A letter to a reſpectable merchant in this city, dated March 6th, ſays, "a dreadful plague rages at Guadaloupe and Curracoa in conſequence of which the communication with thoſe places is ſtopped."

Captain Newſon, of the ſloop Admiral Duncan, has favored the editor of the Mercantile Advertiſer with a file of the Bahama Gazette, printed at Naſſau, in New-Providence, to the 11th March, incluſive. They contain no other intelligence than that his Britannic majeſty's ſhip Calypſo touched at Naſſau on the 3d inſtant, in her way to New-Orleans, with diſpatches to the Spaniſh government at that place, of which the object was not permitted to be publiſhed; and that the brig Adventure, Baſhford, from Charleſton bound to Havanna, was wrecked on Abaco on the 21ſt of February. The maſter arrived at Naſſau on the 28th.

PHILADELPHIA, March 26.

Arrived, ſchooner David, L'Hommedieu, New-York.

Cleared, brig Freelove, Lake, Savannah; ſloop Olive Branch, Pearſon, Norfolk.

Ship Richmond, Hathaway, of this port, has arrived at Liſbon, from Falmouth.

Brig Harriot, O'Conner, for Bordeaux, loſt her anchors and cables in the gale of the 23d, and is aſhore near Duck Creek. In the ſame gale, the brig Mercury, Gardner, for St. Croix, loſt a cable and anchor.

In a production ſigned "A Weſtern American," which has recently appeared in a Kentuky paper, the alarming doctrine of a ſeparation of the union has been avowed and advocated. The publication has excited much uneaſineſs and indignation. The United States attorney for the diſtrict has demanded of the printer the name of the author, for the purpoſe of inſtituting a ſuit. It appears that Mr. Francis Flournoy, (there is ſomething Frenchified in the name) of Pendleton county, is the author. But that on ſearch being made for him, it was found he had eloped. The inhabitants of the place, to evince their deteſtation of the author and his doctrines, burnt him in effigy.

Extract of a letter from a citizen of Philadelphia, now in Lexington, Kentucky, dated March 11, 1803.

"With reſpect to New-Orleans we have nothing materially new here; but we begin to think that a war is not ſo certain as we firſt thought. The people being generally ſtaunch Jefferſonians, heartily acquieſce in any meaſures, he may recommend; and in his preſent peaceful meaſures among the reſt, although there was ſcarcely a man who was not perfectly willing to fight, if ordered. Nay, they wiſh that ſteps of that kind might be adopted, but as it was not the opinion of the general government, they were perfectly reconciled to contrary conduct.

"The people of this country have hitherto lain under an imputation of being unfriendly to the union, which I do not think they deſerve: on the contrary, they are in my opinion the moſt deſerving of the name of real and patriotic Americans, of any people on the continent; as a proof of which I will mention one circumſtance which happened not long ſince. A perſon in Scott county in this ſtate wrote a very inflammatory piece, recommending an immediate ſeparation of the union, that is, ſuch part of the United States as lies eaſtward of the mountains, and a junction with the intended French government of Louiſiana. As ſoon as it appeared in the papers, the people collected in a large body, the moſt reſpectable in the neighborhood, and went to the printer and demanded the author, whoſe name was immediately given. They then went in ſearch of him, but he had made his eſcape—when they found they could not get his perſon, they formed an effigy of him and burnt it in the moſt ignominious manner; and the governor has at the requeſt of the people inſtituted a ſuit againſt him on a charge of treaſon.

"This is certainly no great an affair, but it ſhows the ſentiments that prevail here. The population of this ſtate conſiſts more generally of native Americans than perhaps any othee in the union, which makes them always ſo unanimous in their opinions."

Extract of a letter from W. Lee, Bordeaux.

"The ſhip Confidence, of Kennebeck; the ſhip Onedia, of New-York; & a brig belonging to Portland, commanded by captain Downing Lee, have been wrecked on the coaſt; two men were ſaved from the laſt; the crews of the two ſhips were ſaved."

"General Bernadotte is now miniſter to the United States, and is to go out immedialy.

FEDERAL GAZETTE.

MONDAY, March 28.

