BRIDGE

Cards were first played by the Chinese centuries before Marco Polo and other white adventurers visited the Orient. Late in the 14th century cards appeared in France after having been brought to Italy a century earlier.

Card playing is a universal game but Bridge is the American version of the English game of Whist as played the Crown Coffee House in London. Here occasional disputes brought about the establishment, about 1743 by Hoyle, of rules for playing the game, hence, "According to Hoyle".

I don't know much about the game but as I understand it, it is played with small pieces of decorated pasteboard which are equally divided among the four players. There are a lot of bids, tricks, trumps and tallies tangled up in it but the intrepid players always get across the bridge to the next table.

At the Great Lakes Exposition in Cleveland, Ohio, a few weeks ago, I saw a multiple hinged card that would answer many a bridge players dream for a king to make a spades in slam ground. It is the table game of games where brilliancy and boredom often face each other, exchanging ing bum plays for "over the glasses wisdom". The real romance of Bridge comes from the enjoyment of personalities when cards are used to take tricks if played at all.

I know one lady who attended about seventy-five bridge parties during 1935 and as a hobby made a collection of her tallies which show that she won nineteen prizes—her husband claims he nearly starved but he doesn't look it. While she still has the tallies, the prizes dwindled with the passing of the Xmas season.

The tallies run the gamut of style, size, color, design and scores in both auction and contract. Your present dealer plays one as well as the other. Once upon a time not so many years removed even the subject of card playing was taboo. Today few pieces frown on Bridge. Is this another indication of American trends?

Bridge is one of the leading indoor escape hobbies and while it no doubt eased many a depression evening, it certainly is not playing to the crowds it occupied two or three years ago. People are on the move again, looking for a new game. This winter will tell a new story about Bridge.

LAND BANK LOANS IN CECIL

Federal land bank and land bank commissioner loans made to Cecil County farmers from May 1933 up to July this year amounted to more than $707,000, according to a statement today from E. P. Crider, vice-president of the Federal Land Bank of Baltimore.

A total of 271 loans have been made in the county in the 3-year period since the Farm Credit Administration was organized. While farmers here and elsewhere in the State used most of the money to refinance their old debts into long-term loans, a larger proportion of loans is now going to finance the purchase of farms.

The Federal Land bank loaned Cecil County farmers $400,000 on first mortgages in the 3-year period, and loaned $306,600 from funds of the land bank commissioner on first and second mortgage security.

Commissioner loans, first authorized in 1933, were made in amounts not to exceed 75 per cent of the appraised normal value of the property. These loans were used almost entirely at first for emergency refinancing. The Farm Credit Act of 1935 authorized using them to refinance farm purchases with the idea that this would give many farmers, particularly young men and tenants, a better chance to buy farms. Experience, equipment, and a reasonable down payment are required.

Since the act was passed, Maryland farmers have obtained over $10,050,000 from the land bank and commissioner to assist in buying farms.

BACK TO NATURE

By UNA C. RANDS

Against the great tree trunk he leaned back his head.

"I'll go, for a rest, back to Nature," he said.

He closed his sad eyes, heard the leaves in the breeze.

"There's solace," said he, "in the voice of the trees."

But the ants, ticks and chiggers, and other bugs ran in his hair, down his neck, in a great caravan.

He lifted his head from the trunk of the tree, and regretfully said, "Nature came back to me!"
