For President JAMES M. COX. For Vice-President FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

For United States Senate JOHN WALTER SMITH. For Congressman CARVILLE D. BENSON.

There's no Factory Site Commission as yet. All classes are asking for an increase except the consumer.

In the presidential race the elephant will have to carry too much weight. The only way to discourage "home brew" is to encourage folks to drink them.

After all, the Republican National Convention was a horrible waste of time. Oh, say, can you see, by the dawn's early light, that those miserable cobbles are still there.

Married men are taking little or no interest in suffrage—they know how contrary women are. When history is written William Jennings Bryan will go down on the last page as the great disturber.

What Towson and Baltimore county needs is more industries, but you can't secure them by "letting George do it." The ideal summer resort which is hard to locate is, where fish will bite and mosquitoes won't.

Why not show the Turks that America can forgive and forget by offering them the mandatory for Mexico? James M. Cox, the Democratic Presidential nominee, might just as well pack up his household effects now, for removal to the White House.

The increased price of necessities always come from the public and not out of the profits of the manufacturer or dealer. When "Bill" Bryan passes to the "great beyond" grape vines will run over his grave instead of the usual quantity of ivy.

A noted doctor on the witness stand in New York stated that he used tea for a stimulant. May we not expect a 19th amendment forbidding it? Fifteen Councilmen and a County Commissioner—thats what "Home Rule" means. And they call this economy.

Pronouncing the town in Russia, Poland and Mexico, relating to revolutions and the like, requires freedom of the sneeze. The reason an article now costs $20 more than it used to is because labor costs ten cents more and materials fifteen cents more.

Of course, everyone is interested in the "Back to the Farm" movement. They seem to be, at least, for they have their backs to the farm. "Home Rule," the catchy title of the Charter form of government which will be passed on by the voters here this fall is like the title of many a play—"far fetched."

Love's young dreams have been shattered by the 25 cent ice cream sodas the "slingers" have been getting away with, and not allowing two straws in one glass. Twins were born to an Ohio couple recently and they were named Harding and Coolidge. Babies who pick out a campaign year to "see the light of day" deserve the worst.

General Wood's selection of a soap manufacturer for campaign manager appears to have been significant, in view of disclosures before the Senate investigating committee. Eugene Debs, the Socialist candidate for President, now a boarder with the Federal Prison Warden at Atlanta by compulsion, can show the lowest campaign expense account.

Who will be the next President of the United States? Ask us something easy, when millions of women will vote this fall. The handsomest candidate perhaps has the better chance. Harding, the Republican nominee for President, will find in November that the country is in the grip of a thrift movement, for a good many will not waste a pencil mark on the ballot for him.

Saint Volstead, father of the Volstead dry law, was defeated for re-nomination recently. Looks as if he wasn't serving his constituents when he drafted the drastic amendment and had it passing.

The Harding victory is just as the bosses of the Republican party would have it. The Wall Street crowd is tickled to death. Wood had a millionaire backing him, but Harding will have a host of them. The two Roosevelt candidates were thrown out in the cold as completely as was La Follette.

Mr. Taxpayer! Are you willing to have a part of the $250,000 indebtedness placed upon your shoulders which the new charter authorizes? If only the hangman's rope could be placed around the neck of those who corner and control the necessities of life.

July Fourth was not a bad holiday for the Democrats after all. The firing of the Cox "nomination cracker" was heard in all quarters with delight.

Among the campaign cares of the Republican Presidential candidate will not be worry about moving into the White House. The cobbles are still between the street car tracks of the United Railways on the York Road and the officials of the railway company are still defiant.

George Washington, standing upon the high monument in Baltimore city, was equipped with a new lightning rod recently. The act was timely, as there are many things nowadays which would give George a shock.

Senator Johnson said he was making the race on a "shoestring." Investigation discloses over $200,000 expended for him in California, which is pretty expensive for shoestrings, even in these H. C. L. days.

The new President of Mexico is a trained tenor singer and at one time was employed in a bank. This familiarity with notes will be useful to the new executive when Villa again dashes over the border.

