Anticipate Things

If you carry life insurance, it indicates forethought. Evidently you believe in protection; in safeguarding your family and yourself. You anticipate the inevitable and are prepared for it.

This recognition of a vital obligation is universal among thinking people. Strangely enough, however, many of these same people neglect or postpone an equally important duty; that of selecting a memorial to bear the family name. Is this true of you? and if so, why?

Have you ever visited a memorial dealer who could show you about seventy-five different designs to choose from? Do you realize the great advantages of seeing the actual memorial of your choice before paying a single cent.

At Maurice E. Newnam's you may select the actual memorial you prefer . . . you do not buy from pictures or drawings.