The immenſe flights of pidgeons over this city on Thurſday and Friday, from the north-eaſt to the ſouth-weſt, afforded fine ſport to our city gunners. The park and other neighboring patches of wood, were filled with ſportſmen—and the inceſſant popping of their fowling pieces had no ſmall reſemblance to a ſkirmiſh among infantry. The field was finally cleared of pidgeons after nearly 2 days hard ſhooting; the number of ſlain we have not heard, but it is ſuppoſed to have amounted to ſome thouſands.

How fine a theme would this have been for Shakeſpeare's Jaques to moralize upon. We hope the ſame equinoxial gale which has driven back the poor pidgeons to their winter quarters, may not have overtaken the unfortunate mariner and occaſioned as fine ſport for the ſharks of the ocean, as for the gunners of our city.

A letter ſome time ſince appeared from T. Rodney, eſq. of Dover, ſtating that general Lee, formerly ſecond in command in the army of the United States, "acknowledged to him, M. Rodney, that he, general Lee, was the author of the celebrated letters, under the ſignature of JUNIUS." In a letter of the third inſtant, from Mr. Ralph Wormeley of Virginia to Mr. Rodney, he denies the fact, and declares that general Lee declared to him, Mr. Wormeley) that "he was not the author, by telling Mr. W. that general Hamilton (diſtinguiſhed by the name of ſingle-ſpeech Hamilton) was."

THE ANJOU CABBAGE.

The culture of a very uſeful vegetable, till very lately unknown in England, has been recently brought to perfection, near Briſtol. It appears richly to merit the attention of our farmers. This is the Anjou Cabbage, perhaps the moſt uſeful and profitable of all plants of that ſpecies, which can be raiſed. The ſeed was ſupplied by a French emigrant. It is ſo tender that it is dreſſed in three or four minutes boiling. It affords excellent food for cattle, and they feed upon it very greedily; it occaſions cows to yield abundance of milk, and at the ſame time keeps them in fleſh. In bulk, rapidity of growth, and for the little culture it requires, it exceeds all others of the Braſſica ſpecies. The ſtalk acquires the thickneſs of a man's leg, and is uſed when dry for fuel.

FOR THE FEDERAL GAZETTE.

To NESTOR,

Sir,

In your remarks in the American, of Friday laſt, you ſay, "The late preſident of the board of health had bold claims to the ſtation of health-officer." I am as well acquainted with both of theſe officers as you are; and I never heard this mentioned before, and I believe you are not a bad hand at ſhooting flying. I however heard you make a declaration laſt week that amounts to a dead ſhot.

In ſpeaking of the ſecretary, you ſay his "mal-conduct," will be an additional recommendation to new honors and emoluments. As no perſon but yourſelf will believe this, I will ſay but little on the ſubject; when I hear that gentleman ſpoken of it is with eſteem, as an officer and a citizen. But how wonderfully is the ſcene changed when you come on the carpet. The hiſtory of your life is compoſed of a number of anecdotes, by no means honorable. But don't flinch, ſir, I am only feeling your pulſe; I will apply the proper medicine hereafter, if neceſſary. Neſtor, if you ever did any good in your life, do come forward in your next number, and let us know what it is, for, with all my ingenuity I cannot diſcover it. You, to be ſure, are a good hand at ſpinning ſtreet yarn, but what with your cane and your ſnuff-box—there is ſo much difficulty in getting round you on the narrow foot-way, that I deem you a peſt to ſociety, rather than any thing elſe. But, ſir, be careful how you affront the commiſſioners of health, for I have ſerious doubts, whether under the health law you might not be removed from the city as a nuiſance.

