OUR COUNTY POLITICS.—In our last issue we announced the names of the gentlemen selected to be the standard bearers of the party in the coming campaign, and we now propose advancing some reasons why all good citizens should, irrespective of merely personal views and considerations, rally zealously and cordially to their support.

Once on a time a painter of celebrity painted a very handsome picture, and called in his friends to criticise and to strike out what might be blemishes in the work. The first was delighted with the picture, but with a brush at hand daubed out a particular feature which to him seemed objectionable. The second visitor pronounced it to be admirable but struck out a portion of the landscape which he thought spoiled the general effect. And when finally the unfortunate painter revisited his studio, he found that while all were agreed in declaring his painting a great work of art, he was without a picture for the reason that every-body had some fault or other to find with it.

So it is with the Democratic party in Dorchester to-day. All parties are agreed in saying that the ticket is equal as a whole to any ever put forth in the County, while at the same time one says he objects to this and another to that nominee, and if the objections of all were sustained we would not have one single man left on the ticket.

We hear rumors of an independent ticket to be gotten up by disappointed candidates and to be supported by the radical party, but for our part we do not believe a word of it. That our radical enemies are endeavoring to inflame the wounded feelings of gentlemen disappointed at the result of the deliberations of the Convention, and that they would gladly support any one so lost to all sense of his duty as a citizen as to come out in the present crisis on an independent ticket, we know perfectly well But that any gentleman who in this question of life or death to the Republic has enrolled himself under the banners of the Democracy, can have so little sense of what is due to himself, to his neighbors and to his country as by his action cause a fatal breach in the party ranks and throw the County into the hands of the worst portion of its citizens, we will never believe until the evidence is palpably before us.

Is any man prepared to say that his interests are superior to those of the party, or that he is a better judge of whom the ticket shall consist than the Convention of the Democracy? If every individual of the party who feels himself or his friend wronged by the Convention, is in good conscience at liberty to disregard its action, has not every bad man who without any claims chooses to set them up & then howls because they are disregarded, a justification for his conduct! And in either case, is not the action of both, stripped of its varnish, the bare naked selfishness of disappointed ambition?

Let not gentlemen deceive themselves. If they in defiance of the plainest dictates of duty and in their blind desire to revenge themselves on individuals, should come out in opposition to the ticket as it stands in whole or in part, thereby inevitably breaking down the integrity of party organization and paving the way for radical supremacy, they must be prepared to forfeit the opinion of honest men and lose those very friends who before the nominations were made most cordially and warmly supported them.

We submit that it is better for any one man to remain in private life and steadily and faithfully as a good citizen vote for the opponents of radicalism, than for him to cause strife in the party simply because the party would not give him the office he wanted. Thousands, hundreds of thousands of American citizens from the cradle to the grave battle manfully in the ranks without ever asking for or receiving office, simply because they are good citizens and honest men, and are not traitors like Arnold of the Revolution who sold his country because Congress would not make him a Major General. If there are those who are bent on having office and did not get one this time, let them pick their flints and try it again—all things are free in the Democratic party.

Rather than bickering and strife and heart burning about the paltry offices, let us all remember what took place one year ago. When all the good men of the County with one mind stood firm under the Democratic flag. When hundreds and hundreds of our best citizens passed a sleepless night in eager watch for news from the Districts and mortal apprehensions of the result, and then in the gloom of a chill November morning embraced each other and almost wept with unbounded joy, for the baneful yoke of our enemies was not again, as promised, fastened upon us. It is good for us to think of these things.

For the Cambridge Chronicle.

Corrected Reminiscences.

Mr. Editor.—In your extract, and comments upon the contents of the Cambridge Chronicle of 1824, you have fallen into one or two mistakes, which this communication is intended to correct. In the first place I was not a candidate that year. At that remote period caucus, or conventional nomination for office, had fallen into disrepute. This was accomplished by the evident abuse, and corruption practised in the nominating conventions; and from the boiling of the political cauldron at this day, the same condition of things, probably is not far in the distance.

As before remarked, I was not a candidate in 1824, although in the Chronicle of that date, my name appears as such. By some partial, but unknown friend, I had been, without my knowledge or consent announced as a candidate for the House of Delegates. Mr. Rubins Pitt a talented young lawyer of this town, was already in the field. Immediately upon the announciation of my name he withdrew from the canvass, and wrote me a very flattering letter, sustaining me for the position. At that time, I was a very young man, just commencing my professional career, and was both unable and unwilling to engage in political life; and therefore declined the honor intended. This the year of 1824, as you doubtless know, was the first contest between Jackson, and Adams for the Presidency; and in which contest Adams was successful.

