41, in lat. 46, long. 51, spoke the Sylvania, Boger, from Nantz, for Charleston ; and on the 13th of April, in the Gulf Stream, fell in with the wreck of the schooner Hope, of Salem, who had lost her foremast, was full of water, with mainmast standing, without any person on board ; she appeared to be about 70 tons burthen, was laden with naval stores, and had several bundles of Carolina reeds on deck ; they took from her some small articles of rigging.

The brig Betsy, Bradford, for this port, was to sail from Rochelle about 15 days after captain Webb.

Same day, ship Anthony Mangin, captain Thomas, from London, from whence she sailed the 26th February, and left there the ship Cornplanter, Gilles, of this port, under seizure ; the ship Elica, of Boston, late under seizure, but cleared, for this port ; and the ship Samaritan, also for this port, time of sailing uncertain. The Dumfries, Beard, and the Protectress, Everit, both for Norfolk, sailed in co. with captain Thomas. On the 11th March, in lat. 40, 54, long. 24, spoke the brig Pallas, captain Phineas Bust, from New-York, for Cadiz, out 32 days all well.

Same day arrived, schooner Betsy, late Tuttle, from St. Jago for this port, now under command and brought in by Thomas Fowler, his mate. We yesterday morning mentioned, that the above schooner was taken by the Redbridge, and that captain Tuttle being taken out of his schr. was carried to New-Providence by the Redbridge. Mr Fowler informs, that the Redbridge having taken out capt. Tuttle & all of his crew, except the mate, cook & a boy, put six others with a lieutenant on board, and ordered them to keep company, but the Redbridge seeing a sail, the lieutenant went on board the R. when she ran the Betsy out of sight, and then Mr. Fowler thought it more prudent to stand for this port, than go to Providence, therefore altered his course and happily got in safe, with the men put on board by the Redbridge, who all say they are pressed men, one of them James Watson, is of North-Carolina, two of them John James and John Gainsbury, are blacks, one of Baltimore, the other of South-Carolina, one a Portuguese, John Taylor and a boy are English.

Same day arrived, the schr Aurora, capt. Gamble, from Cape Francois, who in a rolling sea, after a heavy gale on the 7th of March, in lat. 32, 11, long. 75, was obliged to cut away his fore-mast for the preservation of his vessel—on the 13th, in lat. 33, long. 73, spoke the the schr. Betsy, from Jamaica, for Edenton, N. C. out 43 days, very leaky, both pumps choaked, and in want of provisions—on the 15th, spoke the schr. Dolphin, of Virginia from Havana for Newport, R. FEDERAL GAZETTE.

FRIDAY, APRIL 25.

Our city, in various parts, felt a sensible concussion about 6 o'clock last evening; and a report of some distant explosion was distinctly heard from the north-west quarter by many persons, who were much at a loss to account for it—And shortly after, a cloud of a singular appearance advanced from the same point, exciting still greater curiosity. All doubts, however, were soon arrested by the painful tidings that the valuable Powder-Mills, belonging to Mr. Lorman and Mr. Donnell, about four miles from the city, had blown up.

The loss of property is very considerable —three houses, two of which were the mills, being quite demolished and another much injured. One of the workmen received a contusion on the head from a descending fragment of one of the buildings, of which he died this morning---another is so badly burnt as to leave no hopes of recovery---and a third considerably maimed. How the catastrophe originated, cannot be ascertained.

James Heuston, esq. has been appointed by the president and senate, district judge for the Maryland district, vice James Winchester, esq. deceased—good.

Robert Wright, we understand, is appointed attorney-general of this state, vice Mr. Pinckney---better still.

A proclamation has been issued by the governor of the Behama Islands, permitting the importation of corn, all sorts of grain, pulse, flour, bread, rice, every species of salted provisions, cattle, and live stock of all kinds, and all sorts of lumber, from the United States into the ports of Nassau, Exuma, Turks Island, St. George, and Crooked Island, as well in neutral as British vessels, for, and during the space of three months, to be computed from the 9th day of April, 1806.

From the Philadelphia Gazette.

A gentleman passenger in the ship Anthony Mangin, has favored us with a file of English papers, two days later than those we received by the Alexander, arrived at New-York. From these, though not so late as the advices by the arrival at Baltimore, we make the following extracts :

LONDON, February 27.

