C 0 7 0

1869-1870 Cooper Morris Kensington Letters

AS 1994

SIDE TWO

and leaves but little time for what maybe considered the everlasting calls of friendship.

After I wrote Dear, for some months, I did not gain much ground, but in November on medical man some me permission to be Brighton, as he thought change of air might improve my general health. We stayed there a month, and this I think has turned a turning point as ever since I have gained strength, and with the exception in the house during the winter, I am now, by taking a seat in the afternoon, nearly free from pain, and only troubled with occasional difficulty in passing the water &c. The medical men whom I have consulted, now think that there is no formation of stone, but that there has been a severe ulcer, which has left some injury in the parts about the bladder. I have this month had several visits to the Lab, without much inconvenience, and hope as the fine weather comes on, to get more out into the open air.

I must not forget to mention the receipt of your son's cards announcing his marriage, which I trust will be favored with blessing to himself and her. I forwarded the packets addressed to my brothers. We are now