

as Saxony is neuter, was probably the whole intention."

Dutch papers to the 3d are received, but do not bring down the military operations further than the 20th ult. At this time, Bonaparte had his headquarters at Halle; and the divisions of Ney, Soult and Murat, having formed a junction, had arrived at Magdeburg, for the purpose of attacking the part of the Prussian army which had already fallen back on that fortress; in which object it was disappointed, the Prussians having previously withdrawn beyond the Oder.

One of the minor Paris papers of the twenty-seventh, states, that the 14th bulletin had arrived at Paris; that the king of Prussia was wounded, and that the emperor Napoleon was at Berlin; but the Monteurs of the 29th do not notice it, we presume it is not true.

A letter from Hamburg, dated October 31, says, "On the 29th instant, his majesty's consort gave orders for the British captains in port, to hold themselves in readiness to depart at 12 hours notice."

FALMOUTH, Nov. 3.
General Crauford arrived here (at Wynne's hotel) this morning, to take the command of the expedition. The regiments composing the force now embarked here are the following, viz:—

The 5th Dragoon guards (or Carabiners) two squadrons, commanded by col. King-ton.

9th Light Dragoons, col. Mahon.
5th Foot, col. Davie.
36th Foot, col. Burne.
45th Foot, col. Guard.
85th Foot, col. Duff.
9th Foot, Major McLeon.

The fleet will sail the moment the wind will admit of their getting out of the Roads. It has been unfavorable for some days, but is now North Westery. Some ammunition is expected from Plymouth, for the ships of war, and some of the transports which is hourly expected. Four 74 gun ships, with the Nereide frigate, and probably another, it is thought, will constitute the naval force of the expedition. In the Spencer, 74 guns, capt. Stopford is the Senior officer of the fleet. Nothing can exceed the satisfaction evinced by all ranks in the appointment of general Crauford to the command of the expedition. It was that officer's intention, on his first arrival here, to personally visit every transport, in order to satisfy himself regarding the comfortable situation of the troops on board; but the unfavourableness of the weather prevented the possibility of his putting this intention in execution. The wants of every vessel, however, he has ordered to be supplied, and the fleet will sail completely with every thing that can render the troops comfortable for a long voyage.

BERLIN, Oct. 24.
To-day, at noon, the French entered this city. They are commanded by general Hulin.

General Davoust has his headquarters at Potsdam. Gen. Hulin who commanded here, was last year French commandant at Vienna.

NUREMBERG, Oct. 23.
According to the last advices, field marshal Mollendorf is dead of his wounds.

DRESDEN, Oct. 26.
Several houses have been burnt at Jena, & the greatest excesses committed there for three days. Weimar, Gera, Naumburg, and several places in the Saxon territory, have suffered much.

All Austrian merchants have been permitted to depart from Leipzig, with their merchandise.

OSNABURG, Oct. 26.
This morning, general Grand-Jean took possession of the principality of Osnaburg, in the name of his majesty the king of Holland. Four thousand Dutch troops are expected to-morrow.

STETTIN, Oct. 24.
We are informed a sharp engagement took place yesterday, near Neustadtberwalde between the corps of prince Hohenlohe and the French. French troops are expected to arrive here to-day or to-morrow.

ALCANTARA, Oct. 21.
An action has taken place near Semplin; a cannonade was heard here to-day.

ALTONA, Oct. 31.
On the 30th inst. the Dukes of Weimar and Brunswick-Oels, passed the Elbe at Sandau, near Hareberg with 30,000 men.

HAMBURG, Oct. 31.
The posts from Prussia and Austria have not yet arrived; but we learn by an extract, that part of Murat's division entered Berlin on the 24th. However disastrous the campaign may have been to Prussia, it is certain that several corps of their army have not been in action, and are now assembled on the other side of the Oder, particularly the corps of prince Hohenlohe, the dukes of Sax-Weimar, and Brunswick-Oels.

Gen. Wartensleben is governor of Magdeburg, and commandant of that fortress, the garrison of which consists of 12,000 men; but the works are said to require a much greater number of men for their defence, as the magazines are not supplied for a siege, apprehensions may be entertained for its safety unless soon relieved.

Devastation and cruelty mark the footsteps of the French whereter they go:—Weimar was not only given up to the plunder of a brutal and ferocious soldiery for two hours, but was afterwards set on fire, as were also Jena, Halle and Naumburg. Jerome Bonaparte, it is said, will accompany the army destined to act in Poland.

