Had on when he went away, a round kersey over-jacket and trousers, dyed of an olive color, striped blue and white linsey under-jacket, white yarn stockings, a fur hat much worn; his shoes pretty good; he took with him a pair of new dark-colored cloth trousers; a round drab over-jacket; three white cotton shirts, ruffled at the bosom, one of them the ruffle is notted in points. It is probable he will change his dress, as he took with him a variety of other clothes; he plays well on the violin, one of which he took with him. Charles-County, April 16. 1aw 22dm

For Sale,

A very valuable TRACT of LAND, in Baltimore county, within 11 1-2 miles of the city of Baltimore, containing 640 acres, seated on a branch of Middle river, which empties into, and is within about 5 miles of the Chesapeake bay. There are about 40 acres of this land cleared, the residue, about 600 acres, abounds with valuable timber, calculated for every useful purpose, such as ship-building, staves, &c. The soil is calculated to raise every species of country produce, but it is more particularly adapted for an extensive grazing farm, as more than one-half may be made choice meadow. The river, on which this land is seated, is navigable for vessels drawing about eight feet water, and abounds with the best fish, with which our markets are supplied, and there is not, perhaps, at this time, a tract of land offered for sale in the state, that enjoys more real advantages than this; its contiguity to the city of Baltimore, which is confessedly the best market on the continent, and the advantage of water carriage for ship timber, staves, tan-bark and fire wood, which is always in demand, and bears a flattering price, are objects worthy the attention of any person wanting to purchase such a place. A part of the purchase money will be required down, and a pleasing credit given for the balance. For further particulars apply in Baltimore, to AUGUSTA, April 3.

We observe in the Sparta paper, a paragraph stating, that "a man of decent appearance, was lately apprehended for passing counterfeit money, and carried to Greensborough, where he confessed himself to be concerned with the notorious Abraham Collins, (of N. Carolina) and that upon oath, he stated that a number of persons which he named, in the upper parts of Georgia, were also concerned with Collins, and that one in particular had written to Collins for $ 20,000.---The persons implicated, it is stated, are of the first respectability and standing in society, &c. On perusing this paragraph we made some enquiries as to the particulars to which it related, and were informed, that a person was taken up as stated, and that while in confinement, at Greensborough, he was by some means, induced to make a confession, calculated to implicate as far as his declaration could do it, several of the most respectable persons in the upper country, whose reputations it was expected and intended in this way to injure; but we understand that not the least credit is attached to this declaration; the characters of the gentlemen named, are above, far above the reach of injury by so base and pitiful a proceeding. Those who would wilfingly do a private injury to the persons named, do not we are told, believe the confession, nor have we seen any person who considered its correctnes, as in the least degree probable; we have indeed heard it intimated, that the whole proceeding has originated somewhere, from the political opponents of the gentlemen named; but vile & abandoned as party proceedings sometimes are known to be, we should be sorry to find that so much baseness, such monstrous wickedness and depravity, could have place in any breast having pretensions to moral correctness, as to seek for so detestable an instrument as a counterfeiter of money, thro' whom, to injure those characters who were too fair to be assailed otherwise, than by such unworthy means. It is stated in the Sparta paragraph, and we have heard from other quarters, that some of "the parties are determined to sift the matter to the bottom," and we trust the result will be communicated to the public---the confession, as it has been represented to us, is we are well convinced, absolutely false, and is we think well known to be so, by some persons who will not have the candor to acknowledge it---when the investigation, which, the gentlemen named, have set on foot is completed, we trust that all the circumstances connected with the confession will be made public, and if the whole statement is, as we believe, utterly destitute of foundation, we hope the motives which led to it, and the diabolical malignity in which it originated may be duly exposed.

PHILADELPHIA, April 23.

A letter from a member of congress dated April 19th, mentions that congress would adjourn on Monday, but concludes with saying, "for how long a time we shall continue separate I think very doubtful indeed.

Captain James Barron is appointed commodore of the American squadron in the Mediterranean—and captain Stephen Decatur, jun. to command the frigate Chesapeake, ordered on that service.

Extract of a letter from New-Orleans, dated March 10, to a merchant in this city.

"In our last we mentioned that the navigation of the Mobile had been closed by the Spaniards against the Americans; since then, the mail from Fort Stoddart has arrived, and the rider reports that governor Folck was at Mobile with 300 men repairing the fortifications, and that he, (the rider) was stoped and carried before the governor, who informed him, that he was determined not to permit the United States' post to pass through his Catholic majesty dominions by land or water; we therefore apprehend, that the Natchez mail will be stopped at Baton Rogue, and if so it must cross the river below Ibberville, and again from the mouth of the Red River to Pinckneyville; this must necessarily occasion delay and risk of miscarriage.

"We fear from the slow and uncertain operations of our government, that we shall shortly be placed in a most critical and disagreeable situation in this quarter. Things with the Spaniards appear to be approaching fast to a rupture, and we are entirely defenceless: the few miserable skeleton companies of volunteers, are insufficient for the security of the city from our internal foes, whilst we have nothing effective to oppose any attempt the Spaniards may make. The temptation is great and the booty here will be immense; the two banks alone contain upwards of a million and a half of dollars in specie, and the quantity of merchandize is great. On all these points the Spaniards are perfectly informed."

