

an outward Door or Window to escape with a process - but if he find the outer Door open and entreat that way, and the Door be opened to him from within if he entreat he may break open inward doors if he find it necessary - that this rule must be confined to the case of arrest in civil suits only. For where a felony hath been committed and dangerous Wounds given or where a Minister of Justice cometh armed with process founded on a breach of the peace; the Party's own House is no sanctuary to him.
In these cases the Justice which is due to the public must supersede every pretence of private Inconvenience - In every case, if an Officer enter a house to serve any warrant the doors being open if the Doors are locked upon him, he may break them open to regain his Liberty Burns 1 of P -