FEDERAL GAZETTE.

MONDAY, MAY 5.

We are glad to learn, from the advertisement of John Kilty, Esq. inserted for some days past in our paper, that his work on land affairs is likely to be in a state for publication in the month of August. It was to have been expected that an undertaking of such obvious utility, having for its object to illustrate and reduce to system a branch of our local law, of which the importance can only be equalled by the profound obscurity in which it has hitherto been suffered to remain, would be generally countenanced; and accordingly it appears that the subscribers to it are already numerous. We trust, however, that this most valuable digest is destined to find a degree of patronage much more extensive than it can yet have experienced. The respectable author has personal claims which ought to ensure, and will ensure, to his book, a kind and liberal reception; but his book may well rely on its own claims, if we do not wholly misapprehend its plan, and are not greatly misinformed as to its execution. It is impossible to read the prospectus prefixed to the subscription-papers, in the hands of the numerous friends of the author, without perceiving that the plan is eminently calculated to give simplicity, perspicuity and order to a confused mass of law and practice, of which few professional men have much knowledge, and of which the community at large are absolutely ignorant. The usefulness of such an undertaking to lawyers, is extremely manifest; and we understand that they have universally become subscribers. Its usefulness to other classes of the people, though in some instances less apparent, is, notwithstanding, sufficiently obvious. The scanty information which floats about the country, on the intricate subjects embraced by it, is confined to a small number of the profession of the law, to experienced vacancy-hunters, and to gentlemen who have bought their knowledge at an enormous price, as suitors in some or all of our courts of justice. But the entire body of landholders in Maryland, and all who hope to become so, have a deep interest in this branch of the law, as it bears in a peculiar manner upon titles already acquired, or to be acquired; and in a great degree regulates location, the perpetual source and subject of judicial controversy: and it is certain, that nothing could more effectually contribute to general security and confidence, in those respects, than a clear and judicous analysis and display of this complicated and mysterious part of our municipal code. Such, we have no doubt, Mr. Kilty's work will be found to be: His capacity for such an undertaking is unquestionable; and his situation, as register of the land-office, affords him the most ample materials.

INDIA TRADE.

The trade of neutrals—particularly that of the United States—with India, has been made a subject of debate in the British parliament. It has been there stated, that three quarters of the commerce with India is carried on under neutral flags:—That while the merchants of Europe were excluded from the traffic, in 1805, twenty-nine American vessels cleared at Calcutta alone; and that the Americans supplied the West-India colonies with India productions. In this debate, Mr. Secretary Fox said, "Every body knew, that the question of the carrying trade, and the intercourse between the United States of America, and the East and West-Indies, was a subject of a very delicate nature, and that representations thereon had been made from the United States; which were now under the most serious consideration of his majesty's government." Lord Castlereagh, in the same debate, hoped his majesty's ministers would proceed in those important negotiations with the U. S. with all that temper and forbearance which was due to a country whose interest has been so long connected with ours; and at the same time with that firmness and decision which were due to the rights and interest of Great-Britain." It was mentioned, in this debate, that the English East-India company's charter had now only seven years to run.

MIRANDA. We learn by the way of Havanna, that Miranda has made good his landing on the Spanish Main, (where, we know not) and has been joined by 25 hundred colonists. [Boston paper.]

Joseph Bonaparte, in his proclamations to the people of Naples, calls himself governor of the kingdoms of Naples and Sicily.

Democracy has so far lost ground in Rhode-Island, that the democratic governor is not chosen. Laudable re-action.
