Wilmington, (Del.) August 24.—With the sincerest pleasure we announce, that the celebrated general MOREAU and family, all in good health, have, at length, arrived. They went up the river yesterday in the ship New-York, captain George.

Extract of a letter from JOHN SHAW, Esq. commanding officer of the United States frigate John Adams, dated

"Gibraltar, June 15, 1805.

"With pleasure I inform you of my arrival here, after a passage of 30 days from New-York. The second day after my leaving Sandy-Hook, I unfortunately separated from the gun-boats in a heavy gale from E. N. E. to E. accompanied with a thick fog, which lasted three or four days. On the 10th instant I fell in with No. 10, lieut. Cartey, out from Norfolk 27 days. He reported his boat far exceeded his expectations, and was capable of living in any sea, and that she lay to remarkably well. I found lying at an anchor here, gun-boats No. 3, lieut. Maxwell; No. 6, lieut. Lawrence; and No. 5, lieut. Harrison, all perfectly well. These boats all exceeded the expectations of their officers. No. 2, lieut. Izzard, No. 8, lieut. Harradan, and No. 9, lieut. Elbert, sailed from this port for Tripoli yesterday morning.

"Letters from commodore Barron, of the 21st April, make no mention of any prospects of peace, and state that he was making active preparations for this summer's siege. He has bought three large schooners, which he has cut down, strengthened, and placed bombs on board. The blockade has been kept up the whole winter very rigidly by our squadron; but the north winds occasionally compelled our fleet to weigh and beat off the shore. The result is, that two small cruisers have got out. They have been lately spoke off Corsica, which I presume is their cruising ground.

"Capt. Bainbridge, officers and crew, are all well, and not harshly treated. I flatter myself that they will be all liberated this summer, as I am very sure every exertion of our officers will be employed to effect this.

"I am employed this morning in mounting the cannon on the boats with my main yard, and the instant it is done, if the wind will favor, I shall weigh my anchor for Tripoli.

"Capt. Stewart sailed from hence on the 2d, in company with one of our store-ships, for Malta.

"P. S. Commodore Barron's health is perfectly restored."

Extract of a letter from an American gentleman at Gibraltar Bay, to his friend in New-York, dated June 16.

"I have the pleasure of informing you that seven of our gun boats have arrived here in 30 days from Sandy-Hook. Three of them, including Mr. Izard, of Charleston, left this two days ago for Tripoli, all well, and we shall follow them with the remainder to-morrow evening. The Spaniards, it is said, have at Algeziras, on the opposite side of the Bay, three hundred gun boats and thirty thousand troops, ready to begin the siege of Gibraltar. In the afternoon of yesterday the Spanish gun boats got under weigh, and manœuvred a little; which occasioned the garrison at the Rock to beat to arms, and lie at quarters during the night. We have no late news from our squadron. Our consul informs me that ten days ago a brig left this bay, laden with powder for the bombardment of Tripoli. The plague rages with much violence at Cadiz and Malaga."

Extract of a letter from Bordeaux, to a respectable mercantile house in Boston, dated June 26.

"All merchandize coming to this place must be accompanied with a certificate of origin. This is to be rigorously observed. We are much afraid that several hogsheads of sugar and coffee shipped by you, which are not included in your certificate of origin, will give us a great deal of trouble.—The receiver tells us the law leaves no sort of discretion; he must, he says, seize them, and we may petition the minister, who will hearken to us, since you have not had time to know the new law relative to importation."

By the British Packet Windsor Castle, we learn that previous to her sailing from Falmouth, information had reached that place of the capture of a French 84 gun ship off Brest by two British 44 gun frigates. The French man of war was reconnoitring, when the British frigates, by superior manœuvring, cut her off from the land and captured her.

[N. Y. D. Advertiser.]

A privateer was fitted out from St. Augustine, owned and manned principally by Americans, their names follow: Captain Hooper, of Baltimore; Mr. Martin, first lieutenant, of do.; Mr. Robertson, second lieutenant, of do. Owned by Mr. Lee, of Virginia, captain Moody, prize-master, Ezra Read, of Connecticut; Samuel Bates, of do.; Mr. Hall, of do.; Mr. Guyer, of Baltimore; Mr. Boyer, of do.; Ives White, of Connecticut—these are the only persons whose names could be ascertained. The avowed object of the officers of this privateer, was to capture English vessels, and she arrived in the Chesapeak about the middle of May—after remaining there about ten days, she captured a Bermudian sloop, captain Williams, after killing the man at the helm, and wounding the captain in 2 places—the ship Golden Grove, captain Blair, of Liverpool—and a brig commanded by captain Mysservey, of the same place. The two former were taken inside of the Chesapeak, the brig just without, and carried to St. Augustine, where they were condemned—the prizes lying at anchor in the sea, not able to get in. The captain and crew were robbed of every thing, even their wearing apparel.

These vessels were cut out from St. Augustine—and captain Hooper was killed.

Every summer the pulic mind is agitated, and the large towns in the United States injuried, by the false reports of weak or weaked persons, respecting their state of health. The evil calls loudly for remedy, and preventi n; and we hope the late praise-worthy proceedings of the board of health, to that end, will be attended with success. Yesterday one Solomon Sturtevant, a laborer, who calls himself a physician, was apprehended upon a warrant from justice Ruggles, of Roxbury, upon the complaint of our board of health of this town, that said Sturtevant falsely published and declared, at Quincy, that the yellow fever was very prevalent in Boston; that he had seen 14 persons buried on Friday night, who had died with it; and that the small pox was also prevalent; and that it was dangerous to visit the town. The evidence was direct against him;—and he being unable to find bail in 1000 dollars, was committed to take his trial at the supreme court, in Dedham, in October next.

A curious fact in natural History has been observed by Dr. Gabriel Anselmi, Professor of Anatomy at Turin. A Snake, called in Italy Serpe Nera, the Coluber Natrix of Linnæus, is said to be extremely fond of milk; and the country people even pretend that it makes its way into the dairies to gratify its inclination. They even assert, that it is sometimes found entwined round the legs of cows, sucking their teats with such avidity as to draw blood when their milk is exhausted. Of this fact, which by many had been considered as a popular tale, the Dr. had himself an opportunity of being an eye-witness. "Walking, according to custom (says he) one morning, on the road called the Park, bordered by pastures, containing a great number of sheep and horned cattle, I observed an old, but vigorous cow, separate from the others, and lowing, with her head raised in the air, her ears erect, and shaking her tail. Supprised at the noise she made, I seated myself on the banks of a stream, and followed her wherever she went with my eyes. After running for some minutes, she suddenly stopped in a sequestred spot, and began to ruminate. Inquisitive to discover the cause, I went to the place. After going into a pond to drink, she came out, and waited on the brink for a black snake, which crept from among the bushes, and approaching her, entwined himself round her legs and began to suck her milk. I observed this phenomenon two successive days, without informing the herdsman. The third day I acquainted him with it, and he told me that for some time the cow kicked at the approach of her calf, and that she could not without difficulty be compelled to suffer it to suck. We took away the snake, which we killed. On the succeeding day the cow, after in vain waiting for her suckling, ran about the meadow in such a manner that the herdsman was obliged to shut her up." Dr. Anselmi has discovered that if the teats of the cows be washed with a decoction of, tobacco the ravages of these extraordinary depredators may be effectually prevented.
