THE EASTON STAR.

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 7, 1886.

T. E. ROBSON, Editor.

J. JEFF MILBOURNE & CO., Manchester Avenue, Fulton, Md., are authorized to contract for advertisements for THE STAR, at our lowest rates.

A LITTLE coterie of clergymen in St. Louis have assumed to set in judgment upon and denounce the American Opera, which is now in course of performance in that city. They had not seen it, but the fact that a ballet was advertised as a part of the performance, was enough to rouse their righteous indignation, and they denounced it in public indignation meeting, as some of our clergymen have denounced Gov. Lloyd for doing what he considered to be just and proper in granting a nolle prosequi. But the St. Louis preachers' meeting had the effect simply to advertise the opera and swell the attendance, as our indignatius meeting will doubtless have the effect to strengthen Gov. Lloyd with the people instead of injuriig him. Intemperance of spirit is about as bad as intemperance in eating and drinking. It might be as well, if those who preach the gospel of peace and love and kindness among their fellows, would curb their ill tempers and refrain from stirring up strife around them.

WHEN the tariff comes up in Congress for revision, as it should this session, and as it will, is the tariff reformers are persistent in forcing the matter, the Democrats from agricultural districts should insist that manilla hemp be put upon the free list. The cord used by the cord binders for harvesting wheat, is made outt of manilla hemp, which pays a duty of $25 per ton. The quantity of this cord used in this country now amounts to 40,000 ton annually, and the business is rapidly increasing. The quantity consumed will doubtless soon be doubled, as the business of making cord binding harvesters is only in its infancy. These machines are so important to farmers, that very soon every farmer in the country must have them. The duty now paid on the 40,000 tons of manilla hemp amounts to $1,000,000. This is an unnecessary tax that the farmers should be relieved of. The treasury does not need the money, and there is no sufficient reason why the tax should not be abated. Grain is extremely low, and it is with difficulty that farmers who depend alone on gaowing grain for their prodts can make both ends meet at the end of the year. The tariff taxes the farmers more than other classes of people, because they are the great consumers of the country. Considering the present low price of grain, Congress should as far as possible relieve them of every item of taxation which goes directly to enhance the cost of production. Any one can see that a tax of $1,000,000 on the cord used by their harvesters is an odious and oppressive tax. There can be no justification for continuing it.

FIFTY or sixty years ago, ministers of the gospel drank whiskey, and members of the christian church both drank and trafficed in the article. Now it is considered by preachers and some others, most wicked to do either. We should like to know whether or not the moral law has been changed on this subject within the last fifty or sixty years? And if it has been changed, who changed it? Or, if the present generation is right about this matter, were the christian fathers who organized the American church, and built it up, and sustained it, all mistaken in their religious experiences? Or were they arrant hypocrites? It occurs to us that from what we have read about our religious fathers, they were about as good as the present generation, if they did drink and sell whiskey. If the Savious was not mistaken about the loud praying, selfrighteous Pharisees, it is not always that those who make the most noise in professing morality are the best people. We believe that every thing made by the Creator was made for a good purpose, and may be properly used without sin. It is in the improper use of a thing, good in itself, and designed for a good purpose, that sin consists. Moral laws are unchangeable. If a thing was not morally wrong a hundred years ago, it is not morally wrong today, and cannot be made so by the denunciations of preachers or others. People equally conscientious and equally intelligent may differ about a moral question, and both may be equally honest in their convictions; but it does not make the thing wrong because one set of people denounces it any more than the other side can make it right by upholding it. The contention will not in the least affect the moral quality of the matter. Hence people of sense are not apt to be influenced in their judgment by popular clamor, often instigated by those who act solely from prejudice, and without capacity to measure the merits or demerits of the matter in dispute.

PEOPLE should understand that the House of Correction penalty for selling spirituous and fermented liquors is not the local option law, and no part of it. Local option laws are those the people adopt by a majority of the popular vote at the polls. Our House of Correction penalty law was never submitted to popular vote, for which reason a great many people who voted for the local option law are opposed to it. Had it been submitted and adopted like the original law, it would have been acquiesced in cheerfully as the original law was. But it was a "rider" put upon the law that very few voters of the county had any thing to do with. If it had been submitted to a popular vote, it would have been rejected by a very decided majority, for the reason that the State prison penalty which the law provides for selling liquor in violation of law is in excess of the character of the office. It is the general opinion that a $300 fine and imprisonment in jail until the fine and costs are paid is severe enough, and that a State's prison penalty for the offence was onerous and oppressive. The idea of sending two men to the House of Correction for six monts because of the sale of a bottle of beer is simply monstrous. The time was once when hanging was the penalty for petty larceny, but the common sense and christian sympathies of the English law makers ameliorated the penalty to imprisonment. The next step the Prohibitionists may take will be to demand hanging as the penalty for violating a local option law. In what respect does this law differ from any other law? It is no more sacred than other laws. If a man violates it, he simply breaks the law, and is amenable to the penalties of the law, just as he would be, if he committed a breach of the peace by striking his neighbor. There appears to prevail a sentiment in some quarters that the local option law is more sacred than any other law; but this is altogether a mistake. We do not blame the Messrs. Martin or anyone else from trying to escape the penalty of an unjust and oppressive law, and when backed by as strong a petition as was laid before Gov. Lloyd, we believe the Governor perfectly justified in extending executive clemency in pursuance of the constitutional power granted to the Executive. We believe these views to be sound, and after the people have time to recover from the excitement of the moment, they will come to the conclusion that the Governor did the proper thing in granting the nolle prosequi in the Martin cases. It will have the effect of teaching the more considerate and well meaning of those who have denounced the Governor that it is possible to press even a good thing too far, and that excess of zeal even in a good cause may result in a reaction, that may result disastrously. Of course we do not expect any change of tone hereafter on the part of Republican leaders who are running the machine to make political capital. Their business is to make votes for their party, and are ever ready to catch at every straw that floats upon the surface.

