SENATOR ROE AND CONGRESSIONAL NOMINATION

That there is a plethora of candidates for the Democratic nomination for Congress from the First District of Maryland, of which Somerset County is a part, is a well-established fact. So much of a fact that perhaps not all of the voters have been able to keep up with the candidates and their filings.

Somerset is one of the nine counties comprising the First District that does not have a native son as an aspirant for the Democratic nomination. It does, however, have an aspirant for the Republican nomination in the person of State's Attorney F. Kirk Maddrix.

In the several Democratic candidates there is much to be said in favor of each.

If each of the several candidates were to give a frank statement concerning their record and experience, and their stand on the various problems—in other words, get some sort of a platform—such as did the Hon. Dudley G. Roe of Queen Anne's County, two weeks ago, the people might be in a better position to judge their respective qualifications.

Senator Roe's legislative experience, in our judgment, makes him unquestionably the outstanding candidate yet to announce for Congress in either party; and coupled with the fact that he has the endorsement of Democrats, not only in his own county of Queen Anne's, but throughout the First Congressional District, will have a great influence on voters who have not as yet made their choice.—Crisfield Post.

Planted acreage on National Forest lands will pass the million acre mark this spring. January 1, 1940, it stood at 946,574 acres, including 131,707 acres planted in 1939. In the last 5 years the U. S. Forest Service has been able to make use of considerable relief labor, particularly CCC workers, and the forest plantings have averaged more than 160,000 acres a year. This yearly average is greater than the total of the planting before 1935, about 140,000 acres.

On the average it takes about 950 trees to plant an acre—about $12 an acre.

With a million acres planted, the Forest Service estimates there are still about 3 1/2 million acres in need of planting on the National Forests, primarily because fires have destroyed the forest cover, leaving no seed trees of natural reproduction.

"Without the full purchasing power of the farmer, industry and the rest of the country are thrown completely out of gear"

Says HOWARD BRUCE

"I will start by saying that I do not know the answers to the farm problem, and after following the efforts that have been made for its solution during the past ten years or more, I am convinced that no one else is very sure of the answers. I do know this—that the farm problem not only concerns the farmers and those closely associated with farm activity, all of whom constitute somewhere near a third of our population, but it really concerns the nation as a whole, FOR THE NATION CANNOT PROSPER UNLESS THERE IS A FAIR BALANCE BETWEEN THE PURCHASING POWER OF THE FARMER AND THE REST OF THE COUNTRY. I DO NOT believe in a "do nothing Policy", and I do not believe the relationship between the farmer and the rest of the country can be left entirely to nature and the law of supply and demand"

If this is the type of man you want to represent you

Vote for HOWARD BRUCE
Candidate for the Democratic Nomination for U. S. SENATOR

Published by authority of Charles H. Roloson, Jr., Treasurer Bruce for Senate Campaign Committee.

BRUCE READY TO ANSWER QUESTIONS

Declaring himself ready to "answer any questions anyone wants to ask me and tell where I stand on anything," Howard Bruce, candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator, recently stated his position on sixteen of the major issues facing the country and challenged Senator Radcliffe, his rival to do likewise.

"Of course, I oppose our entry into the European war," said Mr. Bruce, in reply to the first of the list of questions submitted both candidates by the Maryland Democratic Club of Balto. "I hate war. It is a foul revival of barbarism, uncivilized, uneconomic, immoral, and destructive of human and cultural relations."

Mr. Bruce said that he was an ardent supporter of adequate national defense, and was in complete sympathy with policies enunciated by Secretary of State, Cordell Hull.

"So far as my personal attitude is concerned," said Mr. Bruce, turning to the relief problem, "it has been repeatedly expressed to the effect that, until we can get these people back in private employment, it is our duty to see that they are supported; and I have further stated on more than one occasion that we should not stint the amount of relief."

Mr. Bruce said he did not think social security payments or insurance payments are adequate.

Getting the unemployed back into gainful employment, was said by Mr. Bruce to be the "No. 1 problem" of America today. "This country has almost unlimited natural resources," he said. "It has vast latent consumer demand. It has the capital and it has the labor."

"I believe that if we could get these elements of our country temporarily to set aside their selfish interests and all work for one objective, with the hearty cooperation and assistance of the Government," he said, "we would quite quickly get back to a normal condition of employment and prosperity."

The American workman is the safest in the world.

This, according to the National Conservation Bureau, accident prevention division of the Association of Casualty and Surety Executives, is a result of the continued improvement of safety devices installed by American industry to protect their workers against injury or death and the large extent to which safety education is carried on in plant and factory.
