PRESIDENT HARRISON has been out duck shooting down the Chesapeake bay and bagged several fine birds. When he looked at one of the dead ducks, perhaps he did not realize that it was a type of his own political condition.

OLD LADY JUSTICE, after an absence of several years, has returned to New York city. The condition of affairs there no doubt appalled her, but the old lady, in her good-natured way, went about righting matters up. If her stay in the city is a protracted one, Gotham will be pretty well ventilated in the several departments of government. The old lady is a good one to have around, even if she is a mother-in-law.

CERTAINLY if the editor of the Gazette will read the platform and pledges adopted by the Democratic Convention held in Baltimore Sept. 26, 1889, we think our brother will find something in the resolution about a general high license for the State. If the editor of the Gazette will read the platform of the Republican party adopted last year, adroitly, he will, we think, find an endorsement of high license by the convention.

THE TREASURERSHIP.

It will soon devolve upon Governor Jackson to appoint a Treasurer for Maryland. As possible candidates are being urged and put forward, we take pleasure in recommending to the consideration of Governor Jackson the name of our fellow-townman, Hon. J. Frank Turner. We are sure that his appointment would give satisfaction to the people of the State. He has as supporters not only his many friends on the Eastern Shore but some of the ablest and most successful financial and business men of the State and in Baltimore city. We learn from one of our Delegates that had the question of the Treasurership been left to the Legislature Mr. Turner would have stood an excellent chance of election. We hope that his chances are not lessened by leaving the selection to the Governor.

STEVENSON ARCHER A DEFAULTER.

Had a calamity befallen the community it would have cast no more gloom over our people than did the news which the papers brought here on Thursday. State Treasurer Archer is a defaulter to the State in a large sum of money, was on every one's lips. The news was reluctantly believed at first, but each day brings new developments in the case. More news and worse news comes with each mail, and all doubt is removed that Mr. Archer has misappropriated the State securities for private purposes. The people of this county have always held Mr. Archer very high in their regard, and a reflection on his character or on his integrity would have been promptly and emphatically resented by those of us who know him. To know him was to esteem and respect him. No man in the State stood higher in the opinion of his countrymen, none enjoyed the confidence and support of the people more than did Stevenson Archer. The high positions of honor and trust that have been bestowed upon him and filled by him with credit and distinction, raised him above reproach and suspicion and placed him beyond temptation. But, alas! in an evil hour, perhaps at an unguarded moment, he yielded to temptation, shame and disgrace followed. He fell in dark temptation's hour to rise no more. His name will no more be the household word of hundreds of homes in the State. It will be whispered instead of proclaimed; it will trail along the pages of history like a by-word. The man of whom Maryland was once so proud and whom the people delighted to honor is but a past recollection. His star has faded and fallen at a time when least expected.

Had he been ambitious, he would have been vain. Had he been extravagant, he would have excited suspicion. Had he been intemperate or of a speculative mind, public opinion would have been aroused against him, but none of these vices was Mr. Archer heir to, so far as the world and his associates knew. His mild, easy, quiet manners drew around him a score of friends wherever he was known. Though he has fallen, the kindest feelings are felt for him and those that concern him. In this hour, when dishonor rests upon him, we feel that it is but another evidence of the frailty of man.

The fine gold-weighing scales made in Philadelphia and intended for the mint at New Orleans a few years ago, are marvels of mechanical invention and expert workmanship. The larger of the two pair has a capacity of 10,000 ounces troy, or about 686 pounds avoirdupois, and when loaded to its full weighing capacity will indicate the variation of the one-thousandth of an ounce. The other and smaller pair are intended for lighter work. All its bearings are of the finest agate, which have been ground with remarkable precision. This instrument is believed to be the most delicate in the world. It will give precise weight of a human hair, and is susceptible to the slightest atmospheric changes.

"A Bishop's Surprising Expressions."

EDITOR OF THE EASTON STAR: Permit me a space in your valuable Journal for this article.

