THE EASTON STAR.

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 3, 1885.

T. K. ROBSON, Editor.

L. JEFF. MILBOURNE & CO., Newspaper Advertising Agents, Baltimore, Md., are authorized to contract for advertisements for THE STAR, at our best rates.

GOV. MCLANE has appointed Mr. William H. Wright, of Cockeysville, a county commissioner for Baltimore county, to fill the vacancy in the Board caused by the death of Mr. Parlett. Mr. Wright is a successful merchant and farmer.

PRESIDENT ELECT CLEVELAND has kept his own counsel since his election, and now only a month before his inauguration, the public knows no more of his plans than before Nov. 4th. Who are to be members of his Cabinet is still a mystery, and will probably remain so until March 4th.

HALL'S Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer imparts a fine gloss and freshness to the hair, and is highly recommended by physicians, clergymen, and scientists, as a preparation accomplishing wonderful results. It is a certain remedy for removing dandruff, making the scalp white and clean, and restoring gray hair to its youthful color.

Dynamite in the U. S. Senate.

Senator Riddleberger, Mahoneite, is the only dynamiter in the United States Senate. On Monday, the 26th of January, there was a lively discussion in the Senate on the late attempt to blow up the English House of Parliament, and a resolution passed strongly condemning the nefarious dynamite business. Mr. Riddleberger was the only Senator that opposed and voted against the resolution.

A LETTER appeared a few weeks ago in Justice, a paper published in New York, from Gen. Benjamin F. Butler, reviewing some of the most important treaties which the United States have made with foreign powers, and according to the General's view of it, our diplomacy has been nothing to brag of, we having invariably been worsted in treaty making, more especially when we have made reciprocity treaties, some of which we have had to abandon in self defense. The General has not a high opinion of the reciprocity treaties lately made by President Arthur.

THE present has been a hard winter in Texas. In the northern and central parts of the State there has been heavy snows, and very cold weather; hundreds of cattle have been killed by the cold, and the people have suffered terribly. Such a cold winter was never before known in Texas, and the people were not prepared for it. The people there might put up stoves and furnaces to warm themselves, but to build sheds to house the millions of cattle and sheep in Texas would be an expensive business. They can better afford to lose a few thousand cattle of a winter than to build sheds and provide feed for them. Generally the winters are so mild in Texas that stock needs little attention.

Fire at the Capitol.

Just before the House of Representatives assembled at 11 o'clock on Monday morning of last week, one of the cupolas or domes on the South wing of the Capitol was discovered to be on fire. Sparks from one of the chimneys had lodged in the dome and set fire to the platform which supports the flag pole. Considerable consternation was created by the alarm that the Capitol was on fire, and many supposed the fire was in the Library. The only damage done was the charring of the platform and lower part of the flag pole. The fire was extinguished soon after it was discovered by policemen and firemen carrying up to the dome buckets of water. Uncle Sam run a narrow risk of having a big conflagration.

THE LATEST FROM THE SOUDAN.

Gen. Stewart Gains Another Victory Over the El Mahdi Rebels.

News from Gen. Stewart have at last been received in England. He had another heavy battle with the rebels near Metemneh, on the 19th of January, killed 1,800 of them, and put the balance to flight. Gen. Stewart was unfortunately wounded in the thigh, and disabled from command. His army has passed the desert and reached the Nile. The English loss in the two late battles was small; the rebel loss was 3,000 killed. Queen Victoria has promoted Brigadier General Stewart to a Major Generalship. Gen Stewart is now in communication with Gen. Gordon by steamers on the Nile. Gen. Gordon's condition at Khartoum is nothing like as desperate as reported. He says he can hold the place against the rebels any length of time, and has plenty of supplies and ammunition.

How to Tame a Husband.

