THE EASTON STAR.

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 4, 1888.

S. E. WHITMAN, Manager.

THE second session of the 50th Congress begun yesterday. It was expected that the President's message would be sent in at once, and that it would be an able State paper.

ACCORDING to the most complete returns, President Cleveland has a majority of at least 80,000 on the popular vote, and yet through the electoral college system, Harrison is a successful competitor.

ANOTHER racing record has been broken. This time it is the long distance go-as-you-please walking and running 6 days contest. The winner is Geo. Littlewood of England, who is now the champion, having made 623 miles at Madison Square Garden last week.

THE late oyster war on the Chptank has caused our State officials to go to work to prevent another such occurrence. They have secured cannon from the war department, and have placed them on the police boats. If there is to be any forbidden grounds for dredgers they should be securely protected, but if they cannot be properly controlled, either the dredgers should go or the grounds opened to all. If either, we agree with Gov. Jackson, and say let the dredgers be refused license for a term of years. At any rate have the law enforced.

He was selecting presents for his girl before Christmas. He bought an amber comb, a box of caramels, and a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, and showed himself thereby a right sensible dude.

'Enterprises of great pith and moment' are so engrossing the minds of men, that they will neglect their own affairs, and grow old with pain, forgetting that a bottle of Salvation Oil will cure all.

The December Century.

The Century for December, if not strictly speaking a Christmas number, is still a Christmassy number, opening as it does with a frontispiece picture, 'The Coming of Winter,' by Mary Hallock Foote, and containing also a number of full-page engravings of sacred pictures by the old and little known Italian master, Duccio, in the Gallery of Italian Masters which is now one of the most valuable features of The Century. In addition to these there is a western story in verse by James Whitcomb Riley entitled 'Last Christmas Was a Year Ago' and still further a Christmas editorial.

A striking feature of this number is furnished by two articles on Henry Ward Beecher's memorable appearance in England in 1863, in advocacy of the cause of the American Union.

But the two contributions to this number of The Century having perhaps the highest importance are the installment of the Life of Lincoln entitled 'First Plans for Emancipation,' and the paper by Mr. Keenan in which he graphically describes 'Life on the Great Siberian Road.'

In this number of The Century is the first of the stories of Irish-American life, by Mr. George H. Jessop. It is entitled 'The Rise and Fall of the Iron Rights.'

In the same number of The Century is a timely paper on 'The Reorganization of the British Empire,' by Mr. George H. Parkin who wrote the recent article on the educator, Edward Thring.

Henry James writes with full knowledge and critical enthusiasm a paper of which the pregnant title is 'London,' which paper has running accompaniment of drawings by the well-known artist, Joseph Pennell.

Mr. F. Hopkinson Smith describes and illustrates some of his sketching experiences in Mexico, under the head of 'A White Umbrella in Mexico.'

The 'Topics of the Time' are 'Christmas,' 'Progress of Ballot Reform,' 'Should there be an "Aristocracy of Criminals?"' and 'A Confusion in American Party Names.'

Who is Nellie Bly?

The following extract from an interview with Mrs. Gen. Grant by Nellie Bly, printed in the N. Y. World, October 28th, will show who Nellie Bly is:

'I was somewhat nervous about my visit to Mrs. Grant. I only knew of her as the wife of the famous general; the successful hostess for eight years in the White House; the woman who had, in making a tour of the world, been received as a queen in every civilized land. Would any one wonder, then, at my apprehension, when women of so much meaner light so often try to parry all attempts at approach? But I was wrong.

'"My son tells me," Mrs. Grant said with a pleasant laugh, after greetings had been exchanged and she had drawn me by the hand to a chair and seated herself on a lounge most cordially near, "that Nellie Bly is a little swamp——"

'"Oh, no, no," I broke in, but holding up her finger playfully, she continued:

'"That, not being content with exposing the Blackwell's Island Insane Asylum—yes, and benefitting it wondrously—and exposing Phelps, the great Albany lobbyist, she needs must go to Central Park and allow herself to be 'mashed,' and then tell all about it in the World, so that now none of the men dare wink at a girl while out driving, lest she be Nellie Bly."

'"Why, that's a shame." I replied, and we both laughed, I fear not altogether in pity of the men.'

Nelly Bly's first article will appear in the January number of Godey's. Be sure your subscription is sent in on time, to get this issue. Always address Godey's Lady's Book, Philadelphia, Pa.

The December St. Nicholas, 1888

The Christmas number of St. Nicholas is a veritable Santa Claus pack in the way of good things for young folks reading; stories, sketches, jingles, poems, and riddles. They may find in it a humorous account by Mr. Frank R. Stockton of 'The Curious History of a Message,' or, if they wish to have a glimpse of a Christmas in a foreign land they have only to read Professor H. H. Boyesen's account of 'Bicaps Grimland's Christmas Vacation'; or, again, if the hearty merry-making of old England is more to the taste of the young readers, they may not only read, but also reader, Mr. Charles A. Murdock's play, 'A Sixteenth Century Christmas.' The author of 'Little Lord Fauntleroy' also begins a new story in this number. A new candidate for the favor of St. Nicholas readers is introduced in this number,—Mrs. Mary Hartwell Catherwood,—the opening chapters of whose serial story, 'The Belle of Ste. Anne,' will at once enlist the reader's interest in the adventures of her young Canadian hero and heroine. Mrs. Holman Hunt, the wife of the English artist, contributes a story, 'The Silver Heart; or, Faithful Leo.'

