High Tides Stops Traffic

Easton—High tide is furnishing a traffic hazard on the causeway to Dover Bridge on the Preston-Easton route. With high water flooding the road cars stalled and had to be pushed to dry ground, one car drove into the water and ran off the road. Since the tide can not be lowered the causeway will need a build-up.

A Parent Wouldn't Fail Princess Anne—A heroic dash into his burning home after two firemen had been driven back by smoke and flames resulted in Oscar Wilson rescuing his two-year-old son from an upstairs room before fire virtually destroyed the dwelling. With the parents away, three children were in bed when awakened by smoke. The older pair ran out; the youngest was left in the crib. After the firemen were turned back Mr. Wilson groped his way upstairs, found the crib empty, but heard the child cough in a back room almost over the blazing

Fox Invades Town Pocomoke—A small rat terrier and a rabbit hound proved a deadly combination when they double-teamed a twenty-pound fox in a chicken yard and killed it. The dogs followed Mrs. William Mills as she investigated a racket in the yard and jumped the fox that had invaded the city limits. The hound grabbed reynard by the tail, the rat terrier got a throat hold and the fox's tale became a short and sad one. Bologna Squash Hebron—A squash fifty-four inches long, two or three inches in diameter and as crooked as a boa constrictor was picked by Wood Bradley, local farmer. The squash, a Japanese variety, has a long, tubular shape and green surface and the specimen picked had looped from a fence around a chicken coop corner. The farmer was watching his men fill the silo when the accident occured. A rough tourniquet made by tieing string around the arm prevented too much loss of blood. Grisly Find For Diggers Denton — Workmen excavating on Randolph Street to install a sewer line uncovered eight human skeletons, said by Dr. Dawson O. George to have been overlooked when a cemetery at the point had been transferred many years

No Market For Sweets

Pocomoke—Buying of sweet potatoes on the lower Eastern Shore by the Federal Surplus Commodities corporation failed of its purpose in bolstering prices for sweet potatoes, says market observers, and many growers are barely breaking even or withholding their products. The government buying for relief distribution, paid $1 divided into 90c for growers and 10c for handling. Despite these purchases the general market for sweet potatoes has bogged down to stagHow's About Trying To Take Out The End?