A New Jersey woman has discovered a new method for taming a husband. This particular woman's husband was a Justice of the Peace, and a club man, who spent most of his nights away from his family, attending secret societies, he said. She had her suspicions that he was inclined to hanker after some other woman besides his wife. Her persuasions to keep him at home of evenings having failed, the happy thought struck her that he might be kept in by rubbing croton oil in his under clothing. She tried it with the most satisfactory result. When he moved about, the oil caused an intolerable itching; when he remained quietly at home, the itching ceased, and he was comfortable. He called in the doctors to cure his trouble, so that he might frequent his old haunts; but they could not diagnose the case, and consequently could not cure him. In the mean time his wife was so delighted with the turn of affairs, and was so full of happiness, that she had to tell her fellow sufferers—the wives of other men in the neighborhood who were addicted to clubs. Instead of quietly trying the croton oil on them, they told them the virtues of it, and threatened to use it if they did not reform their habits. The secret passed around until the other woman who was interested in the unfortunate Justice of the Peace got hold of it. Of course she promptly enlightened her friend as to the cause of his trouble. Then there was a rumpus in the family of the Justice of the Peace, a quarrel, a separation, a suit for divorce, and a suit for alimony. The latter suit brought out and made public the facts in the case. Then there was a general laugh at the expense of the unfortunate J. P. In the mean time there has been such a demand for Croton oil in Jersey that the price has gone up ever so high, and the manufacturers of the article are making money so fast, that they have been compelled to double the capacity of their factories. If secret society and club married men should be attacked with a mortal itching hereafter, they will understand the cause without the expense of calling in a doctor.

IF the incoming Democratic administration is to be a success, it must be apparent to every Democrat that there must be unity of action among Democrats in Congress, touching the policy on all public measures which will be determined on by the President and his Cabinet. Those who are Democrats must vote on the administration measures as Democrats; if they cannot so vote, they should at once go over to, vote with, and be classed with the opposition. The party ought not, and will not tolerate any longer, the rival factions in the House of Representatives. We have had a Randall faction, and a Carlisle faction, a Morrison faction, a free-trade faction, and a protective faction long enough. It is time now to sink all of these factions in utter oblivion, and to set up a Democratic party in Congress in their stead, which shall act and vote together. The free-traders at present cannot get all they want; neither can the protectionists. Mr. Randall cannot have everything to his way of thinking; neither can Mr. Carlisle, nor Mr. Morrison. Each will have to concede something to the other, and thus meet on middle ground, where the whole party can stand in solid column in support of the administration measures. If this is not done the forty democratic majority in the House will amount to nothing; rather, it will but serve to distract and defeat the success of the Democratic administration. The Republicans will no doubt be ready enough to form combinations with any, or all of the Democratic factions to advance or retard special general measures, but such overtures from the enemies should not be heeded for a moment by any Democratic member.

Before the meeting of Congress next December, the administration will have ample time to determine on its policy; when it is announced, it should receive the support of every Democrat in and out of Congress. We have every confidence in the wisdom of the measures that will be proposed; and we know that they will be such as shall be considered by the President and his constitutional advisors, the best for the good of the country. Because they may not meet the extreme views of some theorists in Congress, is no reason that those theorists shall oppose them. There must be a head to the party, and there must be a leadership in the House, to represent the administration. When the administration measures are proposed, and the leadership is announced, then let every Democrat yield his support of the programme, and stand or fall by his party and its proclaimed policy. If this is not done, and every talking man in Congress aspires to leadership, and oppose this or that as his individual fancy may dictate, the Democrats in the House will be nothing but a disorganized rabble, and will forfeit the confidence of the country and damn the administration before it is warm in its seat.

There is a vast difference between an opposition and an administration party. While in the opposition, Democrats might pitch in whenever and wherever they saw an opening in the Republican breastworks, and there was no great necessity for severe party discipline, as to public measures, for the reason that the responsibility of administration rested on the dominent party. But to shape the policy of an administration party, altogether different tactics are required. Measures must be proposed in the spirit of harmony; they must be such, and such only as the most deliberate consideration of the best minds in the party deem important for the welfare of the people; and all such measures should receive the support of the party united. They would then go before the country on their merits and the character of the party, and not as the mere notions of this or that individual member of it. Aspiring men may make more personal reputation by putting through the measures of their party than they can by attempting to foist their own special notions on Congress; for in the latter case, they will always be sure to find, even in their own party organization, other aspiring men ready and prepared to antagonize them. Hence, we argue that it is best for aspiring Representatives in Congress, aspiring politicians out of Congress; it is best for the Democratic party; and it is best for the country, that all Democrats should pull together when the new administration is organized, and resolve to stand or fall by the measures it shall propose. With a Republican Senate to oppose the good that may be proposed, it may not be possible for the Democrats to secure all they could desire; but when the people approve the measures proposed, and see a united Democracy battling for their establishment, and a united Democratic press arraigning the Republican party for obstructing measures needful for the country's prosperity, it will not take the people long to revolutionize the political complexion of the United States Senate, and plant the Democratic banner over every department of the government. Honest measures, and honest battling for the right by a united Democratic party, will be sure to be rewarded by the approval in the end of an overwhelming majority of the people of the states.