"Bishop Paret of Maryland, a Bishop of the Episcopal Church, gave expression to these remarkable sentiments at a business men's prayer meeting in Baltimore:

"'Why is it that the field of religion is left to woman?' To my mind there is one reason patent among others, and that is that monstrous perversion of God's Gospel known as the revival system. It teaches the idea that before men can worship God they must be worked up to some intense emotionalism, or go through some convulsions of feeling, &c. On account of this pernicious idea I have seen some of the saddest fruits.

"'I remember a certain member of the Supreme Bench of the United States, now dead. He was a learned man, but had gotten the idea of emotional religion in his head and died without being baptized or confirmed. I pray God he will be forgiven for the error into which he had fallen."

The above is from the New York Sun, and has gone the rounds of most of the papers.

In his anxiety to demolish the "revival system," the Bishop does not hesitate to sanction what his own Church has always considered a "pernicious idea;" viz., praying for the dead: for, in speaking of the learned Judge of the Supreme Court of the U. S. who "had gotten this idea of emotional religion into his head," he says, "I pray God he will be forgiven for the error into which he had fallen."

The Bishop condemns the "revival system," "intense emotionalism," "convulsions of feeling," and, in fact, pronounces such dispositions of heart and soul as "pernicious."

Because a man has never felt the power of God working in his soul, because he has never experienced the manifestation of the Holy Spirit, producing intense emotionalism, because he has never enjoyed the "revival system," it does not follow that these do not exist. Such testimony is merely negative. If 500,000 truthful men should assert that they did not believe in revivals, that they had never experienced intense emotionalism, and knew nothing of experimental religion, their assertions, being negative, would not weigh against the assertions of 50 truthful men who should affirm positively that they had felt the power of God in their souls, and had experienced the revival system, which had produced in them "wonderful convulsions of feeling." But, instead of fifty truthful men, there are more than five millions of Methodists, besides millions of Baptists and others, who would not hesitate to make affidavit that the revival system is a glorious reality; that they have experienced the presence of the Holy Ghost, which produced most "intense emotionalism" and wonderful "convulsions of feeling" in them.

The "revival system" is Biblical; what were King David's views on this subject? Ps. li., 10—"Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me." Ps. lxxxv., 6—"Wilt Thou not revive us again, that Thy people may rejoice in Thee?" What was the opinion of the prophet Isaiah? Is. lvii., 15—"For thus saith the high and lofty One that inhabiteth eternity, Whose Name is Holy: I dwell in the high and lofty place, with him also that is of a contrite and humble spirit, to revive the spirit of the humble and to revive the heart of the contrite ones."

Emotion is defined to be "a moving of the mind or soul;" "intense emotionalism" is, therefore, a most earnest moving of the soul. Is not love to God intense emotionalism? We love whatever gives us pleasure and delight, and if our hearts are right we love God above all things as the sum of all excellence and all the attributes that can communicate happiness to intelligent beings. "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind;" can this be done without producing intense emotionalism?

There must be emotion in experimental religion, "the revival system." John xiv., 21, 22—"He that hath My commandments and keepeth them, he it is that loveth Me; and he that loveth Me shall be loved of My Father, and I will love him and will manifest Myself to him, and We will come unto him, and make Our abode with him." John vi., 63—"It is the Spirit that quickeneth." Rom. viii., 11—"He that raised up Christ from the dead shall also quicken your mortal bodies by His Spirit that dwelleth in you." Rom. viii., 16—"The Spirit also Itself beareth witness with our spirit that we are the sons of God." Eph. iv., 16—"That He would grant you, according to the riches of His glory, to be strengthened with might by His Spirit in the inner man." Eph. iv., 19—"And to know the love of Christ, which passeth knowledge, that ye might be filled with all the fullness of God."

Read the second chapter of Acts, for there you will find the "revival system" fully exemplified. On the day of Pentecost so great was the "emotion," and so powerful the "convulsions of feeling," that many who did not experience the feeling mockingly said, "These men are full of new wine." But the Apostle Peter said unto them, "These are not drunken, as ye suppose; but this is that which was spoken by the prophet Joel: "And it shall come to pass in the last days, saith God, that I will pour out My Spirit upon all flesh; and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, and your young men shall see visions, and your old men shall dream dreams; and on my servants and on my handmaidens I will pour out in those days of My Spirit."