"It might perhaps awaken our government, if some of the respectable merchants interested in the trade, were to represent our situation to them."

Extract of a letter from the postmaster at New-Orleans, to his friend in this city, dated March 18th, 1806.

"Governor Folck, who commands in Pensacola and its dependences, has forbidden Mr. White, the person who carries the Mobile mail, to land or bring a mail by water thro' any of his Spanish majesty's dominions. I waited on gov. Claiborne, who advised me not to send a mail by that route. If we are not permitted to carry our mail though the dominions of his majesty, we shall, for a while, be at great inconvenience, as our mail cannot go by land farther than Point-Coupee. You, as well as myself, know the situation of the country; however, I will do my best for the public good. You may rest assured that the communication will not be stopt. Please inform the merchants of Philadelphia of the same. I will write you by next mail if any thing should happen. Mr. White arrived here on the 15th from Mobile."

MORE OF MIRANDA.

The Leander, captain Lewis, sailed from New-York in February last, with general Miranda, a large quantity of regimental cloathing, arms and accoutrement for 15 or 20,000 men---she cleared out for, & arrived at Jacquemel, about the 1st of March. On her passage, she met with the British ship of war Cleopatra, who pressed 20 of the people on board, (as has been mentioned) all of whom are said to be English or Irish, & were without protections, in lieu of which the Cleopatra put on board the Leander a number of Americans, whom they had taken out of what they called American prizes, most of these men were obliged to enter themselves on the enlistment on board the Leander, either by fair or foul means, if they would not volunteer they were pressed---two of them made their escape at Jacmel, by swimming from the Leander, and got on board an American vessel, where they were pursued, but being hid, could not be found by the pursuers, when the Leander's officer said if he should hereafter find the vessel they were hid on board of, that he would press and take on board the Leander, every man except the captain, and would scuttle the vessel.

On the arrival of the Leander at Jacmel, there was the appearance of the greatest secrecy, no one was admitted on board, nor no one, except captain Lewis, was permitted on shore, and he, as soon as he landed, sat off to visit the black emperor of Hayti, at the new city of Dessalines, which is built in the mountains and strongly fortified, it being the determination of the brigands, to burn all the towns on the seaboard, should the French ever attempt to invade the island again, and defend themselves in the mountains to the last.

While admiral Lewis was on his visit to the emperor, the negroes at Jacmel became very uneasy at the great secrecy observed by the Leander, and before his return, sent a formal message to know their business, and made preparations to attack the Leander should their ambassador not be well received—but their messenger meeting a polite reception, an explanation given, their fears and anxiety all subsided and all was quiet. After the return of admiral Lewis from headquarters, Miranda began to prepare by enlisting men, of which he picked up a number of renegadoes, who called themselves Americans; but had sold this, as well as their native country; wishing not to see their creditors again; like serjeant Kite, he listed them all for officers. Having mustered about 250 or 300 of these officers and 2 or 3 small additional vessels, he was to sail from Jacmel on the 26th of March, for Barcelona,* on the Spanish main, near Cumana, where he expected to effect a landing and be joined by a large body of the inhabitants, for which purpose he was preparing a large number of proclamations to be distributed as soon as he can get a footing, or can send ashore on his arrival off the coast. We are told by a person who has seen one of these proclamations, that he invites his countrymen to join his standard, and that he would free them from their tyrannic master, would give them to liberty, &c. &c. We have some hopes of being able to obtain a copy of the proclamation, which if we should accomplish, we will give a translation of it as soon as possible.

* Barcelona lies on the Spanish Main, in lat. 9, near the southern point of land that forms the Gulph of Mexico, is but thinly inhabited, and being about two hundred leagues from St. Domingo, tho' somewhat to windward, may be reached by Miranda and his squadron under admiral Lewis, in fifteen or twenty days from their leaving Jacquemel, provided no accident retards them---therefore we may expect they will arrive there about the 15th of the present month.

In the Charleston Packet from acmel, came two seamen, viz. John Shaw, of New-York, and Wm. Davidson, of R. Island, who were put on board the Leander with ten others, by the British ship of war Cleopatra, captain White, who report that they were held on board the ship, as prisoners, being taken on board vessels captured and sent in for adjudication. The others, viz. Chas. Farrington, Morris Simmens and John Phillips, of Philadelphia; Barnet Cook, Saml. Johnston and Wm. Pride, of Connecticut; John Simpson, of Boston, John Childs and Christopher King, of Rhode-Island; and one, whose name is forgot, are still on board the Leander, where they were hardly treated & every means used to make them enter, which refusing to do, they were kept as prisoners. About the 10th of March, the above made their escape by swimming from the Leander, to a vessel at some distance, from whence they got on shore and took to the woods, being afraid to stay in the town; capt. Lewis applied to the black commander for permission to search the vessels and port for them, but he refused; that when the brig Charleston Packet sailed, and was outside the harbor, captain Abbot generously sent his boat ashore and took them off; that they had not been long stowed away, before the Leander's boat came on board in search of them, not finding them, was obliged to return; but not without threatening to sink the brig if they could be sure the men were on board.

The above men also say, three other men
