stitution and President. At ten o'clock A. M. captain Barron and myself went on the former, when captain Rogers received the latter of commodore Barron relinquishing to him the command of the squadron, &c. He returned with us to the Essex, when we stood in for the town, and within a short distance from the battery hoisted the white flag, which was immediately answered by the same from the bashaw's castle. In half an hour a boat came off with the Spanih consul and an officer of the Bashaw. I informed the Spanish consul, that I had, agreeably to the desire of the bashaw to treat, come for that purpose; but that the propositions which had beeu made through him (the Spanish consul) were totally out of the question, and must be relinquished before I would consent to move one step in the business; and that if I had not the most unequivocal evidence that they would be put a side in toto, I would not go on shore, and told him he had better return with my determination, and come off again the next day, if the bashaw was desirous of having peace on terms which we could admit. He left the ship and the wind during the night blew so heavily on shore that the ships were obliged to stand off, and were not able to come in near the town again until the 29th, when at 9 A. M the Spanish consul came on board bringing the tiscara or commission of the bashaw to treat on his part, on the principal points of accommodation We now removed from the Essex to the Constitution, the bashaw relinquished all pretensions to a payment for peace or any future demand of any nature whatever; but demanded the sum of 130,000 dollars for the ransom of our countrymen, and the delivery of his subjects gratis. To this I objected as strongly as to the first proposition; and after some time spent in discussing the subject, I told the Spanish consul, that, to prevent unnecessary delay and altercation, I would give him in writing my ultimatum, which must be at oncebe decided upon, viz. That there should be an exchange of prisoners man for man, so far as they would go—that the bashaw should send all the Americans in his power on board the squadron now off Tripoli—that his subjects should be brought over from Syracuse, and delivered to him with all convenient speed, and as he had three hundred Americans, more or less, and we one hundred Tripolitains, more or less, I would engage to give him for the balance in his favor, 60,000 dollars—that a treaty of peace should be made upon honorable and mutually beneficial terms. With this he went on shore in the evening; but apparently without any expectation of its being accepted.

On the 30th, at 11 A. M. the Spanish consul came again on board the Constitution; and urged me very strongly to go on shore, where every thing, he said, should be satisfactory arranged; but as I had determined not to deviate from the ground I taken, I declined; stating to him that it now depended on the bashaw to terminate the business by a single word, and that very little time more would be given for that purpose. He requested permission to send a letter on shore, to which he would await an answer; this was granted, and on receiving an answer to his letter, he again urged my going on shore in the strongest terms. This I steadily refused to do. The wind increasing, obliged the ship to stand off, and prevented the Spanish consul from going on shore this night.

At 8 A. M. on the 31st of May, the Spanish counsul went on shore, promising to come of again in a few hours with the bashaw's answer. At noon he came off, & said that the bashaw had at leangth agreed to the sum of sixty thousand dollars, for the balance of the prisoners; but that he could not think of delivering up the Americans until his subjects were ready to be delivered to him, and again urging me to go on shore. I told him, in one word, that the business had been protracted beyond what I conceived to be a reasonable time; but as the weather yesterday would not admit of our countrymen being sent on board, I would allow the bashaw twenty-four hours, from this time, to agree to any propositions in toto, or reject them. He begged for further time, but without effect; and left the ship at 5, P. M.

At 11, A. M. June 1st, our unfortunate countryman, captain Bainbridge, came on board, who had been permitted to go off under the guarantee of the Danish consul, and Sidi Mahamut Dghies, the minister of foreign affairs. He assured me that the Americans would not be delivered up until a treaty of peace should be made with the bashaw, as peace was more his object than the sum he might get for the captives: and as it was our intention to conclude a treaty it would be cruel to let our countrymen languish in captivity merely on the punctilio of negociating the treaty before or after their delivery; as whatever related to them was already understood. I informed him of all which had passed between the Spanish consul and myself; and told him that as the Spanish consul had come on board as the commissioner of the bashaw, with his credentials, which he had delivered to me, I considered the business as now brought nearly to a close, and that a very short time remained for the bashaw to make up his mind. However, as I should make no difference in the terms of the treaty, whether it should be drawn up before or after the delivery of the prisoners, I would enter into an immediate negociation for that purpose, with any proper character whom the bashaw might send on board duly authorized; but I would have nothing more to do with the Spanish consul. But the Americans should be sent on board without waiting the arrival of the Tripoline's from Syracuse. Captain B. left us in the evening and went on shore

NEW-YORK, May 8.

Captain Norris, of the ship Adventure, arrived a few days since, from Batavia, was boarded, in lat. 10, long. 41, 30, by a British ship commanded by captain Little, who came on board the Adventure, with the doctor, boatswain and 6 men, and overhauled the ship's papers. Captain N. requested him to make all haste possible, when capt. Little got up in a great rage, collared capt. Norris, upset the writing-desk, called his men, who came down with cutlasses.—"D——n you (says Little,) go on deck, & I'll be the death of you." Captain N. was dragged on deck, Little followed, threatening him with instant death, with the point of a rusty cutlas to his breast, if he did not immediately get into the boat. Into the boat he was forced. He then placed a centinel over him, and Little returned into the Adventure's cabin, took captain N's trunk and desk, broke open letters, and turned the cabin upside down. After four hours detention, he began to extort every thing from the ship by begging, and as it was useless to deny him, gave him a variety of stores, &c. After 6 hours detention, he returned, and sent on board two men who belonged to the ship George Washington, from the Ise of France, which vessel she had ordered for Liverpool. She had also captured 3 other American vessels, and a Swedish brig from the Isle of France. Such rascally treatment captain Norris says he never before received, and without the least provocation.