A Bad Railroad Smash-up at Jersey City—Twenty-Three Persons Injured.

There was a dreadful accident on the Bound Brook line—Philadelphia & Reading Railroad—at Jersey City last Friday morning. The express train left Philadelphia at 7.30 o'clock, and arrived at Jersey City at 9.30, with some 70 passengers on it. Just before the train reached the city, some of the running gear gave way, which caused the cars to sway violently. About 50 feet from the station there is a switch on the east-bound track; 70 feet further on, 50 loaded coal cars were standing on the track, between the east-bound track and the bay. The locomotive and tender passed the switch all right; the next moment the forward passenger car bounced the track, and broke the coupling between it and the tender. When the train reached the coal cars, it plunged into them, smashing up the coal cars and passenger cars alike. Twenty-three passengers were taken from the ruins in an unsensible condition, but fortunately all revived, and no one was killed. The disaster was a bad one, but fortunately not as bad as it might have been.

The Dynamiters at Work in New York.

The dynamiters have broken ground in New York. They blew up a large dry goods store there last Saturday night, and damaged another. The clerks of the wrecked house were on a strike. The fiends are getting uncomfortably near, and ten to one they will be operating in Washington on the 4th of March. It is about time that the manufacture and sale of such explosives as dynamite were controlled by the government. No one should be allowed to handle, transport, use, import, or export it without a permit, under a heavy penalty.

PRESIDENT-ELECT CLEVELAND has lately invited Hon. Samuel J. Randall and Speaker Carlisle, to Albany for consultation. Mr. Randall went first; when he returned to Washington, Speaker Carlisle visited Mr. Cleveland. It is said that the object of the President-elect in inviting these distinguished leaders of the House to a consultation, was to obtain their views on questions of public policy, and at the same time to effect an understanding as to the best means of expediting the passage of the appropriation bills before the 4th of March, so as to avoid the necessity of an extra session of Congress. Mr. Randall and Mr. Carlisle represent the opposing Democratic factions in the House of Representatives, and if Mr. Cleveland can reconcile them to abate somewhat their extreme opinions and co-operate for the general good, he will accomplish much, even before his inauguration, in smoothing the way for the success of his administration. The result of the consultations has not yet transpired, and of course there is much speculation in political circles concerning them, some supposing that they had reference to the personnel of the Cabinet, which is not at all likely, only in an incidental way. The politicians are fast finding out that Mr. Cleveland is no lightweight, to be tossed about by the Congressional gladiators. He does his own thinking, keeps his own counsel, listens to and considers the advice of his friends, forms his own conclusions, and will do what he deems best for the welfare of the country and good of the Democratic party. Such a man when he becomes President, will not be apt to commit mistakes.

The Beauty of Youth.

No matter how handsome or stalwart a young man may be otherwise, nothing can make up for a partially bald head. Shining talents are attractive, but a shining pate is not. The cause may be sickness or anything else, yet Parker's Hair Balsam will stop the loss of the hair and start a new growth of glossy and soft hair so quickly as to surprise you—restoring the original color at the same time. Not a die, not oily, delicately perfumed. Only standard 50c. dressing.

A Model Funeral Sermon.

A week or two ago Michael McGowan died from wounds which he received in a street quarrel at Syracuse. His funeral was conducted by Father Moriarity of that city, who, standing over the corpse, made the following remarks:

"As you live, so shall you die, is an almost infallible rule. If you lead a truly Christian life, you may well hope to die a truly Christian death. If you lead an unholy life, you may expect to die none other than an unholy death. The mere presence of a priest during your last moments, and the hurried reception of the sacraments, divine though they be, will never secure your soul's salvation unless you have the proper dispositions. If you have not the requisite dispositions during life, how can you expect to have them at the approach of death? Strive, therefore, to live in a Christian manner by avoiding evil company and places of low resort, and by being faithful to your moral and religious duties, so that you will not find yourselves unprepared if suddenly summoned before the tribunal of Jesus Christ.

Do Not Trifle.

Do not trifle with a cold, thinking it will pass off in a few days, but get a bottle of DuLac's "Swiss Balsam" and see what a few doses will do for you. Affords relief in every instance. Quick, safe and reliable. Price 25 and 75 cts. Sold by all druggists and dealers.

A Hint to Parents.

Parents are your children subject to croup? DuLac's "Swiss Balsam" is a specific in croup, and is perfectly harmless. Contains no morphine or opium, and pleasant to take. No child will hesitate to take it. Sold by all druggists and dealers.
