PHILADELPHIA, June 4.

Caution againſt Fire.

On Thurſday morning, between 1 and 2 o'clock, having left a candle burning in the room, on account of the indiſpoſition of one of my children, I was alarmed by the ſmoke and heat which I felt. My wife and I immediately ſtepped out of bed, and finding the flo[illegible] feet, we ſnatched up the children and ran down, without clothes into the ſtreet, not knowing from whence the fire proceeded. The neighbors were ſoon alarmed and came to our aſſiſtance. Joſeph Connover, Robert Bayne and Alexander Buckhannan, ruſhed into the room, and perceiving that the fire was between the ceiling and the floor, broke in part of the latter with an axe from whence the flames immediately burſt forth, but were ſoon happily extinguiſhed by the activity of my neighbors. It appears that a rat muſt have carried the lighted candle to its neſt which being compoſed of rags eaſily caught fire. One of the joiſts was nearly burnt through. I conſider it my duty, in this public manner, to acknowledge my obligations to my neighbors, and to caution people againſt keeping a candle burning at night. A lamp in caſe of neceſſity would be perfectly ſafe. FRANCIS DAYMON,

Samuel Roberts, eſq. of Sunbury, Northumberland, has been appointed by the governor of Pennſylvania, preſident of the court of common pleas, in the room of Alexaoder Addiſon, diſqualified by impeachment.

On Saturday evening laſt, between the the hours of four and five o'clock, we experienced a moſt tremendous guſt of lightning, thunder and rain. It proceeded from about the S. W. and advanced towards the N. E.—the damage the lightning may have done in its progreſs we have not yet learned—none has been aſcertained in the city, except to a Portugueſe ſhip, which was ſtruck by a flaſh that ſhivered her main-maſt, without doing any other miſchief, although a number of the crew were near the maſt at the moment it ſtruck. A large cheſnut tree about a mile from the city, was alſo ſtruck and ſhivered to pieces, it ſtill continues burning ſlowly and retains a ſtrong ſulphurous ſmell. [Telegraphe.]

Married laſt evening, by the reverend Mr. Bend, Mr. William Faithfull, printer, of Philadelphia, to Miſs Margaret Burke, of this city.

Cure for the bite of a mad dog, or ſting of any poiſonous ſerpent.

Cover the wound with freſh earth or ſnuff, to imbibe the ſaliva of the animal, and waſh it with water; at the ſame time warm half a pound of butter in four times as much vinegar, and when the wound is cleanſed, apply a compreſs of linen ſteeped in the above mixture, and moiſten it very often for nine days, after which you may remove the compreſs, and cure the wound in the uſual way. During the time the vinegar is uſed externally, it muſt be uſed internally, by taking it in doſes of an ounce and an half, warmed with a little freſh butter four times each day. The patient's common drink muſt be water for at leaſt 15 days, or water [illegible] He muſt abſtain from the uſe of ardent ſpirits or exerciſe, to prevent irratibility.

TO ARTISTS, MECHANICS, OR MANUFACTURERS.

By an order of the preſident and directors of the "Blount county ſociety for promoting arts and manufactures" the correſponding committee of that ſociety is directed to be publiſh in Mr. Smith's paper of the city of Waſhington, that propoſals will be received during the preſent year by the ſociety, through the reſident Dr. Robert Grantt, for making cotton cards and for erecting or conſtructing machines for, and carrying on the buſineſs of carding, ſpinning and weaving cotton, upon an extenſive ſcale, on or near the town of Maryville; amongſt other branches of the ſyſtem, ſtocking weaving will be an object. None need apply but ſuch as can come ſatisfactorily recommended. The ſituation of the town of Maryville is delightful and healthy, and the adjacent country extremely fertile and produces cotton of an excellent ſtaple. As the inſtitution is of a patriotic nature it is hoped that other printers will give this a place in their papers—and any communication from ſocieties formed on ſimilar principles will be gratefully received.

DAVID CRAIG,
Chairman of the committee of correſpondence.

Maryville, Blount county, Tenneſſee, April 15, 1803.

The Pruſſian commerce in the Baltic increaſed laſt year, and the part of Poland which has fallen into the Pruſſian dominions has profited from its new maſter. For eight years they ſeldom ſaw any other than Engliſh veſſels. The ports of Stettin, Konigſberg, Dantzic, and Elbing, were viſited laſt ſeaſon by French, Spaniſh, Portugueſe and Dutch veſſels. It is ſaid government has borrowed large ſums upon landed ſecurity, and that the merchants were aſſiſted the loan. A change is expected in the commercial ſyſtem, and the duties paid in the ports which belonged to Poland are to be exchanged for ſuch as are more adapted to their proſperity. The Pruſſians as well as the Danes, have a voyage round the world in contemplation. In the paſt year, four hundred eighty one veſſels entered at Elbing, & 485 cleared from that port. They imported 300,000 lb. of coffee, 5,000 tons of herrings, 15,000lbs. of indigo, 3,000wt. of iron, 29,000wt. of Brazill wood, 788 tons of Engliſh beer, and 4,000 barrels of French and Spaniſh wine. They export above 7,000lbs. of pot-aſhes, beſides other aſhes, 13,000 bales of wool, 9,000 of flax, 17,000 bales of white cloth, and 56,000 of other cloth, beſides grain. [London paper.]

