CHURCH NOTES

RADIANT LIVING

Going Around in Circles

By Rev. C. M. Griffeth
Pastor Calvary M. E. Church
Sudlersville, Md.

Life is a circuit. That is what our scientists tell us.

Investigate the atom, they point out, and what do we find? An infinitesimal solar system. Take for instance, the simplest of atoms, that of hydrogen, which consists of one electron spinning around a proton, like a planet spinning around a sun.

What is taking place in the atom is also taking place in the solar system, wherein the planets are spinning around the sun, and the whole system itself is spinning around a center too distant for us to know.

How similarly true is the life of each one of us. There is something central in the life of each of us around which we are daily revolving. It may be the daily grind of routine work, it may be the ambition for a career, it may be the pursuit of pleasure, it may be a devotion to God. Whatever it may be, it is supremely central in your life and around it all other things revolve.

Is that central thing in your life something small, something unhealthy, something with a negative power, holding your life by its influence within a very small circle?

The circuit of the moon is very small compared with the circuit of the earth because it has only a dead earth exercising the supreme influence upon its life. But the circuit of the earth is infinitely larger because it has for its center of influence a living sun.

Select for the central influence in your life something that is infinitely bigger than yourself, something of surpassing quality, something that will fill your life with inspiration and make possible outstanding achievements.

When God is the center of one's life, he no longer goes around in circles; he travels a large orbit.

BROADWAY, MOST "TALKED OF" STREET, TALKS TOO

Famous Thoroughfare Talks by Wire; Has 78,000 Telephones, More Than Any Other Street in World.

Broadway's "canyon" of skyscrapers today. Below: Same street in 1890 when maze of telephone wires, now underground in cables, darkened view overhead.

Broadway, the most talked about street in the world, has 78,000 telephones. From No. 1 Broadway near the southern tip of Manhattan to No. 6771 at West 267th Street in the Bronx, the boundary line between New York City and Yonkers, is about eighteen miles. In the hundreds of offices, stores, hotels, apartment buildings, residences and shops along this great artery are more telephones than there are in Mississippi, Utah or South Carolina. The names of the customers served by these 78,000 telephones occupy sixty-five pages in the Manhattan and Bronx directories.

Broadway's telephones, like all the hundreds throughout the world, carry messages of joy and tragedy, of business, large and small.

Even in the early days of the telephone in New York City, business found a real use for this service. Only a few years after the first central office was established, lower Broadway was festooned with telephone wires. That was before the days of telephone cable, and below the mass of wires was to be seen a jumble of horse cars, drays and brokers' shiny vehicles. Telephone men early recognized the necessity for relieving the overhead congestion and in 1893 the last of the open wire lines on lower Broadway disappeared. Broadway is known as a street where things happen. Its 78,000 telephones help them happen.

BE WISE-ALKALIZE!

THOSE WHO REMAIN

When death visits a home, the first concern is to perform the last service to the loved one in a becoming manner. What ever is done must express all the reverance and affection that is felt at such a time. But in addition to this a further responsibility rests upon the funeral director. It is his privilege and duty to lessen so far as lies with in his power, the burdens laid upon those who remain. By countless little acts of thoughtfulness he can make the way easier for them.

We consider this part of our work as important as any other. Our highest aim is to have our patrons look upon us as trusted friends, ready and anxious to render sympathetic assistance to those who remain behind.

FARMALL FARMING Is Still 'Way Ahead of Any Other

McCORMICK-DEERING

THE FARMALL way of farming row crops is still the cheapest and best way. There isn't any other that can touch it. FARMALL owners have been able to cut production costs to the very bone—they are in a position to take advantage of any upturn in farm prices and profit by it.

Make the FARMALL investment yourself and enjoy all the advantages that FARMALL power brings to its users. There is a size for every farm now with the addition of the FARMALL 12 for small farms. Other sizes are the FARMALL 20 which handles 2 plows, and the FARMALL 30 for 3-plow work. Remember there is only one true FARMALL—the McCormick-Deering.

Come in and let us tell you about it. Or better yet, call us for a demonstration of the FARMALL that is best suited for your farm.