Up to the termination of the administration of Mr. Monroe, in twenty four, the two great National parties of the Country were federalists and Democrats. Mr. Monroe having been elected his second term without opposition in 1820, deemed it a favorable opportunity to obliterate old party lines. In this he was sustained and backed up by Gen. Jackson's celebrated letter, advising him to appoint to office indiscriminately both Federalists and Democrats, being governed alone, by the fitness and qualifications of the applicants for office, without regard to their political antecedents.

Mr. Adams & Gen. Jackson both claimed to be Democrats, and the contest for the Presidency was about to be renewed in 1828. Acting upon this theory, the obliteration of old Party lines, there was a mass meeting called of all the friends of Mr. Adams of both the old political organizations to meet in Cambridge, for the purpose of consultation, and reorganization of Political Parties. The result of the deliberations of that mass meeting was the nomination of a County Ticket favorble to the reelection of Mr. Adams to the Presidency of the United States. To my utter astonishment, and I had liked to have said, dismay, my name was placed upon that ticket as a candidate for the House of Delegates of Maryland. In order to accomplish what has already been foreshadowed, the reorganization of parties, Mr. Thomas I. H. Eccleston, Mr. Martin L. Wright of the old Federal Party and Mr John N. Steele and myself of the old Jefferzonian Democracy, were nominated, and ran upon one and the same Ticket, as Adams men. Do not my quondam friends of the present day, whose capital stock in some instances at least, mainly consists in being a life long Democrat, be startled at the announciation of my being and continuing to be, a democrat from my boyhood, and early manhood, until these old parties were swallowed up by new issues. I was educated in that school of State rights, and strict construction of the Constitution of the United States, and in all the mutations of party, and the thousand and one issues, which in the long lapse of time have divided, and agitated the Country, and upon which good men and wise men have differed, I have never lost sight of the old land marks so clearly laid down by Jefferson. Monroe and other of our revolutionary fathers. Asking pardon for this digression, and to return, we were opposed on the other side by Matt Hardcastle, Dr. Jackson, Joe Ennals and Levin Keene, two Democrats, and two Federalists, all Jackson men. The result of that campaign was the election of three of our ticket and the defeat of one in our County and the triumphant election of Gen. Jackson to the Presidency of the United States.

I here pause to record one melancholy fact. With the exception of myself, all of us who composed these two Tickets, and who so ardently engaged in that heated contest in 1828 with our great captains Adams, and Jackson, are dead and gone, and I alone remain. Not only so; but every man who took an active part in that great mass meeting of which I have spoken, is also dead and gone to their dread account. This is a most sad commentary upon human ambition, and upon human life. Verily "our breath is in our nostrils" and "life is but a hand's breadth"

One word personal to myself. My Political life has been a long and somewhat an eventful one. I have much to be thankful for. I have been uniformly sustained at home, and in many a heated contest. The people have like a wall of stone, stood by me.

I have always tried to do my duty, and flatter myself, I have done the State some service My record is now made up, and is before the Country, and upon that Record I am willing to be judged.

Very respectfully yours,
FRANCIS P. PHELPS.

A poor toper, as a last resort for more drink, took his Bible to pawn for liquor, but the landlady refused to take it. "Well said he, "if she won't take my word or God's word it's time to give it up."

And he went and signed the pledge and kept it faithfully.

POLITICAL MEETING IN THE WEST.—GREELY VS. GRANT.—Horace Greely is visiting Milwaukee, Wis., and on the 6th inst., held an interesting conversation with Hon. John Wentworth and Hon. John B. Grinnell at that point. Mr Wentworth urged Greely to come out for President, declaring that the West would support him to a unit, that there is out there a quiet feeling of contempt for Gen. Grant, that "they are tired of the nepotist." Mr. Grinnell said he could promise Iowa for Mr Greely.

The latter replied that "he was in charge of his friends." "That he was certain of Republican defeat if Grant should be nominated, the public will stand no more horse-jockey and present-taking Presidents—that the republicans must take a 'new departure'—that a man is wanted who is above mere pleasure hunting, who will not dawdle away one fourth of his term amid the frivolities of a watering place, and who is capable of expressing his views upon public questions in at least a plain and sensible manner—that is the kind of man the people want and that is the kind we have not at this time."

But were Grant the worst man under Heaven, the office holders and the soldiers are determined to keep him President, and as they seem likely to succeed it will only be renewed evidence of the wrath of Heaven against this afflicted country.

UNDENIABLE FACTS.

☞ To whom are we indebted for the destruction of the habeas corpus?—To the Radical party, whose leaders are growing rich on the people's money.

Who has driven our shipping from the seas? The Radical party, the most corrupt party of all ages.

