Telephone Links Oldest Independent Countries In Western Hemisphere

When the United States Secretary of State Cordell Hull and the Haitian Acting Minister of Foreign Affairs Auguste Turnier opened the new radio telephone service between the United States and Haiti, they established a telephone line between the two oldest independent countries in this hemisphere.

Mr. Hull in sending his personal greetings to President Vincent of the Republic of Haiti, said: "I think you will agree that the perfection of the means of international communication results in the perfection of mutual understanding between peoples." Mr. Turnier, replying in French, sent greetings to President Roosevelt and said: "The growing perfection of the means of international communication can only bring the peoples closer together. And the Haitian government rejoices that the Pan-American governments henceforth can count on still another factor in the service of their ideas of solidarity and of the development of their moral and material interests."

Others taking part in the ceremony, which was held in Secretary Hull's office in Washington, were: Laurence Duggan, chief, division of American Republics; Elie Lescot, Haitian minister to the United States; William G. Thompson, assitant to the vice-president, American Telephone and Telegraph Company, and Roy C. Corderman, Washington office of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. The participants at Port au Prince, in addition to Mr. Turnier, were Harold D. Finley, American charge d' affairs, and F. T. Madsen, general manager of the West Indies Telephone Company.

The week-day rate for a three-minute conversation between Washington and any point in the Republic will be $11.25.

The service will be handled over a short-wave radio telephone circuit between American Telephone and Telegraph Company stations at Miami and West Indian Telephone Company stations near Port au Prince.

Today, Yesterday, Tomorrow

Hints for Homemakers
By Jane Rogers

TWO large, sour apples, pared and grated plus the juice and rind of 1 lemon and 1 cup of sugar cooked for five minutes with constant stirring makes a delicious filling for two layers of spice or ginger cake. Cool filling before spreading, dust top of cake with powdered sugar instead of frosting. Serve cake soon after filling is placed between layers.

Kumquats and apples—both in season now—make a delicious salad combination. Prepare the fruit this way: Wash and wipe 1 box of kumquats or enough to make ⅔ cup when sliced very thin, discarding the center seed part. Pare 2 large tart apples or enough to make 1 and ½ cup when cut in inch strips. If kumquats are sour sprinkle with a little powdered sugar. Make a salad dressing of ¼ teaspoon paprika, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons sugar, 2 tablespoons lemon juice and 6 tablespoons olive oil. Pour over fruits which have been mixed together. Serve from a salad bowl with a few lettuce leaves or cress tips for garnish.

ON THE SCREEN AT THE NEW LYCEUM

TRUE CONFESSION

Carole Lombard and Fred MacMurray, favorite romantic sparring partners of the screen, who return in Paramount's latest comedy riot, "True Confession," which shows on Wednesday and Thursday, January 26 and 27, at the New Lyceum Theatre. John Barrymore is co-starred with the romantic pair in the film, which was directed by W esley Ruggiers.

An ultra-'modern story of a four-sided romance, "Man-Proof," shows on Monday and Tuesday, January 24 and 25 at the New Lyceum Theatre with a stellar cast headed by Myrna Loy, Franchot Tone, Rosalind Russell and Walter Pidgeon.

Famous for her portrayals as the ideal American wife, Miss Loy now deviates from her usual roles to play a single woman whose man is stolen by a rival.

In lavish settings of metropolitan flavor, Miss Loy appears as a newspaper artist in love with a social climber, Walter Pidgeon. Pidgeon weds an heiress, Rosalind Russell, instead, and they leave on their honeymoon. Franchot Tone, a cartoonist, secretly loves Miss Loy but will not admit it to her. They remain "pals". Miss Loy temporarily forgets her defeat until the honeymooners return, when she renews her siege.

The wife, Rosalind Russell, finds her husband in Miss Loy's rooms and offers him a divorce. As he will lose his soft job with his wife's rich father, he declines the divorce. Miss Loy at last realizes the foolishness of her infatuation for the married man. She and Tone pledge to remain "pals", but her mother knows they are in love.

Richard Thorpe directed "Man-Proof" with an outstanding cast which includes Rita Johnson, Nana Bryant, Ruth Hussey, Leonard Penn, John Miljan, William Stack, Oscar O'Shea and Dan Toby.

They're together again—that scrap-happy, happy-go-lucky team of gorgeous Carole Lombard and handsome Fred MacMurray! The two favorite sparring partners of the screen come back together in their most thrilling comedy-drama, "True Confession," in which they are aided and abetted by John Barrymore, and which comes to the New Lyceum on Wednesday, and Thursday, January 26 and 27.

"True Confession," directed by Wesley Ruggles from an adaptation of the famous French play, "Mon Crime," by Louis Verneuil and Georges Berr, is the chuckle-filled tale of a girl, the biggest natural liar that ever lived, who confessed to a murder which she hadn't committed just so that her struggling lawyer husband—a paragon of truthfulness—can defend her and get some publicity for himself.

MacMurray, who plays the part of the lawyer, brushes aside his wife's attempts to tell him that she is innocent of the killing for which she has been arrested, and forces her to "confess" that she killed in self-defense.

The trial is conducted along these lines of a self-defense plea, and Miss Lombard is acquitted, with exactly the result that she had counted on. MacMurray is deluged with cases, and Miss Lombard receives a lucrative contract to write her life story for the newspapers.

After the trial, an eccentric derelict, John Barrymore, shows up and threatens to blackmail Miss Lombard, by telling her husband that she lied to him when she confessed to the murder, but MacMurray shows up just in time to overhear Barrymore's threat. MacMurray forces a confession from Barrymore in which he reveals that he knows all about the murder, which was actually committed by his brother-in-law, since killed in a holdup. MacMurray gets rid of Barrymore by threatening to pin the murder on him, unless he vanishes.

MacMurray is relieved to learn that his wife is innocent, but furious that she lied to him, in her "confession."

The film winds up with the most hilarious finish brought to the screen in a long, long time, in which Miss Lombard is convinced that under no conditions must she ever again lie to her husband, and the two face a rosy future together—unless she slips and lies again!

Supporting the three stars is a splendid cast, whcih includes Una Merkel, Edgar Kennedy, Lynne Overman, Fritz Feld, John T. Murray, Porter Hall, Richard Carle and Tommy Dugan.
