds trade.

THE OLD HORSE

The story reads that in ancient France, a certain Mayor, who loved his fellow men, had a bell erected in the public square so that any one who was in need or in any trouble might ring it, and have his cause looked into.

A well to do man had a horse that had always done him faithful service, but it had grown old, and its master, not wishing to feed it turned it out on the streets to find its living as best it might.

The old horse wandered down to the public square. A vine had sprung up there and had wound itself around the rope of the bell. The hungry animal, seeing the green vine began to eat it and thus the bell begin to ring.

The Mayor and the people hastened to the square, and there found only the old horse. But it certainly had a grievance, and its owner was summoned before the council, and commanded that his horse should be well cared for the rest of his days.

THE SNORER

There is an unfortunate man in New York State. He is well to do, and prosperous in every way but one. He is a great snorer, and for this reason he finds it impossible to get sleeping quarters in the city. Time and time again he has been asked to leave as the other boarders say they cannot sleep. Although he has had two operations for it, the noise continues

But at last he had found a place in Long Island where the lady, who owns the house is very deaf and the snorer can now sleep in peace.

THE COMET

Do not forget to look for the comet which is now visible in the heavens. If the skies are clear it will be seen best on August 8. It is called the Finster comet and has a tail to it thousands miles long.

In ancient times the appearance of a comet was looked upon with dread. The people believed that it forehold war, famine and other calamities, not so these days. We can look up calmly into the heavens and say with Emerson:

"Teach me your mood O patient stars:
Who climb each night the ancient sky
Leaving on space no shade, no scars,
No trace of age, no fear to die.

WOMANS COLUMN

JANE AUSTEN

The movies in their search for interesting material to display, have taken up books of by gone times, finding them more interesting than the modern tales. One of the plays which is being revived is the classic, "Pride and Predjudice," written by Jane Austen.

This author lived a very quiet life being the daughter of a country clergyman.

There were few diversions in her life, but, as she was a keen observer she learned a great deal of human nature in her visits with her father.

And in her simple way, she told her stories. Publishers all over England were glad to print them, and the various articles from her pen.

"Scott spoke of them as "mineatures, the finest that has been written."

While all her stories are good, Pride and Predjudice is considered the finest and it will be very popular upon the stage.

BEES

Bees play an important part in this world. In the first place, the honey which they make is considered one of the healthiest food there is.

Besides they play a large part in the pollination of the different plants by carrying the pollen from flower and fruit thus fertilizing them.

Some years ago, Australia, sent to this country for numbers of bumble bees to be used for that purpose. They were inclosed in bags and made ready to be shipped. But there was a hole in one of the bags and pandemonian ensued. Officiers, Clerks and laborers fled in confusion, and it was a long time before order could be restored.

The following story tells how much tiny insects as bees can make individuals, anything but comfortable:

BEES—NOT IN HIS BONNET, BUT IN HIS PANTS

From the London Times

The Budapest newspapers report the strange case of Anton Kertesz, of Nyiregyhaza, and his bees, which, though they were not in his bonnet but in another place, led him to a lunatic asylum.

Kertesz, a small farmer, on the advice of a friend had taken to bee keeping, but as his bees did not fulfill expectations he put two swarms of them in two milk jugs, tied the mouth with brown paper, and took train for the Department of Agriculture in Budapest, putting the bees beneath the seat. They pierced the paper and began to crawl up his trouser leg. Afraid to move, he requested his fellow-passengers, two ladies, to leave, and they, alarmed by his appearance and manner, went hurriedly and confided their misgivings to other travelers. Kertesz removed his trousers and shock them out of the window, a passing expfess removed them still further. The conductor, arriving at this moment, thought Kertesz was a lunatic and locked the door.

At Budapest two burly strangers entered the compartment and told Kertesz they were tailors and would measure him for that which he urgently needed, but they soon afterward belied his trust by forcing him onto a stretcher and binding him to it. His frenzied protests brought him a straitjacket, and he was taken to a mental institution. Three days passed before he doctors could be satisfied that the seat of the trouble was not in the brain and he was released.

IN MEMORIUM

HARRY WHITE—In sad but loving remembrance of my dear husband and father. Who died one year ago August 5, 1936.

When evening shades are falling
And are all alone.
In our hearts there comes a longing
If he only could come home.

How sad today our troubled hearts.
How dim our eyes with tears
For death has taken the one
We thought was ours for years.

Dear Father, how we miss you
Miss you more as time goes by
But we hope someday to met you
Where we'll never say good-bye.

Your end was sudden, dear Father.
You make us weep and cry,
But the gladest part of all
You gave us all good-bye.

And the ones who think of him now
Are the ones who loved him best
Sadly missed and never to be forgotton, by his wife and children.

To The Employees of W F B R

I wish to take this opportunity of complimenting the entire organization on the splendid manner in which they handled the broadcasting of the recent disaster--the burning of the City of Baltimore. W F B R remained on the air until three a. m., and was the only station with correct reports direct from the scene of the fire.

Such co-operation as existed that particular night, is what makes an organization go places and do things. It proves to me that everyone connected with W F B R is really interested in seeing that this station leads the procession of broadcasting in this city, and with such spirit as was demonstrated the night of July 29th, I don't believe that anything can hold us back.

I want every employee to see this memo as I do not think it is quite fair to compliment only those who were on duty, as I am confident that every employee who was absent on vacation or on another shift would have co-operated in exactly the same manner.

HOPE H. BARROLL, Jr.
Executive Vice-President.

Dr. Miles NERVINE "Did the work" says Miss Glivar
WHY DON'T YOU . TRY IT?

After more than three months of suffering from a nervous ailment, Miss Glivar used Dr. Miles Nervine which gave her such splendid results that she wrote us an enthusiastic letter.

If you suffer from "Nerves." If you lie awake nights, start at sudden noises, tire easily, are cranky, blue and fidgety, your nerves are probably out of order.

Quiet and relax them with the same medicine that "did the work" for this Colorado girl.

Whether your "Nerves" have troubled you for hours or for years, you'll find this time-tested remedy effective.

At Drug Stores 25c and $1.00.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 85c.
