

Forestry Department Institutes Suit

Elk Neck Rod and Gun Club Sued For Land For Park

The first condemnation suit ever instituted by the Maryland State Forestry Department was on trial before a jury in the Circuit Court at Elkton this week. It was instituted to obtain title to about 120 acres of land in the Elk Neck section of Cecil County, now owned by the Elk Neck Rod and Gun Club. Edward Fitch is secretary-treasurer of the club.

Located between lands owned on either side by the State of Maryland, the tract interferes, it is alleged, with the plans by the Forestry Division to establish a recreation park.

The large farm of the late Dr. William Henry of Philadelphia, in Elk Neck, was bequeathed under his will to the State of Maryland, for a recreation park, and the state has since acquired several more hundred acres in the same section for the same purpose. For the past two years a CCC camp has been located on the area owned by the state, and the company has greatly improved the tract. Numerous roads have been built as well as a number of buildings erected for housing the camp boys on the grounds.

It has been stated that the Forestry Department offered the Rod and Gun Club the sum of $5,600 for the land in litigation, but the organization refused to sell. Their land is improved by a fair sized frame bungalow.

William Pepper Constable, John D. Alexander and George Webb Constable of Baltimore, are counsel in the case for the State Forestry, and William J. Bratton of Elkton is representing the Gun and Rod Club.

Cutting Down Your "Cold" Bill

These suggestions come from the Nutritionist of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the Maryland State Department of Health:

"Winter Colds? Watch your diet! Of course proper diet doesn't cure a cold, but it can help to prevent one."

"All protective foods—milk, eggs, fruit and vegetables—are necessary to keep the body in good physical condition, but there are certain foods that are particularly important in maintaining a firm barrier against infection—those which contain Vitamin A."

"Vitamin A is the vitamin that helps to keep the lining of the nose and throat in good condition. It also helps to prevent bacteria from gaining a foothold and causing infection. We need some of that vitamin every day. We also need a good reserve so that our powers of resistance against infection are as strong as possible."

"Good sources of Vitamin A are: Milk, eggs, butter, green vegetables, such as spinach, kale, turnip tops; yellow vegetables, such as carrots and sweet potatoes; and cod liver oil."

"One pint of milk, three pats of butter, a serving of a green vegetable, and an egg, will give about the amount of these food each person needs in his diet each day."

"More time is lost in school and in work—which also means wages—from colds than from any other cause. The neglected cold often opens the way for more serious diseases, particularly pneumonia and tuberculosis."

"There is no evidence to prove that an extra amount of Vitamin A will clear up a cold after one has started. It is too late, then, to dose yourself with Vitamin A remedies."

"But you can help to protect yourself against colds by including the Vitamin A foods, regularly, in your diet."

"Try this way of cutting down your 'cold' bill."
