CHURCH NOTES

RADIANT LIVING

Getting Even

By Rev. C. M. Griffeth
Pastor Calvary M. E. Church
Sudlersville, Md.

"I'll get even with him if it's the last thnig I'll ever do!"

Have you not heard some one say something like that? And perhaps you may have heard even yourself saying it.

And it is a perfectly natural thing to say. Revenge is the usual way in which humans strike back.

But we are not called upon to do the usual thing, but the unusual thing. We are not called upon to do the natural thing is to rise above revenge and to—forget it.

Nor are we fools in so doing, even though others tell us that we are. The fool rather, is the person who through the weakness of his personality can not mount victoriously above the forces that beat upon his life.

In denying myself the right to strike back I undoubted loose a delightful satisfac tion of paying some one back in their own coin. But what I gain is of infinite more value.

In the first place, when I deliberately forget an injustice, I immediately stop its power to disturb my mental equilibium. Moreover I prevent it casting over me a spell of brooding which would wreck the happiness of the present moment. Then again, I safeguard myself from being tempted to plot some mischievous come back that would result in plunging me still deeper into evil.

I may get even with the person who did me harm, but in so doing, I stay even with him—on the same level. But in denying myself the sweetness of revenge, I gain a mastery over myself that lifts me to a much higher level.

Seek t obe a person who has the strength of restraint.

Gus and Charles Startt and mother, Thomas Legg, and Frank Hadaway, Jr., motored to the Eastern Shore State Hospital on Friday to see Capt. Howard Carmine and found him improving very slowly.

HOLLY SUPPLY ON SHORE SEEN AS MUCH REDUCED

The holly supply of the Delmarva Peninsula which brings approximately $400,000 each year to the Eastern Shore section, will be greatly reduced if the present vandalistic methods of harvesting are not checked, District Forester Nelson H. Fritz, Salisbury, said today.

Trees in this area properly cut by farmers last year are ready for another "harvest" this year, he pointed out, while other trees wastefully cut will require from 15 to 20 years to recover. Mr. Fritz called attention to this condition in recommending a plan whereby farmers and woodland owners could form a cooperative group for scientifically harvesting their holly and finding markets where it is demanded.

CAGE SEASON MAY OPEN ON COLLEGE COURT

Armory Here Ready To Be Repaired

Washington College basketball fans will probably return to the gymnasium on the college campus for at least one of the basketball games on the college schedule this year. The opening contest, with Wittenberg College on December 18, will probably be played on the college floor rather than at the Armory because of the fact that the latter place is about to undergo repairs that will take a month or more in time and see the expenditure of some $10,000.

College authorities, and those in charge of the Armory, hope that the building will be ready for occupancy again by the first of the year in which event the 1938 games on the Washington cage schedule will again be played on the Aromry court.

Cagers at the college have been working out several times weekly for the past month and will be joined early next week by those players now occupied fith football.

The schedule is as follows:

Dec. 14—Moravian	Away
Dec. 15—West Chester	Away
Dec. 18—Wittenburg	Home
Jan. 6—John Hopkins	Away
Jan. 8—Western Maryland	Home
Jan. 13—University of Balto.	Away
