A CARD.

On Friday Evening next, at 7 o'clock, Mr. OGILVIE will deliver in Mr. Mallet's Assembly Room, an oration, entitled

"THE ROSTRUM." In this oration, he has endeavored to illustrate the nature, objects and proper sphere of oradapted to the Rostrum, in contradiction to such as are adapted to the pulpit, the legislative hall, the bench, and the bar; and to shew that the nature of man and the constitution of civilized society, have provided a sphere for the exercise of oratory that widens, and a station for the Rostrum, that ascends with the progress of the gospel of all denominations, of judges, of | will be sold low. gentlemen of the bar, of the professors of the medical university, and of the college of Baltimore, is most respectfully invited.

To the Public. An advertisement appearing in the American of the 13th inst. prejudicial to my character; the author of it, that noted and abominable forger Gregory F. Meany, whose wife lived in my house some time last Fall, and requested I would sell at Vendue, some of her things, which I did from time to time, and paid her the money when I received it; the remainder of the goods I sent by their order on to Pittsburgh. I was security for him before he left this place, and he paid me in part with forgeries. I wrote to him about them, and told him if he did not pay me what he owed me, I would prosecute him, which I am determined to do if he can be found. After writing three times, I received a letter from him, stating that the things I had forwarded had not arrived. I delivered the things in the afternoon to the waggoner, and took his receipt—every thing appeared amicable, till I wrote for my money, and then in order to injure me, he authorises Mr. O'Connor, whom I never saw in stantial vessel, 75 tons burthen, 4 years old, my life, to advertise me as a defrauder.
