

THE SOCIAL WANDERER

DEAR ROAMER

Here we are in the first week of Lent, crawling into our shells and trying to be extra good for forty days. Tuesday last, was pan-cake day, and thereby we had pan-cakes which, after all, are no hardship to enjoy. Tuesday marked the closing of the winter season, socially speaking, and a lovely big party, a luncheon-bridge, was given that day by Mrs. John Speicher. Coming the day before George's birthday, the color scheme was in red, white and blue. Most attractive center pieces adorned each table, and the prizes were fascinatingly wrapped in red, white and blue cellophane. Yes, it was a grand wind-up before the Lenten season.

However, the little folks were not to be out-done by those of another generation. Little Jenifer Kingsley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mabon Kingsley, celebrated her birthday with a party at the Sophie Fisher Inn for 15 little friends in the afternoon. From all I hear, the party was a success to the nth degree, and although I only saw the tail end of the decorations, they were adorable—an old Dutch Mill formed the center-piece. A birthday cake which was lighted with candles, and ice cream followed sandwiches and cocoa. The color motif was yellow and green throughout.

And so Amen to parties.

Mrs. Dorsey Hines returned to her home on Tuesday from Philadelphia where she attended a large luncheon given on Monday by her mother, Mrs. Rudolph Tull in honor of Miss Emily Pribe whose marriage to Mr. Harvey Tull will take place on Saturday, March 25 in Cincinnati, Ohio. Both Mr. and Mrs. Hines will be attendants in the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Rex N. Whaley have returned to their home in Quaker Neck, after several weeks in Florida.

Recent out-of-town guests here included:

Dr. J. P. Franklin, of Cumberland, who was the week-end guest of Mr. Jesse Maxwell and Mr. Charles E. Eshman.

Miss Eleanor Titworth, of Passaic, New Jersey, who was the week-end guest of Miss Cornelia Davis.

Mr. George W. McWhorter, of Harrington, Del., was the week-end guest of relatives in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Woodland and Mrs. Mary Reed visited in Chestertown over the week-end.

Little Peggy Metcalfe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Browne Metcalfe is ill with scarlet fever.

But now the news glass is empty, so till next week,

Briefly Yours,
THE WANDERER

Early American Furniture

In the last half of the Eighteenth century, the furniture made in America compared favorably with that brought from England. Mahogany became more common and our cabinet makers made good use of it.

Girl Scouts Visit Ice Cream Factory

The Chestertown Girl Scouts of Troop I were invited to Gill Bros. Milk and Ice Cream Factory Thursday after school. The thirty-two girls present went through the factory. Our first stop was at the process of pasteurization. Then the milk was transferred and capped by another machine. Then Mr. Gill proprietor took us to the ice cream freezer. Then we went thru the ice cream pantry where the temperature was 5 degrees above zero. We were then given a treat of strawberry ice cream.

The scouts parted after thanking Mr. Gill, until the following evening when their meeting was held.
