RADIANT LIVING

Never Mind About John

By Rev. C. M. Griffeth
Pastor Calvary M. E. Church
Sudlersville, Md.

The disciples were still lingering over that momentuous breakfast which the Risen Christ had prepared for them on the shore o f Galilee. Peter was deeply pondering his call to Apostleship when he heard hte Christ speaking softly to him, "Follow me!"

Thinking that perhaps Jesus wanted to say something to him privately, Peter arose in company with His Master and began to walk away with Him from the rest of the disciples.

They had gone but a short distance when, turning around, Peter saw John also following them. Having just received a prophecy of the suffering that awaited him, Peter began to wonder what might be the service and the suffering that lay ahead for John. Turning to Jesus, Peter began to inquire: "Lord, what shall this man do?"

Like Peter, we too are often apt to think that everybody must serve the Christ as we are trying to serve Him. We try to shape every follower of the Christ into the same mold in which we have been formed. We forget the infinite diversity that exists in humanity. We forget the far different factors that have entered into the lives and experiences of others. We forget also the varied services that must be rendered, requring the assistance of those who are far different from ourselves.

The rebuke of the Christ was well put: "What is that to thee—follow me!"

The radiant Christian has discovered two secrets of joyous service. One is to stop judging those who are different from himself. The other is to keep his own eye on the Christ and on the Christ alone.

Therefore, never mind what John may be doing. Push straight along the line divinely given you.

CHILDRFN'S AID ACTIVE IN KENT

Local Group Solves Many Problems

Sylvia, so the children's worker put it, came from an "ignorant and bad lot." Notations in agency records must be brief but in a few words the worker conveyed her meaning; the family was shiftless, unreliable, without a permanent home, appeared feebleminded, and were certainly filthy. They did not even sit down at the table to eat, but grabbed what they could from pots and pans on their succession of broken-down stoves.

Sylvia's family wandered up and down the Eastern Shore. Occasionally officials would clap them all into jail, knowing no better way to provide for the lot of them. For a long time they stayed in an almshouse, where Sylvia and her brothers and sisters associated with the aged, maimed, diseased and infirm, who make up the motley of outcasts in our county homes for the poor.

Finally, a court took official action and committed the children to the Maryland Children's Aid Society, for after investigating it had been found that the parents were unfit guardians.

The children's worker found Sylvia to be "shy, silent, and sick-looking," as she wrote into the record. "She is thought stupid in the school," she added. As usual, one of the first steps the worker took was to enlist the aid of the dentist, doctor and pychiatrist.

"Bad teeth," the dentist said.

"Fourteen percent underweight," the doctor said.

"A medical and social problem in which proper foster home placement and adequate medical care would play the first part," the pyschiatrist declared.

The children's worker tucked Sylvia into her car and they started for the new foster home. "There will be baby chicks for you to feed, Sylvia," the worker told her. It worked. Sylvia smiled shyly and said, "I'm glad I'm going."

Though Sylvia is an affectionate little girl, she has never shown a trace of regret at parting from her parents, or a sign of homesickness.

They were warmly welcomed by the boarding mother, who introduced Sylvia to the two little grils in the home. The three of them were soon busy at dolls and sewing and the preparation of mud pies and such delicacies that intrigue the imagination of childhood.

It is an old story. Sylvia has grown rapidly. Her cheeks bloom with color. Her disposition is friendly and she has recovered from her shyness. At school she is at the head of her class. She has endeared herself to all.

On the streets of one of our small Maryland towns today there is a well-known figure. A boy of eleven. He is small for his age but wise to the ways of the world. For four or five years now he has been selling papers. His frowsy hair and unkemp clothes and thin little body always attracted attention. He gets a lot of business. But sometimes he is not careful to return change. He has learned to tell a good story, whether or not the details are true. On night sitting in a store, I saw him come in. The shopkeeper kept an eye on him and after awhile he said, "Boy, you'd better run along." The lad left and the shopkeeper said to me: "I hate to do a thing like that, but if I didn't, he'd hang around every night until I closed the store. The street's no place for a child, but you see my store is crowded."

I inquired about the boy. Yes, he had a makeshift of a home. His father was there sometimes and sometimes not. And usually drunk. The boy eats around, often with strangers who give him a free meal because they feel sorry for him.

This little newsie has not had his chance, and the direction he is taking is very apparent. If something is not done for him soon, it may be too late. He must have a chance, because you and I are interested, yet there are many others suffering the same plight and waiting lists of children's agencies are long.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 25c. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

TRUSLOW CHICKS
MARYLAND U. S. APPROVED
STATE PULLORUM TESTED

RAISE 95% OF YOUR CHICKS

This year, through the cooperation of the State Poultry Department, every bird from which we secure hatching eggs has been individually selected, pullorum-tested, banded, and certified by the state as Maryland U. S. Approved.
You would expect to pay more for Maryland U. S. Approved Chicks, but you will not have to. The price at the hatchery will remain $9.00 per hundred for New Hampshire Reds, White Leghorns, and Barred Rocks. Started chicks 4c extra. This state certified stock will cost you no more than ordinary chicks. Phone today and make reservation for your requirements.

MORE FLOCK OWNERS NEEDED

The increased demand for Truslow U. S. Approved Chicks will make it necessary for us to add at least ten or fifteen more flocks of New Hampshire Reds and White Leghorns next year. If you wish to become one of our flock owners and make $30.00 or $40.00 a month extra profit, get in touch with us at once. Phone Chestertown 265 for complete information.
