FARM PROGRAM TO BE EXPLAINED

Differs Slightly From Last Year

Educational work on the 1938 conservation program in the various counties of Maryland will be undertaken in the near future, according to Dr. T. B. Symons, director of the University of Maryland extension service. It has been delayed somewhat, he states, because of the legislation with respect to a new farm bill that is pending in Washington.

It is the opinion of Dr. Symons that any modifications which may be made will not affect the general features of the program as outlined for 1938, but may alter some of the details. He believes that the program for the coming year can be used not only to encourage soil conservation, but also to encourage adjustments which are required to maintain the economic gains that have been made by farmers in recent years.

Each farmer, it is stated, will be advised early in the year as to three important points: First, the total payment which may be earned for his farm; Second, his soil depleting goal, or the maximum number of acres of soil depleting crops which he can harvest and obtain full payment; and, third, the soil building goal, or the number of acres of soil building practices prescribed for the farm in order to obtain maximum payment.

Farms will be divided into two groups. Those which are producing primarily for market will have soil depleting goals established at less than their usual acreage and will qualify for payment by holding their depleting crops within limits and by performing soil building practices. Farms producing primarily for home needs will have soil depleting goals establishing as large as their usual acreage and will learn their payments entirely by soil building practices.

Special goals will be established for commercial potatoes on farms where the usual acreage of potatoes is more than three acres. There are special features in the program also with respect to vegetable growers and orchardists.

SMOKEY JOE ON LOVE POINT RUN

Captain Woodall Makes Trip From New York

"Smokey Joe", widely known ferry boat of the Pennsylvania Railroad is back on the Love Point-Baltimore run having been put into service Sunday.

The trip from New York was made last week under the Command of Captain Washington Woodall who is at his home here this week. Leaving New York the boat went outside from that City to the Delaware Capes, up the Delaware River to the C & D Canal to the Chesapeake Bay. Captain Woodall reports a pleasant trip although ice was encountered in the upper bay at Turkey Point. He stated that he is prepared for what comes now that he has the "Old Reliable" back.

FIGHT ON BEETLE INVASION PLANNED

County And Towns Plan To Cooperate

Realizing the menace of the Japanese Beetle a real fight will be made in Kent in 1938 (and in succeeding years) to hold back the spread and to hold down the damages done by this very serious pest. The fight will be made on the farm and in the incorporated villages. A state-wide plan and policy has been worked out, after much consultation and planning, with Dr. George S. Langford, Specialist in Insect control, the Entomologist in charge of hte fight. He works through the County Extnesion Offices in arranging the details of the cooperative fight.

In order that the available funds may be used most widely and effectively local responsibility to the extent of one-third the budget must be assumed either in the purchase of traps, etc., or in services. The amount to be matched by like amounts of State and Federal funds.

The Mayor and Council of Chestertown have already agreed to the plan. The Millington Town Council expects to cooperate. Betterton and Galena have infestation and doubtless will fight cooperatively at their next meeting. The County Commissioners will be asked to help make the fight effective. Traps bought by County and town will be matched in numbers by State or Federal traps, or care and record keeping on traps may be substituted for the purchase of traps. Individuals desiring to buy extra traps may obtain them at bare cost.

Kent folk who have seen the havoc wrought by the beetle in the vicinity of Elkton, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey, need no statistics or figure to convince them that the Japanese Bettle is worse than all our other insect pest combined as regards damage done. Daa show they ar every expensive tenants. Data also reveal that much can be done to retard their spread and to lessen the damage by making the fight in time—which is before heavy infestation has occured.

It concerns every Kent County resident and should command widespread and determined cooperation in the fight to keep the beetle retarded

WASHINGTON PLAYS BALTI. U. TONIGHT

Game To Be Played In Local Armory

Washington College will play the University of Baltimore tonight, Saturday in the Chestertown Armory. The visitors have one of the strongest teams in the State and are coming here to revinge the defeat they suffered at the hands of the local collegians in Baltimore two weeks ago.

Washington Wins Over Loyola

Washington won over their basket ball rival, Loyola in Baltimore last Saturday night before a large crowd of fans of which about half were Washington supporters. This annual game always proves a big drawing card as a hard fought game can be expect and last Saturday's game was no exception.

Washington started off with a bang to lead 14 to 3 but from that point apparently remained dormant as at half time Loyola was leading 28 to 22. The local team remained behind until the last two minutes of play when three quick goal shots gave them a lead of 42 to 38.

Zebrowski lead the scoring for Washington with 14 points, Kardash placing second with 8.

UNDULANT FEVER APPEARS AT GALENA

Two Cases Reported This Week

Local health authorities reported tihs week that there are two cases of underlant fever at Galena and that both patients are very ill.

