Mrs. Keets' Boarding School.

ON Monday, the first of August, the young ladies of Mrs. Keets' Boarding School, near Centreville, Queen Anne's county, Maryland, were examined in reading, English grammar, French, arithmetic and geography. Each young lady produced a specimen of her writing, with questions and solutions in different and difficult rules of arithmetic. They read with a degree of animation, which surprised and pleased the company, and equally evinced the attention of the teachers and their own application.

There was a number of persons present, all of whom professed themselves highly gratified by their prompt and accurate answers to the numerous questions proposed in English grammar and the French language. They concluded with a perfect explanation of the geogrphy of North America, particularly of the United States.

We whose names are undersigned were witnesses of the pleasing and animating scene, and declare, that the utmost merit is equally due to Mrs. Keets, Mr. Pairo, and the young ladies.

JAMES KENT,
JOHN DAMES,
PERRY E. NOEL,
JOHN HACKETT,

Centreville, 12th Aug. 1803.

Mrs. KEETS and Mr. PAIRO respectfully inform the ladies and gentlemen of Annapolis, and the public in general, that they will open a Boarding School in that city, on Monday, the 2d January, 1804, provided 25 ladies, as boarders, can be procured by subscription previous to the 20th October next.

Mrs. Keets will teach reading, writing, the English grammar and needle work.

Mr. Pairo will teach the French language, (Latin and German, if required) arithmetic, geography, astronomy, use of the globes, and music.

If the above testimony of Mrs. Ketts' and Mr. Pairo's abilities should not be considered as a sufficient recommendation, Mrs. Keets can produce a number of recommendatory letters from the parents and guardians of those ladies she has had under her care, as vouchers of her strict attention to the morals, improvement and accommodation of her pupils.

Mr. Pario can also produce testimonials of his character and abilities. He is a German gentleman, educated at one of the principal universities in that country. He is of French extraction and has resided a considerable time in Paris, which circumstance enables him to understand and speak the French language as his mother tongue. He has been in the habit of teaching eight years, and from the satisfaction he has already given, flatters himself that he shall be deemed worthy the encouragement of the public.

Application may be made to Mr. Neth, or capt. Thomas, Annapolis, or to Mrs. Keets, near Centreville, Maryland.