The New-York papers which arrived yesterday down to the 26th ult. contain intelligence of a very important nature. It is with the utmost regret we find that the party in America, whose hostility to Great-Britain is avowed, have not only succeeded in exciting a general clamor throughout the United States against the conduct of the British cruizers, but have actually proposed to the legislature a bill of such an extraordinary nature, and containing such unprecedented provisions, that if it should pass, and be acted upon, it must be productive of the most fatal consequences—[alluding to senator Wright's famous bill.] The bill does not define what constitutes a man a citizen of the United States ; it does not state what document shall be considered as a sufficient proof of his claim to that character, nor does it inflict any punishment upon those who shall grant to aliens false certificates to their being American subjects. It would be an insult upon the understanding of our readers to offer any more comments upon this extraordinary measure ; we have, however, too high an opinion of the good sense of the American legislature, to suppose that they can, however inflamed by prejudice, or misled by misrepresentation, finally give their assent to it.

The squadron under the command of rear admiral Thornborough has sailed from Plymouth, in consequence of a report of 4 sail of the line having escaped from Brest.

GIBRALTAR, Jan. 7.

The Spaniards are fitting out four sail of the line at Cadiz, which is all that remains of their fleet in that port, capable of being repaired. They have 8 sail of the line at Carthagena, completely ready for sea. The king of Spain is completely in his dotage, & the Prince of Peace, by whom that kingdom is governed, is devoted to Bonaparte.

January 15.

All our accounts from Madrid state, that Portugal is to be invaded by a Spanish or French army this summer, and that the French ambassador there has informed the Spanish government, in the most explicit manner, that Bonaparte will consent to no peace, in which Portugal being again annexed to Spain does not form one of the articles of the treaty.

Extracts from London papers to the 26th of February.

The small cruizers which have arrived from the French coast, are said to have brought the information, that all the Brest fleet is out. From some letters received from the Mediterranean, it was supposed to be destined for Toulon ; but no French squadron has passed the straits. The southward is said to be the destination of the enemy.

Angereau is receiving daily reinforcements, and the French force from Basle to Holland is, it is said, to be 200,000 strong. So large a force is to be kept on foot in Germany until the north of Germany has been evacuated by foreign troops ; this, we may be sure, is not the real cause ; Bonaparte keeps so large an army in Germany to overawe Prussia ; and Prussia has placed her armies on the war-establishment to resist any insults that may be offered to her or to Saxony and Hesse, which are under her protection. The situation of the continent is far from being tranquil, and the speedy renewal of war will not afford us the least surprise.---The Russians, from Moravia, have passed through Elmberg.

COTTON.---We are informed, that in January, 1806, the stock of cotton in Great-Britain exceeded that of the same period in 1805, from 20 to 30,000 bags. Our informant adds, that the import will not be less from Orleans this year than from 50 to 60,000 bales, and the increase from Carolina and Georgia at least one-third more than in 1805."

Letters from Vienna state, that count Cobentzel solicited leave to resign. He was overwhelmed with the disgrace of late events. A calumny had been circulated against him that his late politics were swayed by gold ; but his friends represent him to have quitted office very poor. Count Colloredo, on resigning, received a very affectionate letter from the emperor.

It is said that when the English minister applied to the court of Berlin to ascertain the safety of our troops in Hanover, baron Hardenberg acquainted him, "that after the unfortunate occurrences in Moravia, the utmost circumspection was indispensible ; that the most valiant armies could not always command the favors of fortune ; that therefore it was not only the interest of Prussia, but also the general interest, to prevent her from being attacked at that moment, when the whole weight of the war would fall upon her, and before any co-operation with other powers could be formed ; that in case her troops should be defeated, the last ray of hope would be extinguished," &c. &c.

These were some of the principal observations contained in the official communication made on that occasion by the Prussian cabinet. It was at the same time signified, "that his Prussian majesty acquainted Bonaparte, that he should consider the occupation of Hanover as a declaration of war, in which case his majesty trusted, that the English troops would act under his generals." Why those troops for whose co-opration he was then anxious, were afterwards compelled to quit the electorate, is one of those political mysteries, the solution of which is to be expected hereafter.

The prayer of the heroic lord Nelson,

The original of which is in the possession of Sir Wm. Scott, in the hand-writing of his lordship ; composed while the enemy's fleets were in sight.

"May the Great God, whom I worship, grant to my country, and for the benefit of Europe, a great and glorious victory ! and may no misconduct, in any one, tarnish it ! and may humanity, after victory, be the predominent feature in the British fleet ! for myself, individually, I commit my life to Him who made me ; and may his blessing light upon my endeavors for serving my country faithfully ! to Him I resign myself, and the just cause which is entrusted to me to defend !

"AMEN—AMEN—AMEN !"

"Victory, October 21, 1805—in sight of the Combined Fleets of France & Spain, distant about ten miles."

