In the mean time every preparation was made on our side, for an immediate engagement, which we all supposed no objection could be made to, the crew of both ships were called together and addressed by their commanders, who made known to them the substance of the business then on foot, they were answered by three hearty cheers.

Capt. Jones concluded his short and pertinent address in the following words, spoken with great modesty, " my lads, our cruize will be short, and I trust a very profitable one." -Captain Biddle went on board the 74, a signal was immediately made for the two commanders of the English frigates, and they went on board. Captain Hardy addressed them, " gentlemen here are two letters for you, it rests altogether with you to decide on the matter; Stackpole of the Statira, answered with the greatest affectation "pon honor sir, it is the most acceptable letter I ever received. The final answer was to be given yesterday. Captain Biddle returned, and related the circumstances as I have mentioned. For myself, I thought from the manner of Stackpole that he would be the first to flinch, I am not able to say that he did, it is enough, that the captain of the Borer (sloop of war) came in yesterday and made known that they had declined meeting us. This circumstance has made a vast deal of conversation here much to the credit of our commanders—it will probably be distorted into a hundred different shapes before it is done with, I have therefore given you a correct though brief account of it. The Endemyon, mounts the same weight of metal with the United States, and three or four guns more, and the Statira is superior to us by by one or two guns. The disappointment is very great with us, for every soul calculated on taking her with ease. You see we must trust altogether to our heels.

Yours affectionately, A. CLAXTON.