Who inaugurated high tariffs? The Radical party which has kept itself in power in the South by the aid of the bayonet, and the corrupt use of the ballot-box.

Who has burdened us with taxes? The Republican party, the party of grand moral ideas.

Who has placed us under military rule? The leaders of the party who professed undying love for the Constitution but who have violated every article of it.

What party has abolished free elections, fostered monopolies, and has given away millions of acres of public lands? The Radical party who are wholly responsible for the late "unpleasantness."

What party has elected scapegraces, jail birds and carpet-baggers to office, destroyed state rights, and paid within the last year, over TWENTY-FIVE MILLIONS OF DOLLARS as premium to bond holders? The Abolition party who placed Grant in his present position, and the party who by fraud forced negro suffrage upon the country.

Freemen and countrymen, all you who revere and hold dear the constitution, handed down to us by our honored progenitors, and who long for a return of the prosperous and propitious days of yore, bear in remembrance the above undeniable truths, and when the time comes for you to vote, vote for the nominee of the Democratic party, the party whose leaders wherever in office, administer the laws fearlessly, equitably and impartially.

Letter of Dr. Franklin.

The following characteristic letter of Dr. Franklin is said to be inedited. The ingenious manner in which he makes the commencement of his letter convey the impression that he lent with a parsimonious reluctance, is inimitable:

APRIL, 22, 1784;

"I send you herewith a bill for ten Louis d'ors. I do not pretend to give such a sum. I only lend it to you.—When you shall return to your country, you cannot fail of getting into some business that will, in time, enable you to pay all your debts. In that case, when you meet with another honest man in similar distress, you must pay me by lending this sum to him; enjoining him to discharge his debt by a like operation when he shall be able, and shall meet with such another opportunity. I hope it may thus go through many hands before it meets with a knave to stop its progress. This is a trick of mine for doing a great deal of good with a little money. I am not rich enough to afford much in good works, and so am obliged to be cunning and make the most of a little.

THE NOBLEMAN'S JEWELS.—A rich nobleman was once showing a friend a collection of precious stones, whose value was almost beyond counting.—There were diamonds, and pearls, rubies and gems from almost every country on the globe, which had been gathered by their possessor with the greatest labor and expense. And yet he remarked, "they yield no income."

His friend replied that he had two stones, which cost him but ten florins, each, yet they yield him an income of two hundred florins a year.

In much surprise, the nobleman desired to see the wonderful stones; when the man led him down to his mill. They were laboriously crushing the grain into snowy flour, for the use of hundreds, who depended on this work for their daily bread. Those two dull homely stones did more good in the world, and yielded a larger income, than all the nobleman's jewels.

☞ A most horrid case of murder by abortion has occured in New York city. It appears that a young woman named Rowisly applied to an abortionist named Rosenweig. From some cause or other the woman died—supposed from abortion. He then packed her body in a trunk and sent it to the Hudson River Railroad Depot, where by some means it was discovered. Rosenweig has been arrested, and is now confined in prison awaiting further developments. The affair has created great excitement in New York.

AN Irishman, being asked by a lady whether he would take a glass of sherry or a glass of whiskey punch, answered that he would take the sherry while "her ladyship" was mixing the punch.

THE FRENCH FEMALE INCENDIARIES. Four of the female zealots of the commune, who contributed to the work of ruin in Paris by firing buildings, have been sentenced to death by the court-martial at Versailles, one to imprisonment in a fortress, and one to solitary imprisonment. The event presents a melancholy commentary upon a system of politics involving women in its agitations and asperities.

A country squire in New England was called in by a colored family to make a few remarks at the funeral of their son, in the absence of the clergyman of the place. The weeping friends were seated about the room, when he arose and said: "It's pretty bad; but if I was you I wouldn't take on so. It's all for the best. 'Spose he'd lived and grown up to be a fat, healthy boy, why, he'd never be nothing but a nigger anyhow!"

BEN. BUTLER is a candidate for Governor in Massachusetts. This is the happiest bit of news we have heard since the battle of Bull Run. If any man can scourge and afflict a mischief making people, Butler is the man.—We hope he may be elected.—Cent. Observer.

LONG BRANCH.—A correspondent says it is not fashionable to go to Long Branch and keep sober. A sober man cannot move in good society there, he says.

QUERY.—Does Gen. Grant lead or follow the fashion?

—Donn Piatt describes the Radical leader in Congress admirably. He says: He steals with a grace, he defrauds with a blessing. Rising in his seat he says: 'In the name of God, let us rob somebody."

A FENIAN across the Atlantic was called on for a toast. He gave the following:

"All hail the American aigle!
Proud bird of freedom all hail!
The fowl that no one can invaigle,
Or put salt on his beautiful tail"