This fine composition, so honorable to its heroic author, was written about an hour before the commencement of the battle off Trafalgar.

On Thursday, the iron bridge just erected over the new cut at Bristol, near the Bath road, fell down with a violent crash, & was shivered into thousands of pieces. Two men were killed and many wounded. No cause of the falling of this expensive fabric has yet been discovered.

Prince Dolgorucki.—The following letter from prince Dolgorucki, has been circulated on the continent. It affords a full and authentic explanation of the ruses de guerre which were practised on both sides at Hollabrun. It now appears that even there, the fraud originated with the French, and that it was not, as we were led to believe, an attempt on the part of the confederates to retaliate for the deception practised upon them to preserve the bridge at Vienna :

"BRESZC, February 5.

"Having seen in number fourteen of the Hamburg paper of the present year, a vindication of count Nostitz's conduct at Hollabrunn, I feel it incumbent on me to point out its inaccuracy ; for I cannot with patience behold any attempt to detract from the glory so well earned on that occasion by prince Bagrathion, and the five thousand Russians under his command.

"Count Nostitz, who commanded the Austrians and the advanced posts of the Russian rear-guard, withdrew himself and his troops in the midst of the engagement, in consequence of a message from the French general Sebastiani, informing him that as a separate peace was already concluded between France and Austria, he ought no longer to co-operate with the Russians.

"This separation enabled the French army to take quiet possession of the village of Schongraben, which lay about four hundred paces from their lines, and directly opposite the centre of the Russian position.

"By this movement, the rear-guard of the Russians was placed in the utmost danger, since the French had forty thousand men to bear against five thousand Russians. Regardless, however, of this superiority, and in spite of a summons from the commander in chief of the French forces, prince Bagrathion would listen to no proposals, but, with the unanimous consent of all the Russians under him, declared that every man of them was prepared rather to perish, than to merit the censure of his sovereign by any conduct that might tarnish the honor of his country.

"In order, however, to gain time, the conferences were protracted, with a view to cover a retreat of the army, and a determination to hazard any extremity rather than surrender. In this state things remained during twenty-four hours. Prince Hohenlohe, who commanded the Austrian forces under general Kutusoff, was incensed, as every brave soldier must have been, at the conduct of general Nostitz, and sent an order to colonel Moore to rejoin the Russian rear-guard, and to support its operations. This was executed with the greatest bravery by the Austrians, who did not, however, cover the retreat more effectually than the Russian cavalry. As to general Nostitz, he remained some days at the French head-quarters, without having been present with the rear-guard, or taking any part in this glorious engagement, in which five thousand men were opposed to forty thousand, and proved victorious.

"I appeal on the subject of this battle to the testimony of the enemy himself. But the conduct of general Nostitz is well known to every individual of the armies that witnessed these occurrences.

PETER, PRINCE DOLGORUCKI,
"Adjutant-general to his imperial Russian majesty, inspector of the division of Lithuania, and knight of several Orders."

ROVEREDO, Jan. 30.

The Italian Journals state, that the French will not confine themselves to an expedition against Naples, but they will also attack Sicily. Eighty thousand men will be more than sufficient for both these purposes.

BERLIN, February 11.

M Book, a cabinet messenger, arrived here the day before yesterday from St. Petersburg. He is supposed to be the bearer of very important dispatches.

It has already been stated, that the regiments of the inspections of Berlin, Potzdam, Pomerania and the Marche, remain on the war footing ; and that they have received orders, by estafette, not to sell the horses employed to carry their baggage and tents. There remains in consequence on the war footing, a Prussian army of 100 squadrons and 80 battalions, without including the inspection of Bayreuth, which is still ready to march.

STUTGARD, February 9.

Intelligence has been received, that the numerous Austrian prisoners who are in France, have received permission to return home. Several of the Austrian generals, who were compelled to surrender to the French, are under arrest ; it is said they have brought serious charges against general Mack, whose fate will probably be soon decided upon.

It is said, that the city of Frankford, and all that part of the landgraviate of Darmstadt, situated on the left bank of the Mein, will be added to the dominons of the elector of Baden, and that the landgrave of Darmstadt will be indemnified in Westphalia : that the electoral prince of Baden will reside in future at Manheim ; that he will marry a French princess ; and that upon his accession to the government, he will take the title of king.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 9.

The Sublime Porte has renewed, the treaty of alliance concluded with Russia 8 years ago, for 9 years more. M. D. Italinski, the Russian minister, had for that purpose an extraordinary conference with the grand vizier, on the 30th December. The Russian ships in our harbor celebrated the renewal of this treaty by a discharge of their artillery.