It would be rather hard to figure just how many days Baltimore has been without its Republican Mayor. Nearly every day the city newspapers have an article where he is either going or coming from a fraternal convention.

The Baltimore American does not seem to feel the "pinch" of the newspaper shortage, for ever since his nomination by the Republican Convention, Senator Harding has had his photograph published in all poses, attitudes and the like. Yes! a different one each day.

The Union-News boasted last week of the fact that Warren G. Harding, the Republican nominee for President, was reared in the school of hard knocks and that he began life as a "printer's devil." So did James M. Cox, the Democratic nominee, both being from Ohio, and both having about the same career, the result will be eagerly awaited to ascertain if one "printer's devil" is more popular than the other.

IS THE PRESIDENCY FOR SALE? Disclosures before the Senate investigating committee prove that the G. O. P. is still under the control of those "bosses" who adhere to the principle that it is "money that makes the mare go." No candidate for the Presidential nomination at the hands of the Chicago convention has escaped out of the investigation unscathed. The use of large campaign funds is confessed, varying from something under $100,000 expended for those candidates who have gathered only a handful of delegates, to the admitted expenditure of more than a million and a half dollars to "influence" delegates for General Wood.

Early in the fall of 1919 certain prominent Democrats warned of the Republican bosses plan to buy the Presidency, that immense funds were being raised to control the election. Recent disclosures prove the warning to have been both timely and justified. If such vast sums are being spent in the interest of furthering the claims of individuals in a party fight, what a flood of gold may the country expect to set released in an effort to sweep into the White House the abettor in this deluge of debauchery who survived the Chicago test!

THE DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATES. It is with popular satisfaction and pride that The Jeffersonian is today in a position to publish at the head of this column the names of the Democratic candidates who are to be "weighed in the balance" by the voters in Baltimore county at the coming general election, as we feel sanguine that none of them will be "found wanting."

The Democratic National Convention, in naming Governor Cox and Secretary Roosevelt as the party's standard bearers, made, we believe, the very best possible selections. Both are men of the highest calibre—men of learning, experience and executive capacity—who, if entrusted with power, may be relied upon to give the country the kind of an administration that is needed in these troublous times.

One of the refreshing things about the Democratic convention is that it was made up of free men. It was not a boss-ridden convention, but thoroughly democratic in all of its deliberations. While there was a lively fight over the platform, and also a sharp rivalry among the supporters of the various candidates, everything was done in "open meeting", and the sentiment of the majority expressed in a frank and orderly way.

The nomination of Senator Harding, the "dark horse" Republican candidate for President, was actually made by a half dozen of the "Old Guard" leaders who got together one night in a back room in one of the Chicago hotels. The next day the convention merely ratified their choice. Not so with the Democratic nominee. He was not a "dark-horse" candidate, but it was in the fight from the beginning, in the open, and won because two-thirds of the delegates assembled came to the conclusion that he was the strongest man the party could name for the high office of President.

The Democratic platform, formulated after lengthy sessions by the brainiest representatives of the party, ought to make a strong appeal to the voters of the country. Even Mr. Bryan, who wanted an out-and-out "dry" plank, and one or two other pet planks, said in opening the debate upon the floor of the convention that it was one of the strongest platforms ever promulgated by the party. Coming from Mr. Bryan, this is indeed good testimony, as The Commoner himself has been the principal architect of most of the Democratic national platforms adopted within the past thirty years. The platform fits the candidates and the candidates fit the platform. The Democracy of the nation is united and confident. While it is a bit early to make predictions, the prospects of success could not be better. So far as the local ticket is concerned it is difficult to see how it could be improved upon. John Walter Smith has for two consecutive terms rendered distinguished service for his State in the United States Senate. He is looked upon as one of the leading statesmen in the Upper House of Congress and the people of Maryland can do no better than return him as their representative there for another term of six years.

While Congressman Benson has served only one term, he has made good in every sense of the word, and richly deserves re-election. He has during the past two years given to his constituents in the Second Congressional District the very best that is in him in the way of public service, and it is confidently believed that a substantial majority of them will show their appreciation of his services by sending him back for another term of two years.