You ſay, "The writer of the above letter candidly acknowledges that he has been fleecing his fellow-citizens for the laſt two years." Another ſhot, ſir! The writer of the letter endeavors to prove, that it is not only proper, but conſtitutional for him to hold a ſeat in council. Does the writer admit in the ſlighteſt manner that he holds two offices? No. Then he does not admit that he has fleeced the public, but "as ſome ſay two offices," that is, if the doctrine that it is improper or unconſtitutional for a commiſſioner of health to ſit in council (which doctrine you preach) be eſtabliſhed, then he has fleeced the public, &c. But, ſir, I will ſtate a ſimilar caſe, and aſk you a few queſtions: Some time time ſince, the people of Baltimore county elected as a repreſentative a man of known patriotiſm, ability and integrity—While holding his ſeat in the legiſlature of Maryland, a law paſſed for the purpoſe of a new organization of the levy court. This gentleman was appointed by the governor and council as a judge of that court—he was afterwards elected into the ſenate, being the moſt proper perſon in the county. Now, ſir, tell me who did this? perhaps it will be well to pauſe. It was not only the collected wiſdom of the ſtate of Maryland, but the popular branch of the legiſlature, who carried with them the ſenſe and wiſhes of the people, as far as was conſtitutional. Did then the legiſlature of Maryland think it improper, or in your language think that holding a ſeat in the ſenate & another in the levy court, was filling two offices? No. Perhaps you will ſay they did wrong; but I ſuppoſe you will admit that what every body ſays muſt be right. Did then the governor and council, who appointed him to the levy court, think it improper? No. Does the ſenate think it improper? No. Do the people of Baltimore, who laſt Friday elected phyſicians to the diſpenſary, who already held public offices, think it improper? No. Did the people of the 4th ward, who elected or cauſed to be elected to the ſecond branch, a gentleman who is a commiſſioner of the tax, think it improper? No. If I had time I would give you more of it, ſir, for I hope to become your family

By Authority.

THIS is to inform the admirers of ingenuity, and patrons of innocent and rational amuſements, that on Monday evening, March 28th inſtant, in that ſpacious new OCTAGON BUILDING, known by the name of the PANTHEON, back of the court-houſe,

Will be Diſplayed,

The Myſteries of Mechaniſm,

By Mr. Maginnis, from Sadler's Wells, London, lately from the old theatre, Philadelphia, where he performed ſix weeks to crouded houſes.

This exhibition is compoſed of about 40 different figures, which by the power of mechaniſm poſſeſs the correct attitudes of life.

Juſt from London,

The Grand Italian Fontoccini,

Never performed in this country, which has been the wonder of Europe for many years.

The ingenuity and powers of this exhibition conſiſts in the following FIGURES:

1ſt. A Figure four feet high, in the character of a Country Girl, will dance a jig, with ſimplicity and native innocence.

2d. Ben the Sailor, a figure 20 inches high, will dance a hornpipe, performing the different ſteps to the muſic with exactneſs, characteriſtic of the brave tar.

3d. The Lapland Sorcereſs, in the courſe of moving a quick dance, will perform that wonderful deception of changing her face three times imperceptibly.

4th. The Phenomon of Human Invention will be diſplayed, by a ſmall figure, 12 inches high, that will perform poſturing and tumbling, equal to life. The natural attitudes of this automaton ſtrikes the ſpectator with aſtoniſhment and wonder!

5th. The Lilliputian Scarmouch. will dance a Spaniſh fandango, forming himſelf into 20 different attitudes. The power of ingenuity is here curiouſly diſplaped—no communication to the figure can be perceived.

6th. A collection of wax-work figures, repreſenting the COURT OF ALEXANDER THE GREAT. This group of figures, in brilliancy, luſtre and richneſs of dreſs, far ſurpaſſes any exhibition ever known; their graceful movements, and ancient martial grandeur, are highly pleaſing, and has never failed of giving univerſal ſatisfaction, leaving the mind deeply impreſſed with an idea of the ancient ſplendor and magnificence practiſed by the Macedonian Hero and his Lovely Pair.

7th. The Mooriſh Princeſs performs the Grand African Caſtinett Dance, beating time with the muſic equal to life itſelf.

☞ Door opened at ſix, and to commence at 7 o'clock. Box one dollar. Pit half a dollar. Children who come with their parents, and under twelve years of age, will be admitted for half-price.

 Tickets may be had at Mr. Dobbin's printing-office; and at the Pantheon, where ſeats in the boxes may be taken, from ten until one o'clock, on the days of performance.

N. B. Mr. M. reſpectfully informs thoſe ladies and gentlemen who intend honoring the exhibition with their preſence, that he has fitted up the Octagon hall in a commodious manner, ſo as to contain 300 ſpectators.
