RACES NOW ON AT DELAWARE PARK

To Continue Thirty Days

Coincident with the retirement from active racing of young Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney—Sonny to his intomates Gladys Whitney, his charming young wife, it stepping right out in steeplechasing. She calls herself Gwladys Whitney, mind, not Mrs. C. V. Whitney. She considers the appelation "Mrs." superfluous and she prefers that the nwespapers use her name, if and when, as she uses it.

One of the stars of the steeplechasing at Belmont Park, Red Rain, son of Pennant and Dustemall and a Hopeful stakes winner at two years old, is of Gwladys Whitney's string as are also the winners Bagpipe and Rideaway and Gay Charles and the non winner Roustabout. She paid $10,000 at the C. V. Whitney sale at Pimlico last November for Roustabout and a little less for Bagpipe. That was the sale at whcih William duPont acquired Dauber for $27,000, Colonel Maxwell Howard The Chief for $12,000 and Thomas Healey Tatterdemalion, which won a Tropical handicap that paid $8,000 for $8,000.

Roustabout disappointed a couple of times at Belmont Park, but that does not necessarily mean that he will not come through eventually and handsomely. Old horses don't pick up steeplechasing as quickly as young ones learn and Roustabout, a son of Chicle and Traffic, is seven. Not a bad hide either. The year before last he won Narragansett, Fall River and New England handicaps and he was not skunked last season. He is a fine fencing type, physically.

Red Rain, a pretty good flat horse in Maryland last fall, broke into steeplechasing at Belmont Park in May by licking National Anthem, Jungle King, Fils de Liral, Brant and Rioter in the forty first International and followed that triumph by beating Sailor Beware, Rioter, Fils de Liral, Top Wave and Good Chance in the seventeenth Appleton Memorial. This fellow, who jumps swiftly and naturally may prove the fencing champion of the year. "Green 'uns" don't usually score as he did in International's and Appleton's.

Bagbipe, a son of Royal Minstrel and Skylight, and a very promising four year old, whipped Torturer, Tarbrush, Jim Swynburn, at the second asking after bobbling at several fences. The circumstance that these bad jumps did not discourage Bagpipe encourages his fair owner to think that she has a potential star in him. Gay Charles, a four year old son of Blondni and Yankee Maid and a half brother of Bostonian, made it three straight when he licked Swimalong, Wambaw, Red Shank and Grain de Cafe at two miles last Wednesday. He was a two time winner in Maryland last November, Sidney Hollowy, once one of the best American amateur steeplechase jocks, is training for Gwladys Whitney.

JUGS FROM NORTH CAROLINE HILLS

Much of the charm of the popular Jugtown pottery lies in the individuality of its workmanship, and many of the potters in the Sandhills of North Carolina stick to the slow methods of their fathers and make their jugs, vases, and pots by hand.

The survival, not only of the simple forms, but also the ancient technique, must largely be credited to the artistic evangelism of Mr. and Mrs. Jacques Busby, native Tar Heels, who 20 years ago saw factory methods threatening the quaint craft of this section, and determined to save it. Mr. Busby was a portrait painter, his wife a photographer, both well established in Raleigh. Lacking other resources, they sold their library and moved into the isolated pottery country. There, in a log cabin, they started their crusade against commercialization of the pottery cottage industry, which had existed since the earliest potters immigrated here from Yorkshire, England.

The Busbys showed the native potters that not only the charm, but the pecuniary value, of their product lay in its indigenous character and the individuality of workmanship. Near their cabin they built an old-time kiln, salvaged an ancient potter's wheel, and all the time, honored implements of the craft. They selected for workmen potters steeped in the colonial traditions, and sold their pottery around the world.

In 20 years, the Busbys have seen a lot of progress, but, so far as pottery goes, they have, with great satisfaction, seen Moore County lapse into the familiar ways of the Yorkshire artisans. At their own place, a mule patiently turns the hand-carved mixing blades. Clay comes from a near-by pit, and it is weighed upon an ancient device which uses a bagful of pebbles for a balance. The clay grows into a jug or pot solely through the skillful hands and eyes (and patient peddling) if a young potter whose father and grandfather before him "kicked a potter's wheel." Dried, then glazed with a stick dipped in dye, the jugs are cooked in the enormous kiln.

Success of the Busby pottery had had a profound effect on the community of potters. Near by, a 16-year-old potter is proudly launching his own venture. Everything about his place is brand new—a new wheel (reproducing with studied accuracy the eighteenth-century device), a new scale with new pebbles, a new kiln, and a new mule.

"That's all you need to make jugs," he said carelessly.

DEATHS FROM AUTO ACCIDENTS SHOW MARKED DECREASE

Sixty Seven Less Than Last Year

The monthly report of the Safety Department of the Commissioners of Motor Vehicles discloses that the first five (5) months of this year show sixty-seven (67) less deaths than the corresponding period of (1937), as the tabulation below will indicate, a decrease of thirty-one (31) percent:

	1937	1398
January	67	36
February	37	26
March	45	30
April	29	30
May	36	25
Totals:	214	147

Most of the pedestrians met their death crossing at inter-sections where there was no Signal, and crossing between intersections, and as recently reported pedestrian deaths continue to predominate.

According to our summary, eleven (11) or forty-four (44) percent were pedestrians, three (3) or twelve (12) percent were bicyclists, five (5) or twenty (20) percent were passengers, and six (6) or twenty-four (24) were the operators themselves. Most of the deaths occurred on dry, straight roads, and at intersections. Saturday had the highest number with ten (10) deaths. Passenger cars with apparently no defects continue to head the list, with operating too fast for conditions by the operators, who in a majority of the casses were White, in normal condition, between the ages of twenty (20) and twenty-nine (29), and with five (5) years or more experience, and a resident of Baltimore City. There was only one (1) Hit and Run case resulting in a death during the month of May.

Baltimore City is charged with eight (8) deaths, with eighteen (18) deaths occurring in the Counties. According to a recent survey by this Department, Calvert, Kent and Talbott Counties, since the first of this year, had no accidents resulting in a death from a motor vehicle, a very creditable record.

Walter R. Rudy, Commissioner.