It is the belief of health authorities that this disease came from drinking raw milk from cows suffering from bangs disease. It is known that undulant fever is caused by this kind of milk and is also contracted by persons working in slaughter houses.

Eradication of bangs disease from Kent's dairy herds is rapidly going forward with funds provided by the State of Maryland and the Federal government and at the present time the work in this county is approximately 30% completed.

It is not compulsary for dairymen to have their cattle tested in order to ship to markets as pasteurizing or boiling makes the milk safe for consumption although laws prevent the transporting cattle with the disease from one state to another.

In the present bangs disease eradication program, farmers receive certain sums for cattle which are found to be suffering with the disease.

SCOUTMASTERS TO HOLD ROUNDTABLE

Will Coordinate Scout Work In County

A meeting of the Scoutmasters, their Assistants and Troop Committeemen was called on January 20, by C. Lee Gill, District Scout Commissioner, for the purpose of forming a Scoutmaster's Roundtable. The motion was made and carried that a Scoutmaster's Roundtable be formed. This group includes Scoutmasters, Assistants, and Troop Committeemen from eight troops in Kent County. It was decided to call these meetings about once every two months or as often as needed. Kent Counyt is now recognized Nationally as far as Scout work goes.

The first business of the Roundtable was to have a District Court of Honor and Rally in the Cain Gym at Washington College on February 8, 1938, with C. Lee Gill in charge. The Court of Honor and Rally is for the parents as well as the Scouts and will inaugurate the first district Rally of this kind.

At present there are nine troops in Kent County: Rock Hall, Millington, Galena, Betterton, Fairlee, Kennedyville and three troops in Chestertown, which includes a newly formed colored troop. Chestertown stands out with three troops, a Sea Scout Patrol, and the only Cub Pack on the Easern Shore of Maryland.

STATE POLITICS ACTIVE AGAIN

Both Parties Promise Contests

Activities in State politics is showing signs of a big rush of activity when spring breaks. Mayor Jackson and Attorney General O'Connor hold the spotlight for the Governorship although President of the Senate Sasscer is working quietly in the southern part of the State.

It was predicted that Comptroller Gordy would announce his candidacy shortly after the first of the year, that announcement has not been forthcoming and people are wondering whether he will change his mind and run for some other office.

In the Republican ranks, all is not serene, as Governor Nice is having trouble keeping the names of some of his State appointees from popping up as possible candidates for the Governorship. Senator Phoebus has already announced and the name of Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Rudy is being mentioned.

Up to the present time there has been no public announcement of the lining up of the candidates for the various State offices although it is generally understood that Senator Tydings and Mayor Jackson will be running mates. Other speculations are that O'Connor, Gordy and Sasscer will combine for the offices of Governor, Senator and Attorney General.

There has been no definate stand on the Governorship in Kent County by any united group of political leaders and individual expressions point to an even break for Jackson and O'Connor. Among those who have openely expressed themselves are Mayor Wilmer, Clerk of the Court R. A. Shallcross and Chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, Mrs. Charles W. Whaland, the former two being openly for Jackson and the latter for O'Connor.

Thomas Healy Will Seek States Attorney Office

Announcement was made this week by Mr. Thomas F. Healey that he will run for States Attorney for Kent County. The only other public announcmeent in the county for office is that of Dr. William H. Moyer who has announced himself as a candidate for Sheriff. Local politics has begun to hum in private get-to-gethers but to-date everything is on the Q. T.

This annual affair draws a large number of farmers from all parts of the county and is generally the largest gathering of local farmers during the year.

FIREMEN TO MOVE TO NEW FIRE HOUSE TODAY, SATURDAY

Bell Will Replace Siren To Summons Fire men Next Week

Work will start today, Saturday, on moving the equipment of the Chestertown Volunteer Fire Company to the new fire house. The spare equipment such as extra house; ladders, etc., were moved during the week and todays activity will consist of moving the fire trucks, hose, personal equipment of the firemen, foamon apparatus, and bunk-room furniture.

This apparatus must be moved together so that the men can be prepared to answer an alarm at any time. The work on the equipment room, which is the first floor of the building, was rushed to completion this week.

The fire bell has been placed on the new building and will be use to summonse firemen today and the first part of next week while the siren is being moved and overhauled. The siren will be placed on the top of the rear end of the new fire house and in the prcoess of trying it out during the next few days residents are advised not to become alarmed.

The firefighters be informed as to the time of the tests and will ably take care of any fires that may occur.

It is expected that the firemen's recreation room on the third floor will be completed in time for the meeting Monday night and if so, the old building wil be utrned over to the "Daughters of America" the purchasers and now owners.

The building will not be completed for several weeks as work on the second floor, which includes the large banquet and meeting hall and also the kitchen for serving banquets.

There will be no formalities in connection with the mvoing into the new home today although in the near future the annual banquet will be held there which will include dedication exercises.