Captain Norris was boarded off Bermuda, by the Leander, and off the Isle of France by the Pitt, and treated politely.

We have seen a letter from capt Charles Gorton, of the Ann Ballard, dated St. Domingo, April 9, to his owners, in Portsmouth, Virginia, in which he states, that on the 21st of March, in lat. 22, 8, long 72, 34, he was brought to by the French privateer Jean Estelle, captain Galestony, (an American) and the Servilante, capt. Rogers, who sent their boat to the Ann Ballard, took the captain and crew on board the privateer; but before capt. G. got up the side, this American captain, as he calls himself, struck capt. G. on the head with a speaking trumpet, which was repeated after he got on deck, and was ultimately knocked down by the lieutenant, and his head very much cut. After this and every other species of insult, capt. G. was ordered into the boat, and suffered to return to his vessel; where he found his trunks opened, and all his clothes taken out, as well as those belonging to the seamen. They even robbed the cook of the clothes off his back, who was then dying, and who survived but a few days after. Having done this, a prize master was put on board, and the vessel ordered for Samana Bay, where she arrived on the 26th of March. Here she was again plundered of her sails, main-boom, all the spars, canvas, cordage, &c. Capt Gorton left Samana, on the 2d, and arrived at the city of St. Domingo on the 7th, where he made application for satisfaction, and was in hopes of getting clear.

BY THIS DAY's MAILS.

PHILADELPHIA, May 5.

We understand that on Monday last William Duane, editor of the Aurora, was arrested by order of the mayor, for a libel on the Spanish minister.

By captain Warden we learn, that the brig Tranquebar, capt. ——, of this port, near the island of Sumatra, took fire and was entirely consumed, with all the people, except the supercargo, Mr. Coats of this city, and one other person, who fortunately escaped.

Yesterday arrived brig Mancy, captain Huggins, from Trinidad, which place he left the 3d April and informs us, that it was reported by two vessels from the Spanish Maine, that Miranda with his squadron was arrived and had landed at Margaretta, of which place he had taken possession; that he was joined by 5000 of the inhabitants; that he was proceeding to Carracas, and that the Spaniards were joining him from all quarters. This was the report and as such capt. H gives it; but as Miranda was left at Jaquemel the 24th of March, it is hardly probable that he could have arrived on the Main in time for the news to get to Trinidad on the first of April, which was the time captain H. heard it. The same story is told as being received at Martinico in the hearing of captain Sherman from thence, previous to the 8th of April.

From the above accounts and some others that we have heard it is not improbable, that the insurgents of that country, being well informed of Miranda's movements had flown to arms and taken possession of some posts which gave rise to Miranda's having landed. The several Spaniards whom capt H saw at Trinidad, seemed pleased with the idea of Miranda's landing, and seemed to think he would succeed

Arrived, ships Golden Age, Lincoln, Bristol, 52 days; Camilla, Warden, Batavia and Isle of France, 75, ; brig Nancy, Huggins, Trinidad, 30; Hetty, Bellews, Point Petre, 18; schrs. Same day arrived, ship Hercules, Calvert, from St. Thomas, and 12 days from Turks Island, where he stopped to procure salt, but there having been so much rain, there was none to be procured. The schr. ——, Hall, for this port left Turks Island about the 17th or 18th of last mouth.

C. for Philadelphia, in 4; brig Brothers, Fitch, Baltimore, 14; several vessels from the northward, names not recollected. Sailed in co. with the brig Iris, of Boston, and the next evening was boarded by the British sloop of war, the Hart, and after a short detention was dismissed. The Iris was boarded at the same time, and not dismissed at the time the Hannah Loretta was; and her not being in sight next morning, captain S. supposes she must have been detained, as she was to keep company with the schooner through the voyage.

A few days previous to the H. L. leaving St. Pierres, the ship George, of London, mounting 26 guns and 30 men, loaded with sugar, coffee and cotton, from Demerara, for London, was brought in by a schooner of one four-pounder on a swivel, and 35 men. Her cargo is said to be 300,000 lb. coffee, 200 hhds. sugars and 300 bales of cotton.

Same day, ship Camilla, Warden, Batavia and Isle of France. Left at Batavia, 25th December, only two Eastern vessels. Sailed from thence, ship George, Hamburg, 15th Dec. for Philadelphia, to touch at Cape Good Hope; ship Union, Jacobs, Philad. 15th Dec.; ship Thames, for N. York, early in Nov.; ship Samuel Elam, Champlin, for New-York, after putting back, sailed again 15th December.

No news at the Isle of France. In the Straits of Balla, parted with the ship David, of Boston, bound to Bourbon and Boston.

Off the Cape of Good Hope, spoke a cartel, from thence for Flushing, with Dutch prisoners.

Captain Huggins, of the brig Nancy, left at Trinidad the 3d of April, brig Leopard, Fowler, for New-York, in 8 days; brig Comet, M'Intosh, of and for Portland, in 7 days; brig Planter, for ditto, in 9 days; ship Ann, from New-York, to sail in two weeks, but where bound uncertain; brig Neptune, Story, of New-York, just arrived from Wilmington; and sloop Benjamin, from Charleston, also just arrived.
