

LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE

(Continued from Page 2.)

GRANITE.

Mr. Howard Grooms, son of Mr. T. J. Grooms of this place, was operated upon at a Baltimore hospital last week. He is doing well, unless unlooked for complications set in.

EVNA.

Preaching services at the U. B. Church on Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The presiding elder is expected to be present at that time.

MT. CARMEL.

Mrs. Rachel J. Benson, widow of the late Melchior F. Benson, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. L. H. Amos, of Harford county, in her 81st year.

OWNING MILLS.

Most every one about here are suffering with bad colds and the grippe. C. H. Kelley is confined to his room with the grippe, as is Alice Conroy.

BUTLER.

There will be preaching at Dover M. E. Church Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Miss Josephine Brown has returned home after visiting her sister, Mrs. F. Collett, of Ellicott City.

ROCK CHAPEL.

Mr. and Mrs. James Smith, of York, Pa.; Mr. Emanuel Keeney and daughters, of Toia, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Elbaugh, of Baltimore, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis S. Bowman, last week.

Mr. Samuel Miller, a farmer near Rock Chapel, was struck on the head by a barn door and died a few hours later.

Miss Emma Martin, of Yeoho, is visiting her sister, Mrs. George Cole. Mrs. Harry Cole gave a tea Tuesday evening in honor of her birthday.

Mrs. Joseph Crowther, sister-in-law of Mr. Howard Crowther, was buried at Black Rock Baptist Cemetery on Tuesday last.

PEACE TREATY NOT A QUESTION OF LEADERSHIP BUT A QUESTION OF ADVANCEMENT FOR HUMANITY.

(Continued from Page 1, Col. 6.) thirds majority there. And without such a majority the disposal of the Treaty after the next election as at the present time, would have to be by compromise.

As a matter of fact, both the letter of President Wilson and the speech of Mr. Bryan point to one thing. That is, the necessity for ratification of the Treaty now. The President, assuredly, is looking rather to the main fact than to the details of arriving at it. Yet he leaves open the expectation that he will not be the means of obstructing ratification so long as the Treaty remains intact and is not in effect rewritten, or so changed as to alter its meaning.

(Continued on Page 5.)

BALTIMORE COUNTY SCHOOL BOARD GRANTS TEACHERS 25 PER CENT. INCREASE IN SALARIES.

(Continued from Page 1, Col. 2.) The superintendent will rate summer school allowance by considering the actual cost to the teacher, but in no case shall the allowance be less than $40 nor more than $100.

An increase also has been given the assistant superintendents, supervisors and clerical force. The increase is made within the 40 cents of the tax rate for schools.

Whenever a citizen of the United States is asked what he considers to be the chief factors in the perpetuation of the American form of government, he is pretty sure to include in his reply a reference to the public school system.

The public schools take in all and sundry, by compulsion if need be, and in theory at least they teach the embryo citizens how to live together in mutual toleration of one another.

Church and parochial schools are dear to the hearts of great masses of people whose regard for America is not to be doubted, and who, though perhaps only one generation away from the immigrants, unquestionably believe themselves to be just as truly and wholeheartedly Americans as the people who came over in the Mayflower.

But conditions of the war, and afterward, have been shaking up the American system. The dust is coming out of it. And the process has revealed the fact, surprising enough to many, that the American public schools are not a fixed quantity.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

The public schools take in all and sundry, by compulsion if need be, and in theory at least they teach the embryo citizens how to live together in mutual toleration of one another.

Church and parochial schools are dear to the hearts of great masses of people whose regard for America is not to be doubted, and who, though perhaps only one generation away from the immigrants, unquestionably believe themselves to be just as truly and wholeheartedly Americans as the people who came over in the Mayflower.

But conditions of the war, and afterward, have been shaking up the American system. The dust is coming out of it. And the process has revealed the fact, surprising enough to many, that the American public schools are not a fixed quantity.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

Church and parochial schools are dear to the hearts of great masses of people whose regard for America is not to be doubted, and who, though perhaps only one generation away from the immigrants, unquestionably believe themselves to be just as truly and wholeheartedly Americans as the people who came over in the Mayflower.