The statement having been made that this is the Christmas St. Nicholas, it follows as a matter of course that the illustrations, the pictures, the jingles and the departments do not fall short in this issue of the standards which St. Nicholas has always maintained.

CIRCUIT COURT FOR TALBOT COUNTY.

Proceedings November Term, 1888.

MONDAY, Nov 26.—Court met, present Judges Stump and Wickes and same officers.

The Grand Jury came into court with the following report, which was read and the jury was discharged with the thanks of the court:

REPORT.

To the Honorable Judges of the Circuit Court for Talbot County:

GENTLEMEN—The Grand Inquest for the body of Talbot county at the November term of the circuit court for said county, after returning thanks to the Honorable Court for their kindly aid, to the State's Attorney for his ready response to our call, to the clerk of the court and his deputies, the sheriff and the bailiff for the assistance given us in the promptness with which the duties pertaining to their several offices have been performed, beg leave to submit the following report:

We have had before us 150 witnesses, have examined 60 cases of which 16 were for violating the local option law, 18 for assault and battery, 7 for larceny, 5 for illegal dredging, 4 for drunkenness and disturbing the peace, 2 for house breaking, 1 for disturbing public worship, 1 for keeping a gambling table, 1 for intimidating a voter, 1 for resisting an officer, 1 for carrying concealed weapons, and 1 for corrupting and intimidating a witness, from which we have made 32 presentments and 16 true bills.

We have visited the jail and found it clean and apparently well kept and the health of the prisoners properly cared for. We found confined 16 persons as follows: W. E. Wilson, white, crazy, Andrew Johnson, colored, crazy, Sally Sherwood, colored, crazy; Phil Gibson, colored, serving out sentence; Frank Cuff, colored, charged with assault with intent to kill; Artemus Brown, colored, charged with horse stealing; Joseph Dickinson, colored, charged with assault with intent to kill; Wilson Smith, colored, same; James A. Payne, colored, charged with violating local option law; George L. Warner, white, charged with same; John Gorman, colored, serving out sentence; J. W. Prettyman, white, awaiting sentence; W. J. Wilkinson, white, awaiting trial; James Stapleton, white, charged with violating local option law; two Indians, Joseph Long and Charlie Moore, charged with housebreaking. In the case of W. E. Wilson we recommend that he be sent to Spring Grove Hospital; and that Andrew Johnson and Sally Sherwood be sent to the county almshouse.

We have examined a large list of witnesses whose names were sent in by different parties in reference to the local option law and have been unable to find any one that knows any violation of said law other than those recognized.

The necessary legislation having been obtained already to enable the county commissioners to establish a place to 'lock up prisoners' at Oxford and St. Michaels we would urge upon them the necessity of its receiving their earliest attention as a place of this kind is badly needed at each place.

We would recommend that the following persons have license granted them to sell spirituous liquors in District No. 4, in quantities not less than one pint: R. J. Barwick, Wye Mills; John A. Morgan, near Hillsboro; Wm. Joseph Callahan, Cordova; J. M. Beaven, Cordova; James Laing, Longwood; Henry Zeigler, Longwood; Kilby Calloway, Skipton; James A. Plummer, Chapel; Chas. F. Lucas, Chapel; W. A. Walls, Lewistown.

The testimony taken before us tends to show that the so-called Literary, Musical and Social Clubs are a nuisance to the community and a device for procuring and dispensing alcoholic drinks in violation of the law, and refusals to rent property, and every effort to suppress them and prevent their incorporation ought to be made to maintain the peace and good order and morals of the community.

Having now finished all business brought before us, and investigated all violations of the law that have come under our notice, we beg to be finally discharged.

All of which we respectfully submit.

R. J. DAWSON, Foreman.

High License in New Jersey.

The high license law is interesting the voters of New Jersey in a peculiar way. A correspondent relates that in Newark they are building a $40,000 school house out of the proceeds of high license, and at the same time have not half as many 'saloons.' In Paterson the proceeds of high license are used to pave one of the principal streets, and the law has brought in $31,000 to be used for that purpose. Jerseymen are proverbially thrifty. If once they discover that high license will build school-houses and pave streets for them, it will be useless for their politicians to struggle against the law.

A correspondent writes to ask a question, as follows:

Will the Herald tell me whether tariff reform is to be given up now that the Republicans have their innings?

Why, bless you, no. Dr. Cleveland inoculated the patient and the virus 'took' powerfully. The doctor was discharged, to be sure, which was an easy thing to do, but who can get the virus out of the system?

It is bound to work, and there is no power on this side the blue sky that can stop it.—N. Y. Herald.

Emile Ollivier's History.

Emile Ollivier (the "light-hearted" Premier of Napoleon III) will probably complete by the end of the year his great work on the war of 1870, and of which he recently said: "Two follies, dangerous in their consequences, have taken hold of people's mind; the first, that liberty ruined the empire; the second, that our army was weighed down by superior numbers. I shall demolish these two fallacies and I shall especially point out that our misfortunes, were due to a lack of commanders and not to the greater strength of the enemy. The Germans have said this long ago, but in France it does not appear to be recognized —Philadelphia Ledger.