Love is an emotion, a feeling; "He that loveth not knoweth not God; for God is love." The Bible is full of the "revival system;" and to those who enjoy experimental religion; who feel the manifestation of God's power and presence, and experience the witness of the Spirit, the cheering words contained in Hebrews iv., 15—"We have not an High Priest which cannot be touched with the the feeling of our infirmities," are most precious.

Reedy, has filed a bill in the Circuit Court asking that the will be declared void. She charges that her husband was of an excitable temper and that his brother and sister took advantage of this to incite him against his wife and make a will in their favor.

Battle with a Madman.

From Milford, Mass., the news comes that H. W. Eames had a desperate battle for life last Friday morning. His antagonist was W. F. Reynols, an insane patient over whom he was keeping watch. The struggle lasted for a full hour and the wreck that accompanied it showed how violent had been the combat.

The madman first attacked the keeper with a brick that he had kept concealed, and the two men grappled and a deadly struggle followed. Lamps were shattered, tables broken and doors wrenched from their hinges. Eames is a powerful man, but two or three times he felt as if he must succumb to the madman's frenzy. He finally succeeded in securing the patient on a bed. Eames is so badly bruised that he now moves about on crutches. Reynolds at the time of the struggle had two sharp knives hidden in medicine bottles, but was prevented from reaching them by the plucky fight made by the keeper.

Sad Fate of Three Brothers.

A dispatch from Binghamton, N. Y., dated March 27th, says: About 11 o'clock last night a safe was blown open in Parker's coal office by men whose work showed them to be accustomed to the business, but no booty was secured. The men killed at Red Rock last night were supphsed to be the ones by whom the burglary was committed, but it was afterward learned they were not. They were three brothers named Deidrick, John and Henry Backefeld, of New York.

On December 30th last Henry disappeared and after detectives failed to trace him his brothers resigned their positions and devoted their entire time to his recovery. They found him somewhere in the West, and the three were returning to New York when they were struck by the passing train and huried against a freight train which was passing and which prevented them from hearing the express, one of the fastest on the road. The bodies were all horribly mangled and death in each case was instantaneous. The men had in their possession a large number of letters and sufficient photographs to fill a cigar box.

Drink by Buttermilk.

Lactic acid, which is not far off from the beverage commonly termed buttermilk, has been doing the peptic wonders, it is announced. A good many people who are "out of sorts" with liver troubles might try the buttermilk cure direct, without waiting for an illness to have it prescribed for them. Especially old and feeble people derive benefit from the churn's surplus.—New York Telegram.

Betrayers of Christ Created.

When the ceremony of washing the feet is performed in the Greek church at Smyrna, the priest represents Christ, the twelve apostles being acted by as many priests. WARRANTING FIREARMS.

An Interesting Suit Showing the Responsibility of a Dealer in Rifles.

A sportsman has recovered £1,000 damages from a firm in London for breach of warranty as to a rifle purchased by the plaintiff. The case was settled in court, after the plaintiff's case had been opened and a certain amount of evidence called, by the defendants submitting to a verdict of £1,000 and costs. The result of this compromise was that certain interesting issues and legal points in the case were not threshed out. What those points were will be seen from a sketch of the cause of action.

The plaintiff is Mr. F. Hallowell Carew, a gentleman on the sunny side of thirty, and possessed of considerable private means. He has gone in freely for sport since attaining his majority; he has figured in the pigskin between the flags, and in 1888 he bethought himself of that reputed sportsman's Eden, Southeast Africa, and its resources of big game. The defendants are Rowland Ward & Co., the naturalists and taxidermists of Piccadilly. Mr. Carew, prior to starting on his African trip, visited Messrs. Ward's establishment and took some lessons in skinning animals.

In the course of conversation with Mr. Ward he mentioned that he contemplated obtaining his rifles from Holland's, the well known gunmakers, and one of the Ward firm thereupon volunteered to him that they could supply him with the weapons which he would need, of equal quality to those which he could obtain at Holland's, but at half the price. Mr. Carew accordingly consented to deal with them, and ordered from them the rifles which they suggested for his own use, together with the five-and-twenty Sniders for the use of his African native staff; he also bought his ammunition from the defendants.