The Comptroller and the Governorship.

So many newspapers and people in the State having advocated the nomination of Comptroller J. Frank Turner for Governor, Mr. Turner has been forced either to permit himself to be made a candidate, in response to the popular demand, or declare himself not a candidate. It is doubtless very gratifying to Mr Turner to have his friends propose him for so distinguished an honor, but he could not consistently allow the matter to go beyond the range of compliment, when he was not a candidate. We have known all the time that Mr. Turner was not a candidate for Governor, much preferring the office of Comptroller for another term to the office of Governor. This is why the STAR has not given aid in pressing his candidacy, as we do not consider any office should "be forced on a man against his consent." Knowing what was being said about it, one of the editorial staff of the Baltimore Sun has interviewed Mr. Turner on the subject, and announced the result of the interview in last Saturday's Sun. "Mr. Turner says," says the Sun, "that he is not a candidate for Governor. He says he is glad that his administration of the office of Comptroller has been complimented, and if his preferences were to be consulted in the matter, he would much prefer to remain in his present position, and continue the financial policy which has been endorsed by the people of the State."

"DOC" WILSON'S secret is out. He says he is the legitimate son of P. L. Moen, the eldest son of Mr. Moen's first wife, and was born a few months after Moen married his mother. Because Moen was a deacon in the church he did not want the premature birth of the child exposed, and therefore gave the infant to one Jonas Wilson, of Danielsonville, Conn., to bring up, and from whom he took the name of Wilson. He says his name is not Wilson, but Levi Moen; that Jonas Wilson told him the secret of his birth just before he died; and he soon after commenced to bleed Moen for thousands, and kept at it until he got $250,000 out of the old millionaire. Moen says Wilson's story of his birth is a lie, and nobody would have believed it, but for the fact that Moen gave Wilson much mony not to publish his secret.

An Opportunity

not to be lost sight of. Before the end of the year, take a trip to Acme Hall, Baltimore, Md., The Glass of Fashion, 209 West or 17 East Baltimore street, near Charles, and inspect the first class stock they are offering for the balance of this year at the prices cheap stock are sold for everywhere. No more suitable or useful presents could be made than one of our Suits, Overcoats or Trousers for Men, Boy's and Children, nor could you find a more appropriate gift at this season.

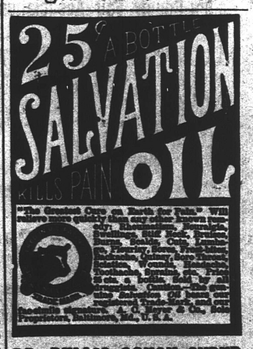

A dispatch from London says the Bulgarians are seriously meditating the election of an American to the vacant Bulgarian throne. The Harford Democrat says, the American Prince the Bulgarians are hunting for lives in Bel Air, Harford county, Maryland, and when elected will be crowned "William the Conqueror." It is to be expected that he will take over with him a large collection of Harford county Princes, for exhibition and general utility purposes, including the editors of the Democrat and Ægis.

No matter how gray the hair may be, Nattans' Crystal Discovery will positively restore it to the original color. No poison, no sediment, no shaking. Take nothing recommended in its place. There is no other preparation in the market that can take its place. Let your Druggist order it.

Mr Lewis Cass Smith, once Speaker of the Maryland House of Delegates and afterwards President of the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal, died at Hagerstown, Md., last Sunday week, aged 48 years. Mr. Smith was known as the "Lone Star" being the only democratic member of the House from the north-western counties of the State in the session of 1875.

Mr. F. Rentschler, San Francisco, Cal., contracted a severe cold, and became so hoarse he could not speak. He tried a number of remedies without benifit, and even the efforts of two physicians failed to give the slightest relief. He was induced to try Red Star Cough Cure, one bottle of which entirely cured him.

AT LAST.

Seeing the necessity of a Flour and Feed Store in Easton, the undersigned has the assurance to try the experiment. We propose to make a specialty of it alone. Having an experience of some 40 years in the business, we think we can safely say that we can supply the demands of this community. We will keep at all times Flour of the best grades manufactured in the United States at close prices. Buying direct from the manufacturer, we are prepared to offer inducements never before met with.

Also, Bran, Brown Ship, White Ship, Sifted Meal, Chop, Cotton Seed Meal, Oil Cake Meal, Farina, Prepared Wheat, Wheaten Grits, Graham Flour, Hominy, &c. We are also in condition to handle choice Cecil county Hay, bought from first hands.

We will shortly put upon this market a brand of Flour, to be known as the "Pride of Easton," manufactured expressly for us.

A call solicited at the
