What Agricultural Colleges Should Be.

The true schools for the primary, usual instruction in the mechanic arts, and for learning any special trade, are the workshops of the country. They are the most accessible, the most simple. Does a young man really wish to learn to handle saw, or chisel or plane, these are the practical schools, these are the practical teachers. They are all about him just where they are wanted, in every city, in every hamlet. For that primary work—the learning the usual uses of the usual tools—no other schools can compare with them.—Multiply your present endowments by thousands and you cannot supersede the work of these primary industrial schools, almost within a stone's throw of the hearth of every man. If you attempt to do it, you will fritter away your educational resources, and add probably, one poor shop to the millions of good ones.

The same is true of agriculture. For instruction in the simple fundamental processes of farming, the schools are the farm. They are spread all over our country. They are ready to receive all young men who seriously wish primary training in agriculture. Even though the farm be poor, even though the processes be rule, that is the necessary preliminary school. It is accessible; it enables the young man to pay his way; it enables him to get time, if he be thoroughly in earnest, to profit by the common school, the book and the newspaper. Rudimentary instruction as to impliments and processes, can be got nowhere else so well. None other can supply the demand.

Multiply your endowments for agricultural education by millions, and you cannot meet this demand. You cannot supersede these myriad farm schools in every valley and on every hillside. Attempt to do it, and you fritter away your endowment, and simply add one poor farm to the myriads of good ones. The same is true in regard to the sciences and useful arts in general. The places for preliminary instruction are the public schools—They, too, are scattered through our State, almost literally within the sight of every household. Every year the State gives millions to them. Thank God for it.—Pardon me for saying that, if there is one thing in my life on which I shall never cease to reflect with gratitude, it is that beneath this roof I have the honor to introduce and report the bills which made these schools free, and which establish the new normal schools to make them effective.

But while thus honoring primary education, I insist that it is folly to waste the special endowments of institutions for advanced instruction in agriculture and mechanic arts in attempting to duplicate or supercede these primary schools. What then, should the colleges for the promotion of agriculture and the mechanic arts attempt to do?

I answer: They should take young men where the farm, the workshop, the common school leave them; young men who have already received a good, sound knowledge and experience in the simple, usual processes of agriculture, and on that they should build, making them master farmers; thoroughly versed in science bearing on agriculture; thoroughly trained in the art bearing on agriculture; trained by studies of nature to use their powers of observation; trained by study of science to use their powers of practical reason; trained by study of both sciences and arts to bring these powers of observation and reasoning to bear on impractical questions. Having learned much of the usual processes of farm, they should be made to investigate the new processes to find the facts or fallacies in them. They should be made to study, not merely the plow and plowing, as they could easily study them without stirring from their fathers' farms, but the very best theory and practice of ploughs and plowing, of enrichment of soils, of drainage of lands, of rotation of crops, of construction of buildings, of breeding of animals, and the like.

With these should also be taught the principles of accounts, so that the student would know, not merely the farming, which a millionaire might play at to deplete his fortune, but the farming which a thrifty settler might work at to increase his fortune. I would let no man graduate until, in addition to thorough examination in pure and applied science, he had gone out on the farm with two experienced agriculturists and had passed a plain, thorough, common sense examination in practical agriculture, answering their questions how this field was treated, and why; what labor was employed on that field, and with what economic result; what he would recommend for the other field, and why; and so on to the satisfaction of the special committee.

You may by these methods send forth every year a brood of apostles of improved agriculture which shall be better scientifically, practically and economically; apostles who shall develop agricultural virtues and fight agricultural vices; whose farms shall be centres of new and good ideas; fortresses against quackery. We are not to establish a reform school, nor an intellectual almshouse. We should take sound, manly, capable young men, where the farms, the shops and preliminary schools leave them, and give them back to the country, strong to develop and increase the resources of neighborhoods, States and nations.—[From Address of President White, of Cornell University.

Ox Cheek Soup.—Break the bones of the cheek and wash clean. Put two tablespoons of butter in a large stewpan and lay the cheek in, with the fleshy side downward; add half a pound of lean ham, sliced thin, two carrots, three onions, three heads celery, and one large parsnip, all sliced small; set over a slow fire and cover with cold water, and simmer gently for four hours. Strain off the soup, rubbing the vegetables through a seive. Scald two ounces of vermicelli, and boil ten minutes in the soup. Serve the soup and remove the check as whole as possible; garnish with bite of carrot saved from the soup, and some toasted bread cut into squares, with soup poured over it for gravy. Ox cheeks and tails can be purchased at a cheap rate at any butcher's, and they furnish a very palatable and nourishing dinner.

A Very Fine Sponge Cake.—The weight of four eggs in sugar, and the weight of two more in flour. Beat the whites of the six eggs to a stiff froth; stir the yolks and sugar to a frothy cream; put together, stir briskly, sift in the flour, a little at a time, and stir just enough to get the flour in, and no more. Put in a round cake tin, with tube in the centre; bake in a quick oven. It rises very light.

☞ An exchange lets fly the following: "Pulverized alum and common salt put on a piece of cotton and chucked into a hollow tooth will shut up its aching so quick you will want to hug us for telling you; but you can't unless you have a certificate of good moral character, are a married woman, and over twenty-five.

Medical.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhoea, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

Tile! Tile! Tile!

FARMERS, if you would improve your farms, and make good crops, without the expense of buying fertilizers for every season, TILE YOUR LAND, especially your low springy land. It is impossible to make good crops, or to improve land, without thorough drainage. This is the season for putting in tile. Every farmer should try a few acres. The expense is trifling in comparison with the advantage gained. Try it.

COOPER & WHIT, Easton,

Have on hand a large supply of egg-shaped TILE, from 2 to 7 inches vent, which they are offering cheap.

They also have on hand half a million common and pressed handmade BRICK, which they are selling at the lowest market prices.

All necessary information given for putting in tile. Wood taken in trade.