The following letter from the duchy of Terſen, dated the 20th of February, contains a curious caſe of a man who had been frozen apparently to death, and under ſuch circumſtances as tend to convince us that no one, in that melancholy ſituation, ſhould be given over, however hopeleſs the ſymptoms may appear.

"From the 7th to the 10th we had here ſo intenſe a cold, that ſeveral perſons were frozen to death. Among others was a certain ſhoemaker, a citizen of Wettorff, in the precinct of Viſſelhovede, who had repaired hither to buy leather, and ſet out on the 9th at 6 o'clock in the evening; but he loſt his way in the ſnow, and became ſo fatigued by traverſing it, that he was obliged to lie down to reſt himſelf, when the cold put a period to his further career. The 10th, at 5 o'clock in the morning, he was found quite ſtiff, without any exterior ſigns of life, and the ſkin from his knees to the calf of his legs, was quite black. He was, however, ordered to be taken to the houſe of a medical man in this city, who purſued the appropriate means in ſuch caſes, till ſix o'clock in the evening with a meritorious perſeverance; when, at length, this apparent corpſe awakened as from a dream, regained the uſe of his faculties and limbs, and marched off in perfect health.

AUTHENTIC.

Mr. Jefferſon's PAPER MONEY TENDER
to
Mr. Gabriel Jones, of Rockingham county.

THE following ſtatement of facts, relating to this tranſaction, is made to the editor of this paper in a way which has obtained his entire confidence. It is a tranſaction concerning which much has been written---much has been publiſhed---much has been ſaid. Thoſe who have in any way intereſted themſelves will be pleaſed to ſee it reduced to preciſion. To a community of ſo much intelligence, which contains ſo many individuals of great endowments, there can be no neceſſity for the editor of this paper to attempt to give a complexion, when the facts ſpeak ſo loudly and ſo eloquently for themſelves. By this remark we do not mean to foreſtall public opinion as to thoſe editors or writers who may follow a different tract. The firſt duty which we owe to our ſubſcribers is to publiſh the exact truth, as far as we can obtain it, upon all ſubjects which either relate to the public affairs, or to the public characters of [illegible]03.

Having ſeen in the Richmond Recorder ſome imperfect ſtatements, unauthoriſed by me, relative to a tranſaction which took place ſome years ago, between Thomas Jefferſon, eſquire, the preſent chief magiſtrate of the United States, and myſelf, I have thought it proper to ſet the matter in a fair point of view by giving a true ſtate of the facts; which ſhould have been done ere this had my health permitted. The facts are as follow, viz.

In the month of September, 1773, Mr. Jefferſon made application to me for the loan of fifty pounds, which he propoſed returning in a few months with thanks, &c. which ſum I lent him with the greateſt cheerfulneſs, having, at that time, the higheſt confidence in him as a man of honor, honeſty and integrity; for which he gave his bond payable in twelve months, when I propoſed that, if his convenience required, he might have it a longer time, on condition that he would punctually pay the intereſt annually. This, however, Mr. Jefferſon failed doing, nor did I hear from him on the ſubject until I received his letter encloſing the principal and intereſt in paper money, which, when it came to my hand, was not worth more than one ſhilling in the pound. The following is a correct copy of the letter alluded to.

"Monticello, April 29th, 1779.

"Dear Sir,

"By Mrs. Harvey I encloſe to you the principal and intereſt of the money you were ſo kind as to lend me ſome years ago.

It furniſhes me alſo with an occaſion of acknowledging, with this, the many other obligations under which you have laid me, of which I ſhall always be proud to ſhew a due ſenſe, when ever opportunities ſhall offer.

"I am, Dear Sir, with much eſteem,
"Your friend and ſervant,
(Signed) "Th: JEFFERSON."

I confeſs that on viewing the deceptious aſpect of the foregoing letter and its encloſure, I felt great ſurpriſe and diſappointment that a perſon who ſtood ſo high in the public eſtimation as to be, at that time, the governor of Virginia, and who had ſhared ſo much of my private confidence that he might have commanded any ſum within my power to lend, ſhould have riſked his reputation, and attempted to requite my friendſhip, by repaying the paltry ſum of fifty pounds and intereſt, with ſomething leſs than one fourth of the real legal intereſt then due thereon; which I thought not worth receiving, and therefore, on the return of Mrs. Harvey, re-encloſed to Mr. Jefferſon the ſaid paper money, together with his bond, in a piece of blank paper, leaving him to his own reflections; reſolving at the ſame time not to expoſe him until I ſhould be adviſed of the reſult of his deliberations on the ſubject—Of which I heard nothing until the 29th day of February, 1780, when a Mr. Leonard Herring, a neighbor of mine, who is yet living, informed me he had taken from the faſh of a window in a public houſe in Staunton, a letter directed to me, which he delivered to my hand. On opening the ſuppoſed letser, I found it to be part of half a ſheet of paper covering the aforeſaid bond. The thin cover however was ſo worn out at the folds and corners, that the bond was to be ſeen, which was alſo conſiderably fretted, eſpecially at the corners. By whom that paper was forwarded, or how it found its way to the faſh, where my obliging neighbor accidentally diſcovered it, I have never yet been able to learn; but, from the whole of the circumſtances, I was induced to believe it might be intended never to reach my hands. However, after ſundry evaſions, and repeated applications to col. Nicholas Lewis, of Albemarle, to whom I was referred as the agent of Mr. Jefferſon, and while he was in France, I received payment of the principal and intereſt.