The rifles were delivered to him, the invoice being made out in the name of the defendants. He then took the rifles down to Nuthead to test them as to sighting, and on that occasion, and not previously, according to his evidence, the name of some third party as the manufacturer of them was mentioned to him by some one speaking on behalf of defendants. The trial with the rifles satisfied him; he fired from the one which was the cause of action about ten trial shots. He did not personally inform himself as to the charge which he used in the trials; but it seems that he used ammunition supplied by the defendants, and similar to that which he was taking from them for his use in Africa.

In due time Mr. Carew sailed for Zanzibar, and started up country, spending about £1,000 on his trip. Before long one of these rifles burst in his hands, causing him most serious injury, maiming him and disfiguring him more or less for life. His left hand is permanently crippled; powder has burned into the skin of his face, and his hearing has been impaired by the explosion. His trip was, of course, spoiled by the catastrophe, and the outlay upon it was wasted. It appears that he had fired the rifle which had burst some dozen times after he reached Africa. On the occasion of the accident it was loaded with a cartridge supplied by defendants. An expert examination of the burst rifle disclosed the cause of its weakness. The hole for the extractor pin had been in the first instance bored into the wall of the barrel.

The workman had then plugged the hole with steel wire and had rebored the hole. The effect of this boring had been to make the barrel defective in strength, leaving only one-sixty-fourth of an inch of metal where there should have been one-eighth. The explosion was due to this defective workmanship, according to the expert evidence of Mr. S. B. Allport, the celebrated gunmaker, who is also chairman of the Birmingham proof board.—London Field.

The Telephone in Germany.

The telephone service is admirable, as is testified by the public appreciation, there being over 10,000 instruments in use in Berlin. There are no private telephone companies in Germany, the telephone, like the telegraph, being a branch of the postal service. The price for telephone service is low, the annual charge for an instrument being 120 marks, or something less than $30. The long distance service between the principal cities of the empire is being rapidly introduced. A telegram received for a person who has a telephone is at once delivered orally from the central office, and the written message then forwarded by the local post. Likewise a telegram is transmitted by the sender to the telegraph office by telephone. The telephones in use are manufactured by Siemens & Halske, the great electricians, and are said to be a great improvement upon the Bell patent, upon which they are based.—Cor. Mexican Financier.

A Permit for Smoking.

Nowadays Germany might well be called "the smokers' home." Every German has his pipe and can smoke whenever he will, and within certain limits wherever he will. There are no restrictions against the use of tobacco, and one's desires in that direction are only circumscribed in particular places—such as churches, lecture rooms, opera houses, etc. But at one time in certain parts of Germany a man dare not walk on the street or highway with a pipe in his mouth without special permission so to do, for which permission he paid a yearly stipend.—Buffalo Commercial.

The Importance of Occupation.

There is nothing that adds more to the zest of life than an interesting occupation; even if it means hard work, there is a recompense in the enjoyment of well earned rest. No work ought, however, to be overpowering or so exhaustive that one's energies fall below their aspirations. On the other hand, no life is so thoroughly wretched as one where the necessity and desire for work is entirely wanting; and this is particularly true of persons of education and intelligence who allow themselves to fall into that unsettled condition of mind where nothing is of interest.—Herald of Health.

J. PRICE KIRBY,
mar25-4t Assignee.

HANNIBAL, No. 2191.

Sired by the great Woodford Mambrino, No. 249 (known as "the Bull Dog of the Turf").

Dam—Lady McKenny, the dam of Nil Desperandum 2.24, sire of De Barry 2.19¼, Matchless 2.24¾. Also dam of Colonna, sire of Captivia 2.24¼, Motor 2.27¼, Colossus 2.27¾.

Hannibal's sire and dam are both producers, not only in the first but the second generations. Gen. Tracy, Secretary of Navy, in his article to the Turf, Field and Farm, has proven without dispute that Woodford Mambrino sired a greater percentage of 2.30 horses, with greater uniformity than any horse that ever lived, and his sons and daughters