But conditions of the war, and afterward, have been shaking up the American system. The dust is coming out of it. And the process has revealed the fact, surprising enough to many, that the American public schools are not a fixed quantity.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

may be condoned as the only alternative to offering up individual children as a fruitless sacrifice. It is a makeshift. Against such temporizing should be weighed the possibilities of united action by such parents in the facing of the situation, and in some attempt to meet it jointly.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

ers resigned their places in the United States last year. Mr. Lane does not hesitate to say that this "greatest bulwark against the spread of Bolshevism" through the United States is crumbling, and the immediate reason is that teachers' salaries have not kept pace with the cost of living.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

But conditions of this sort are not all that tend to undermine the old-time integrity of the public school system. A more acute menace is provided by an economic situation in which the inadequacy of teachers' pay is forcing teachers out of the public school system by tens of thousands.

The salary matter has brought this movement into the limelight. But that its beginning could have been discerned before salaries became a byword there is not much question. None too soon have these things attracted general attention. There is hope, at least, in the fact that national interests are seeking a thorough reorganization of the educational system, in the fact that men who know are analyzing the situation in the magazines, in the fact that educators themselves are bringing all phases of the matter to light in their public discussions, and in the fact that the movement to give higher salaries for really meritorious teaching has already made a good start.

Established 1865
WM. A. CONWAY
Jobber of
TINNERS' SUPPLIES

Metal Roofings, Painted-Corrugated, V-Crimped and Galvanized Double Lock Roll Roofing For Dwellings, Garages and Barns Stove and Furnace Goods of all sorts. All Sizes Railroad Milk Cans.

WM. A. CONWAY 626-28 FORREST ST. Phones, Mt. Vernon 2751 or 1999 Write Today for Prices 4-13-20

The Eureka Life Insurance Company
BALTIMORE, MD.
Incorporated 1882

The Eureka Life is now a legal Reserve, Old Line Stock Life Insurance Company, with 37 years commendable history back of it. Issues Every Form of Modern Life Insurance. 11-1-1y

Commerce TRUCKS
FIVE bodies in ONE on the Pneumatic Cord Tire equipped Commerce chassis—handles diversified loads in city and country hauling
For the City Transports: Raw Materials, Finished Products, Passengers, Pick-up Service, Bottles, Express, Feed and Grain, Coal, Wood, Ice, Furniture, Hardware, Transfer and Storage, Coal, Dirt, Gravel, Packing House Products, Highway Repair Materials, Gardener's Truck, Dairy Products, etc., etc.
For the Farm Hauls: Grain in Bays or Bulk, Bulky Produce, Farm Produce in Crates, Cement in Bag or Bulk, Barnyard Fertilizer, Poultry in Crates, Farm Machinery, Dressed Meats, Fence Posts, Fruit and Vegetables in Baskets, Boxes or Crates, Baled hay, wheat, oats or corn stalks, Hogs, Cattle, Sheep, Cotton, Sugar Cane, Apples, Potatoes, Melons, Cabbage, etc., etc.
A Commerce Truck Will Measure Up in Your Service
BROCKWAY MOTOR TRUCK CO., Charles and 20th Sts., Baltimore, Md.
THE COMMERCIE MOTOR CAR CO., DETROIT, MICH. Ninth Year Manufacturers Motor Trucks

BIBB'S ONE-PIPE, THE PERFECT SYSTEM OF HEATING
ONE SUN Heats the Whole World; Why not let ONE REGISTER Heat the Whole House?
We can show you the best Pipeless Furnace on the market. SIMPLE to operate, EFFECTIVE and ECONOMICAL in use.
Bibb's One-Pipe The Perfect System of Heating.
The B. C. Bibb Stove Co. 101-109 LIGHT STREET BALTIMORE, MARYLAND
Call Write Phone "60 Years of Furnace Experience"
BIBB'S ONE-PIPE, THE PERFECT SYSTEM OF HEATING

WE SERVE YOU RIGHT TO YOUR DELIGHT.
THE TIRE SHOP
CHARLES STREET AT 20TH BALTIMORE MD.
LARGEST TIRE STOCK and LARGEST REPAIR PLANT in the LARGEST CITY IN MARYLAND

National Exchange Bank OF BALTIMORE
Hopkins Place, Redwood and Liberty Streets
Capital, $1,500,000 Surplus and Profits, Over $1,000,000
WALDO NEWCOMER, President
SUMMERFIELD BALDWIN, Vice-Pres.
PAUL A. SEEGER, Vice-President
CLINTON G. MORGAN, Vice-President
JOSEPH W. LEFFLER, Cashier
WILLIAM R. WEBB, Asst. Cashier
ACCOUNTS INVITED SAFE DEPOSIT BOXES FOR RENT A Department for Savings, 3 1/2% Interest.
GREATER BALTIMORE'S GREATER BANK