

LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE

FULLERTON.

The Boulevard on the east side of Putty Hill during the winter is used for sledding carnivals. The boys enjoy a ride of one-fourth of a mile, although their parents prevail on them not to go, they take the risks. Louis Schissler, while engaged in the pastime collided with some concrete and cut his head open. He was rushed to the hospital in an unconscious condition. Several other boys received minor injuries.

One day last week a farmer from Harford county, on his way home from the city, stopped in to get a nip and warm up. He asked for the boss, but was informed that the boss was not at home. He said, "Well, tell him for me I have put one over on him. I got a case in my auto. Tell him to come up and I will treat." I paid $65 for it. Returning again from Baltimore later, he stopped in again and took a smile. The lady asked him how he made out. He said, "Be gosh, pretty bad. The first bottle I opened I could not wait for a glass it looked so purty, I threw my head back and took a good swill and believe me, it was vingar."

Christmas passed off quietly. Relatives and friends visited each other and took dinner. Presents were as leaves on trees in summer.

Travel on the bus and the United has been very heavy during the past week.

There was 50,000 Christmas trees and wreaths left over in Pittsburgh. Baltimore county helped to pile them up in Baltimore and the demand was even with the supply. A general clean-up was the result.
