SKY APPARATUS MYSTERY SOLVED

Found To Be For Observing Weather

The "Mystery From the Skies", mentioned in last weeks paper, is a piece of apparatus sent up by the Weather Bureau according Dr. J. J. Coop, head of the Department of Physics of Washington College and a representative of the Weather Bureau. Dr. Coop examined it this week.

The balloon carries the mechanism to an altitude of from 10 to 20 miles in the air before it bursts. The mechanism is equipped with a barometer, thermometer, humidity guage, battery, radio tubes and aerial. It broadcasts the altitude, temperature and humidity which is automatically recorded by graph or a moving tape in the office from which it is sent up. The apparatus itself has no data recorded on it when it lands.

Dr. Coop, has written to the Weather Bureau to find out from where and the date it was sent up.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Dill, of Hanesville, Kent County found this equipment in their yard on Friday, November 6. They loaned it to the college in an effort to find out what it was.

At a later date we hope to be able to publish the place from which the balloon was released.

A Temperance meeting is held in the Sunday Schools of both churches once a month and a number of public temperance meetings have also been held during the year. There is an active Loyal Temperance Legion in Betterton. Mrs. Baynard Harper, who was the delegate to the State Convention, gave a most interesting report of the convention. One million dollars is being raised throughout the United States by 1938 to be used entirely for Alcohol Education, so that our boys and girls will know that alcohol is and what it does. Secretary, Mrs. Ralph Geary.

WORK STARTED ON REPAIR OF ARMORY

A. N. Stavely & Son Have Contract

Work on repairing the Chestertown Armory was started this week by A. N. Stavely & Son who has the contract for the complete renovation of the building.

The contract includes replastering the building and laying of a concrete floor in the basement.

A new roof will be put on the building by the Gatch Company, of Baltimore.

The new plastering work will overcome much of the difficulty experienced due to sweating walls as an air space will be left between the brick walls and the new plastered surface.

FIREMEN TO REPAIR TOYS FOR KIDDIES

Will Disrtibute Them At Christmas

The Chestertown Volunteer Fire Company will again this year repair broken toys and distribute them to kiddies who will find Santa Clause's bag nearly empty when he arrives at their house.

The fire company will greatly appreciate the cooperation of the public in bringing broken and discarded toys to the fire house at as early date as possible so that it will allow sufficient time to repair and paint them.

The committee in charge of this work is Messrs. Ben Hessy and James LeCates. Mr. LeCates can be found at the fire house almost at any time as since his retirement from the railroad he spends much of his time there.

On Christmas eve night the toys, together with Santa Clause are carried on a fire truck and distributed, making a joyous Christmas for many kiddies. This practice has been carried out for several years and the results of this activity each year justifies its continuance.

Fire Threatens Farm Home

Firemen were called to the farm home owned by Dr. Frank B. Hines and occupied by Mr. J. Albert Baxter early Monday morning to extinguish a serious chimney fire. After extinguishing all signs of fire in the chimney the firemen returned to Chestertown. An hour later they were again called when heat from the chimney had set fire to the floor and wall joists. The second fire threatened the home and only by cutting away part of the floor and walls and using water through the booster system was the building saved.

This building is one of the palatial old brick homes in Kent County, all of the inside wood work is of black walnut.

Water Front Farm Sold This Week

Another Kent County water front farm was sold this week. The farm owned by Miss Helen M. Weaver, located on Chesapeake Bay near Still Pond, was purchased by a committee representing the Y. M. C. A. of the State of De laware. It will be used as a summer home for that organization.

The sale was made by Mr. W. Clark Grieb.

Injured In Fall

Mrs. Margaret Hadaway, received injuries this week when she fell at the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. R. Startt in Quaker Neck. She is now confined to her bed at her daughter's home.

A dance will be held at Centreville Armory on Thanksgiving, Thursday evening. Adv. on page 4.

THIRD LECTURE AT COLLEGE MONDAY

Third Of Series To Be On Medern Chemistry

"The New Chemistry in Action" is the title of the third lecture in the popular series sponsored by Washington College, and the speaker will be Dr. Kenneth S. Buxton, head of the Department of Chemistry. On Monday, November 22, at 8 p. m. in the Assembly Room of William Smith Hall, Dr. Buxton will initiate his audience into the mysteries of modern Organic Chemistry, wizzard among present-day sciences, and explain whence and how come such amazing productions as clothing from casein, silk from wood pulp, and palatable starch from sawdust.

"It is possible," said Dr. Buxton, to take the atoms of just three of the common chemical elements, carbon, hydrogen and oxygen, and combine them in so many different ways, each forming a different substance, that the number of results having practical value are almost limitless.

"Organic chemists have liquefied coal and cracked up the products so as to enormously increase the yield of gasoline, and they find that some of these hydrocarbons are cancer-producing and so are using them in the relentless war medical science is waging against this arch enemy of mankind."

The speaker will discuss the production and uses of some of the newer vitamins that can be made synthetically in the laboratory, the little-known and but recently discovered plant hormones which stimulate growth and may hence play a vastly important role in future agriculture, drugs such as digitalis and sulfanilamide, and recent commercial innovations, as cellophane.

The public is cordially invited and there is no admission charge. While the subject is technical and many speakers would either go over the heads of their audience and bore them or else would elect to take all the meat out of th theme in an effort to make it popular, Dr. Buxton has outlined a method of starting from simple and commonplace foundations and then gradually, step-by-step carrying his listeners up with him to the point where the making of chemical compounds in the laboratory will be readily comprehended and at the same time advanced operations made clear, without recourse to the jargon of the professional chemist.

Professor Buxton is now in his sixth year at Washington College and during his tenure has successfully carried on the scholarly traditions of his department as well as adding his own contributions. As a result the work in Chemistry at the College is both popular and progressive. About thirty-five students annually elect to major in this field and within the last few years many of these have gone forth to teaching and industrial positions, while six have elected to follow up with graduate work in leading universities.

FIREMEN TAKE FIRE COURSE

Meetings Each Thursday Evening

Th first of a series of lecture courses on fire-fighting was held at the fire-house Tuesday evening, at which time Mr. Robert B. Criswell, of College Park, was the speaker. These lectures are part of a State-wide program of fire-fighting instructions as provided for at the last session of the Legislature.

Instruction classes will be held each Thursday evening at the fire house here with the exception of next week when the class will be held on Friday du to Thursday being Thanksgiving.

The course includes a certain amount of study to be done by the firemen between the meeting and includes the most modern fire fighting methods.
