"APPLE WEEK" OVERLOOKED IN WEEK THAT PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION WAS SETTLED

"An Apple A Day Keeps The Doctor Away" Was Slogan Decided Upon, But Never Used—Season To Be Put Over Big Next Year.

During the excitement of the National and State elections many persons have overlooked the fact that it was Apple Week. It has never been made clear by the promoters of Apple Week to what special use apples should be put during the six days of celebration; and it should not beforgotten that apples may be used extensively for cooking or for eating raw. Moreover, there are many other uses to which apples may be put, which today are only whispered about in polite circles. We can mention above a whisper such by-products as cider and vinegar—but some of the old timers remember the days when apple jack or "Jersey Lightning" as they affectionately called apple brandy, was a potent medium fo softening some of the rigors of a cold winter day. Then too, large quantities of fruit nowadays are dried in evaporators and exported.

But these things are beside the subject, if we accept the slogan of the Apple Week projectors: "An apple a day keeps the doctor away." Perhaps this is true—but is it an incentive to the doctors to observe such a week? We guess not—and there are a lot of doctors about, too!

The apple is truly a fruit for the seven ages of man. The boy thinks of it in terms of eating until there "ain't no core." The youth likees to give Grandpa a large rosy Been Davis, for example, and let its juice transform him into an arch reconteur, and he will tell you more tales about Blaady Angle and the Battle of Gettysburg, than Marshal Foch could tell about the Western front—provided the marshal is not eating an apple too! The bald-headed man of forty falls an easy prey to the spell of the apple. et his jaws crunch into the luscious juice of a Yellow Bellflower, for instance, and he can sell ice to an Eskimo!

In Baltimore county citizens of as many ages, sizes and shapes as the children who follow the Pied Piper of Memelin, glory in the potentialities of the Winesap, the juice of which must have prompted our forefathers to be the first to sign the Federal Constitution.

TYDINGS CONDEMNS BUREAUCRACY.

The tendency of Cngress to restrict the States in the regulation of their internal affairs by transferring thir powers to the National Government was condemned by Millard E. Tydings, Representative from the Second Maryland district, in an address before members of the Sisterhood and Brotherhood of Eutaw Place Temple at Temple Center, Eutaw Place and Lanvale street, Baltimore city.

Other speakers were Moses Wiesenfeld, president of the brotherhood; Leonard Hecht, Mrs. Joseph Wiesenfeld and Frank R. Kent.

During the last session of Congress Mr. Tydings said, more than 200 amendments to the National Constitution were proposed. Many of them were similar in character, he said, but they were all directed toward centralization of government.

The proposed Child Labor amendment was cited by Mr. Tydings as an illustration of interference with State's rights. He stated that if the people substitute Federal bureaucracy for natural parentage they will be creating a possible agency for tearing down the structure of Government.

The people are interested in reducing taxes, Mr. Tydings said, but if the National Government continues creating bureaus to spend money, tax reduction is impossible. Tax reduction, he asserted, itself is not nearly so imourtant as to stop the thing that makes high taxes.

DUNDALK GRIDMEN DOWN LANSDOWNE "TRIBE"

he Dundalk football team administered the first defeat of the season to the strong Lansdowne eleven in a stubbornly fought contest on the gridiron at Dundalk, 3 to 0. Although keeping the ball in their opponents' territory during most of the game, the Dundalk gridmen were unable to cross the goal line.

With four minutes to play in the last half and with the ball n the 47-yard line, Sullivan, of the Dundalk eleven, dropkicked the field goal that made the only score of the game, the ball sailing high and directly across the middle of the goal posts.

WOMAN SHIPS ON FREIGHTER AS COOK AND STEWARDESS.

Being chambermaid and cook on a tramp steamer is much preferable to performing the same duties in a house on shore according to Miss Anna Sodersten, stewardess of the steamer Eros, of Helsingfors, Finland, which has arrived off the county water front with a cargo of wood pulp.

Until six months ago she had been cook in the house of a Helsingfors burger ever since she was a young girl. Then, at 35 years of age, the monotony of the dull routine of cooking, washing dishes, sweeping and cleaning began to pall. Anna decided she must make a change.

She had read sea stories and the romance and dangers of the sea appealed to her. She decided to go sailing. Due to her sex she had a hard time finding a berth, but finally induced Capt. Alexander Lija, of the Eros, to ship her as stewardess.

This is her third trip and despite the fact that she has to cook for 22 men, and is the only woman aboard the ship, Anna likes the life.

In fact she declared that the rest of her life would be spent on the "bounding main." She said she likes "the sound of the waves beating against the bow" and that there is nothing in a landlubberly existence to compare with it.

Origin of "Struck Ile"~

WHEN James Evans, of Franklin, Pa., discovered the world's best lubricating Oil in his backyard well, in 1859, pandemonium broke loose. Almost at the same time, both illuminating and lubricating Oil had been found in unfathomed abundance. It can readily be imagined that the whole population of Franklin "went crazy" over the wonderful find. Business, school, housekeeping---everything was forgotten in the mad rush to see the well. And the mad rush was not confined to Franklin; all over the world the thought of vast wealth from a hole in the ground was capturing the hearts of the adventurous. ¶ That night a young man stopped at the Evans home. Miss Anna Evans, one of the blacksmith's daughters, met him at the door and cried: "Dad's struck ile!" The expression caught the popular fancy, was printed everywhere, and it will go down as an immortal characteristic of the early days of Oil.

Nowadays when a Kerosene buyer first tries The Red C Oil or The White C Oil, same except in color, he knows that he has "struck ile" better than he ever knew existed. It is beyond question the satisfactory, economical Kerosene you have been looking for, for your Lamps, Stoves and Incubators

The Red C Oil — A fine Kerosene colored red to brighten up your lamps

The White C Oil — A white Kerosene that satisfies; clear because it's clean

New Way to Stop Night Coughing

Those who have suffered the tortures of sleeplessness due to continual coughing at night, and who as a result often feel utterly worn-out and useless during the day, need no longer permit their systems to be weakened and their vitality sapped by this distressing ailment. For through a very simple treatment the trouble can be stopped almost at once, and people often get their full night's rest undisturbed after the very first trial.

Here is the method: Simply get a bottle of the prescription known as Dr. King's New Discovery from any good drug store. Then to-night before retiring take one teaspoonful and hold it in your throat for 15 or 20 seconds before swallowing it. This prescription has a double action. It not only soothes and heals the soreness and irritation, but it quickly loosens and removes the phlegm and congestion which is the real cause of the cough. So your throat is left wonderfully soothed and cleared of irritating gatherings, you can sleep soundly and restfully, and the cough is usually gone in a very short time.

Dr. King's New Discovery is a remarkable remedy for coughs, chest colds, hoarseness, sore throat, spasmodic croup, bronchitis, laryngitis and bronchial asthma. At all good druggists. Ask for
