COUNTY AGENT ADVISES FARMERS

A New Barley Available

Plenty of seed for the smooth awned variety of barley known as Nobarb will be available for farmers' use this fall. Prof. Oldenburg of the University of Maryland Extension Service, reports 168 acres of high quality barley of this variety was inspected and found to be highly desirable.

The smooth awned variety is not only a good yielder but is much pleasanter to handle due to the fact that it has none of the barbs or rough awns that are common with other bearded varieties.

Wheat and Barley Seed Should Be Treated For Smut Prevention

The use of treated seed wheat is wide spread in Kent but there are quite a percentage of the farmers who still use untreated seed. It is poor economy to use the untreated seed due to the fact that smaller yields, lower quality wheat are almost certain to result from the untreated seed. Kent is especially fortunate in having available splendid service for cleaning and treating the seed wheat and barley.

The mercury dust treatment is more popular that the copper carbonate or formaldehyde treatments.

Kent farmers have splendid opportunity to build up a market for high class seed wheat.

The continued treatment of seed for the prevention and control of Burnt or stinking smut is essential.

Winter Vetch is Splendid Cover Crop

As a supplement to barley, rye or wheat as a winter cover crop to be plowed down next spring the County Agent suggests the use of winter or hairy Vetch. This legume is vine like and needs the straw on which to climb. It is a soil improving crop and would make a splendid green manuring crop or in case of need it makes a rather desirable hay crop.

Quite a number of requests have been received at the County Agents office for information regarding the best type of winter cover for soil improvement purpores. A bushel of barley or rye or wheat and ten or twelve pounds of winter Vetch should supply considerable pasture if needed as well as a rich volume of organic matter to turn down as a green manure next spring.

Poultry Meeting In Chestertown September 30

Kent County will have one of a series of poultry meetings scheduled by Dr. M. A. Jull, Head of the Poultry Department of the University of Maryland, and W. H. Rice of the Extension Service. This meeting is scheduled for the County Agents' Office at Chestertown on September 30th at 8 p. m.

Dr. Jull will discuss the topic "How to Improve Hatchability". Mr. Rice discusses "The Relation of Polorum Disease to Poultry Profits", a three reel sound motion picture on important features of poultry improvement work will also be shown; then a discussion of poultry improvement problems will be open to all.

This meeting should be well attended since it deals with topic of interest to practically all farmers.

Baltimroe Livestock Show Oct. 4-8

The big livestock show to be held at the Baltimore Stock Yards in early October is increasingly popular.

The Maryland 4-H Club livestock judging contest and the collegiate livestock judging contest will be staged on Monday, October 4th.

On Tuesday, October 5th the car lot entries are judged at 9 A. M. and at 10:30 the groups of five fat steers and group of ten feeder steers will be judged; while on Tuesday afternoon the individual steers in the open classer of the Hereford, Shorthorn and Angus breeds will be judged in the order named. The 4-H club individual pig entries and individual lamb entries, and trios in each case, will be judged on Tuesday afternoon.

On Wednesday, the 4-H Club steers will be judged. A banquet will be held in the evening.

Thursday the fat cattle will be sold and Friday the lambs and hogs and feeder steers will be sold. We are assurred that an unusually good lot of feeder calves and yearlings of Angus, Herford and Shorthorn breeds will be available which should solve the problem of people who want to buy their steers near home and at current market prices.

Hessian Fly Influences Seeding Date For Wheat

Due to the fact that Hessian Fly did considerable damage in our County in 1937—it would seem highly desirable that the farmers pay special attention to a safe sowing date for wheat. Normally this fly free date would be about October 10th but is influenced by the time of the first frosts.

It would probably be desirable to delay seeding until the 15th or 20th if possible in order to lessen the chances of Hessian Fly living over to attach the wheat as it grows this fall.

Agricultural Conservation News

The check up on the extent of participation by Kent farmers in the Agricultural Conservation Association is well under way. Several interesting developments are revealed; one is that probably three times as much lime as in former years has been applied to Kent County farms. Second, the big increase in the use of superphosphate as a top dressing for hay and pasture land. Third, increased use in green manuring crops plowed down; and fourth, greatly increased interest in alfalfa and in permanent pastures. Other points that have aroused much thought are forestry practices and gully and erosion control. It will take another year before the latter two phases of the conservation program fully develop.

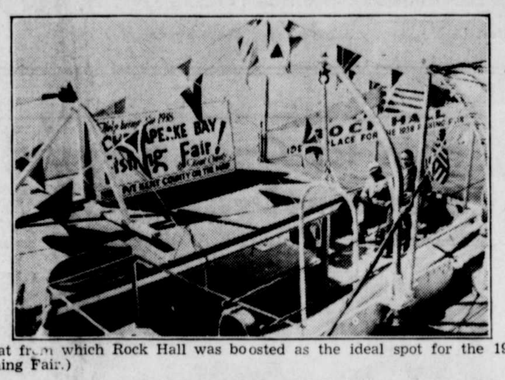

People interested in fullest participation in the Conservation Program should consider carefully the acreage seeded to wheat this fall. Many farmers seeded more wheat than usual last year and have regretted it. It certainly seems desirable that if acreage of soil depleting crops is to be reduced that hte winter grain for harvest offers the best opportunity without any need to reduce on corn, sugar corn, omato or truck crop acreage. Winter grains for pasture and green manuring do not count as depleting if used for pasture or plowed under next spring before harvest.

FERTILIZER LOANS AVAILABLE AGAIN

Here At County Agents Office For Fertilizer Loan Applications

On Monday, September 27th, C. R. Hare o fthe Emergency Crop Loan Office will be in the County Agents Office from twelve until four to help farmers make applications for fertilizer loans as needed in connection with the 1938 wheat crop.

These loans are available only to those who are not able to secure credit through regular commercial channels. They afford an opportuniyt to secure cash price at 4% interest.

SASSCER BIDS FOR GOVERNORSHIP

Files This Week For Democratic Primaries

Senator Lansdale G. Sasscer, of Prince George's County, President of the Maryland Senate filed his candidacy for Governor of Maryland subject to the Democratic primaries. This action on the part of Senator Sasscer makes certain a Democratic primary as Mayor Howard Jackson, of Baltimore filed his candidacy earlier this summer.

Senator Sasscer in a statement this week said that in the counties of Maryland and Baltimore City there is a wide-spread feeling that the next Governor of Maryland should justly be from the counties. He further stated that there is an intense year of the political and economic dangers incident to the merging of the power of the City Hall machine with the authority of the Chief Executive in the hands of one man or a small group.

There has been little question but that Mayor Jackson would have opposition as the Democraitc nominee as Sasscer, Bruce, O'Connor and Gordy had all expressed their desire to run for the office.

As to whether Senator Sasscer's hat in the ring will crowd out the other aspirants remains to be seen although it is not believed that any of the other three mentioned above will file.

The next important question to ask is whether each of the candidates will have a full ticket in the field. Should this be true a year of political activity before the primary is in the making.
