Friday, April 18.

The house again resolved itself into a committee of the whole on the bill supplementary to the act fixing the naval peace establishment.

Much discussion took place on the details of this bill, and particularly on augmenting the number of officers beyond the number fixed by the act of 1801. Various motions were made to reject the parts of the bill having this effect, as well as to make an appropriation for building frigates to repalce the Philadelphia and General Greene; all of which were disagreed to—when the bill was read a third time.

Mr. Chandler spoke in favor of and Messrs. J. Clay and J. Randolph against its passage, which was carried—Yeas 58—Nays 28.

Saturday, April 19.

The house considered the message of the senate, to amend the bill to carry into effect the treaty with the Chickasaw tribe of Indians, by striking out those sections which authorize a resort to military force to expel persons attempting to settle on certain lands in the Mississippi territory without having received titles to the same from the United States—and having disagreed to the amendment passed by the senate—Yeas 53 Nays 35—resolved to adhere to their disagreement thereto.

A short time after a message was received from the senate, stating that they had resolved to adhere to their amendment. The bill is consequently lost.

The house went into a committee of the whole on the bill authorising the settlement of the accounts of William Eaton.

This bill provides for the settlement of these accounts by the accounting officers of the treasury, under the direction of the secretary of state.

After much discussion the committee rose, and the bill was ordered to a third reading on Monday.

[We have been obliged to postpone a full detail of the proceedings of the three last days to our next paper.]

A very able writer in one of the Charleston papers accounts in the following way for the present unparalleled low price of our domestic exports:

"ONE of the causes of complaint in congress against England is that, even admitting her right to capture our vessels employed in carrying on the direct colonial trade, she ought to have given our merchants fair warning of her intentions, and not to have entrapped them by sudden seizure, when apprehending no danger; but mark the inconsistency of that body in making this complaint—have they given our merchants any warning of their intentions? is not the whole commerce and navigation of the U. S. at the mercy of any mad resolve they may choose to pass, and have they condescended to apprize the merchants of the steps they mean to take? If the very persons delegated for and entrusted with the care of our interests, are so regardless of them as wantonly to expose them to destruction, can we expect any very tender concern for them from mere strangers? If our own government thus leaves their fellow-citizens for months in a state of the most cruel uncertainty, whether there ought to be a ruinous suspension of commercial enterprize and a lathergic stagnation of exports, or an active and extensive trade, which in one moment may be annihilated, what right have we to expect from a foreign government any such previous and polite notification? Can any merchant in the U. States, with the sagacity of a prophet, divine the views, the intentions, the policy of our rulers? from the month of November to the present month of April, has it been possible for the most attentive reader of the proceedings of congress to conjecture what they would be at? and during this long interval, our navigation and commerce have been either suffering from a ruinous and torpid stagnation, or exposed to sudden destruction: cautious men have long ago arrested their commercial speculations, so beneficial to this country, their capital has been locked up and unproductive, while all their expences have been going on; all our staple commodities have consequently fallen considerably in price, while foreign articles, on the other hand, are encreasing in value, and in consequence of all this, a real loss has been occasioned to the nation in general by the conduct of their own legislature, to double the amount of any produced by the want of notice complained of on the part of the English government—and this national loss is attributed altogether to the culpable timidity of the executive in shifting from his own shoulders the responsibility which constitutionally attaches to him, and to the gross ignorance of those on whom he has saddled it."

The indignation of the people has been so much roused by the late abominable coalition [in N. York] that they are flocking to the standard of the governor in every part of the state. The governor could not have gained as much by an age of good conduct, as he has by one week's bad conduct of his enemies. [Balance.]

In the court of common pleas on Tuesday last, came on the trial of a suit instituted by Mr. Daniel Suter, a sheriff's officer, against Conrad Sheetz. The defendant was accused of having fired at with intent to kill, and of having thus wounded the plaintiff, whilst in the execution of his duty. The jury gave a verdict of damages for the plaintiff—one thousand dollars. [Aurora.]

MAD DOGS.

We find it necessary to caution the public against these dangerous animals. A mad dog, who exhibited symptoms of the most malignant kind, was discovered yesterday morning in the Fly-market. He ran up Maiden-lane, and we do not understand that he was overtaken by his pursuers.

Two or three children were bitten last week in New-Haven; and the police officers alarmed for the general safety, have offered a reward for every dog which may be killed whilst running at large in the streets. [New-York paper.]

COMMUNICATION

Relative to the

PRECINCTS MARKET-HOUSE

LOTTERY.

Friend.—I see you will still be speculating in lotteries, I fear you will be a looser in this speculation.

Answer.—I hope not, I must confess there is some risk, but being engaged in that kind of busines, I wish to encourage the Market-House Lottery, for you know I love good living.

Friend.—But you seem by your advertisement, as if you intended to go on very rapidly, and to draw more than double the quantity in a week, than you heretofore have done.

Answer.—This is what we would wish to do, in order to satisfy the public, and to complete the drawing as soon as possible.

Friend.—Suppose in so doing, the high prize should pop out, what will be the consequence?

Answer.—It is expected that when the public are satisfied, we shall continue to draw in this manner; those disposed to become adventurers will come forward and purchase, that they may have a chance with the rest for the 4 or 8,000 dollars; if they do not, they cannot expect it; besides, it may fall to the lot of the holders of the unsold tickets

Friend.—That would not satisfy the public, for should you draw the high prize, they would conceive the lottery to be unfair.

Answer.—No reasonable person can think so, for my part I sincerely wish the whole of the tickets on hand were sold; for if they were it could not be the case, for the object is to sell the whole; but should there be a large number of tickets unsold, whose fault is it? it cannot be ours; we know persons cannot be compelled to purchase, but if they are not disposed to purchase, no reasonable man can attach any censure to us; If they do, they cannot be serious.

Friend.—But are you serious, when you say that after the opening of the wheels on Tuesday the 29th inst. you will raise the price of tickets 50 cents?

Answer.—Yes?

Friend.—What is your reason for so doing?

Answer.—The reason is obvious; the wheel is much more valuable than at the commencement of the drawing; besides we shall draw 5 or 600 tickets a week, and after a short time perhaps more; and should we have a large number yet on hand of course (as you observed before) we run a risk of drawing a number of blanks, which will be a great loss.

Friend.—But as observed before also, you may draw the high prize.

Answer.—We shall have no objection to that; but it should be put out of our power, by purchasing all the tickets; if the tickets are not all sold, and we should be so fortunate as to draw the highest, or the next high prize, it may make up all losses, and whatever any person may say, we shall feel our minds perfectly at ease on that subject.

50 Dollars Reward.

RAN away from the subscriber, on the 16th April, a negro man by the name of DAVY, 5 feet, 11 inches high, a well-made fellow, he is very black, when spoken to his manners are quite pleasing, about 30 years of age. He took along with him, a parcel of good clothes, and among them was a blue spencer, and a blue pair of trousers, and a light-horseman's cap, with a feather in it. I have been informed that he is come on to the city of Baltimore, with a free pass; he has relations in the city of Alexandria; his drift is to get off by water. I hereby forewarn all captains from taking the said negro Davy on board of their vessel under the penalty of the law. Whoever will deliver him to me, or secure him in gaol so that I can get him again, shall receive the above reward.