BERLIN, October 24.
The emperor Napoleon, will to-morrow be at Sans Souci, and the next day at Berlin.

WESTPHALIA, October 29.
The county of Lingen has been taken possession of, for the king of Holland, not by a military force, but by letter from the college of administration at Munster. All the Prussian eagles and other Prussian arms, have been taken down by general Michaud, and the Prussian uniform no longer to be worn.

Embsen and Minden have likewise been taken possession of by Dutch and French troops.

It is said that marshal Mollendorf and several other generals entreated his Prussian majesty to give orders for attacking the French several days before the battle of the 14th, but in vain. He had however, come to a determination to engage on the 15th, in which he was unfortunately anticipated on the 14th.

MECKLENBURG-STREELITZ, Oct. 28.
The Mark of Brandenburg is now the theatre of war. Prince Hohenlohe's headquarters were at Neustadt on the 25th, and on the 26th the duke of Brunswick Oels, passed the Elbe at Sandau, near Hareberg. We shall now see which of the two armies reach the Oder first, the Prussians or the French.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 31.
Extract of a letter from the City of Washington, to the editor of the True American, dated Dec. 27.

"SIR,
"I have received from a member of congress, the following interesting intelligence:—
"That he had just been informed by the secretary of war, that he had received information of a recent date, from general Wilkinson of an accommodation of all differences taking place on our frontiers, with the Spaniards, the result of which was, the actual return of our troops to the Mississippi, where gen. W. intended to remain, and observe future operations, none of which, however, were apprehended to be hostile. Mr. Burr's project might consequently receive an additional stab towards its annihilation."

The parliament of Great-Britain was dissolved on the 24th of October, and writs for a new election of members issued, returnable on the 15th of December.

The Eastern Mail had not arrived, when this paper was put to press.

Extract of a letter from our Correspondent, dated
WASHINGTON, January 1, 1807.

The following information has just been received by the editor of the Washington Federalist: "By a gentleman just arrived from Frankfort, and who was present when the grand jury examined the charges against Burr—it appeared, from the testimony given, that Mr. Burr was concerned in the purchase of 400,000 acres of land in Louisiana, nearly opposite the Natchez; that the young and enterprising persons, who were to embark with him, were to settle on the land—that each had a musket and was to act as a soldier under Burr, against the Spaniards, provided the executive approved of it; and that Mr. Jefferson was several months ago acquainted with Burr's intention. He further informs that the purchase of provisions to maintain the settlers, for one year, amounted to 40,000 dollars; and that the same sum was expended for agricultural implements."

"Mr. Burr is daily expected here."
"A dispatch this day arrived in great haste, from the Mississippi Territory; but we have not learned the subject of it."
John Wood, late editor of the Western World, has arrived here, for the purpose, it is said, of establishing a paper. What his object may be, however, I know not.

Captain Lewis, and the Indians who came with him on his return from the Pacific, were, it is said, at the president's levee to-day.

A letter received, dated London, Nov. 6th, states that the price of cotton was falling daily.

The following singular article appears in the London Sun, of the 7th Nov.

"General Moreau passed through Hamburg on the 25th Oct.; and we shall not be surprised to see this hero of Hohenlinden opposed to the hero of Marengo, on the banks of the Oder."

The Franklin academy at Poughkeepsie with the books and every other article which it contained, was destroyed by fire on the 19th ultimo.

The ship Smallwood, Kearney, from Cork to this port, has put back to Cork, after being at sea 31 days, in distress; where it is said she will be condemned.

Sir Samuel Hood, K. B. is elected a member of parliament for Westminster, to succeed the hon. Charles Fox, deceased.

From the Theatre of War.
The divisions of Ney, Soult and Murat having formed a junction, had arrived at Magdeburg, to attack that part of the Prussian army, which had fallen back upon that fortress, in which object the French was disappointed, the Prussians having previously withdrawn beyond the Oder.

Part of Murat's division, commanded by general Hulin, entered Berlin on the 24th. Osnaburg and East Friesland, have been both taken possession of by the French, in the name of the king of Holland; and Hanover will share the same fate—even Hamburg is likely to be in the enemy's possession ere long—for we find that such is the alarm there, that remittances to England, had already been made by the merchants of that city, to a considerable amount; & the exchange on London had fallen 2 per cent.

The affrighted inhabitants of Germany are flocking from all quarters to Hamburg and Altona, from whence they are expected to take shipping for England. The duke of Brunswick, the venerable father of the princess of Wales, is among the number of the refugees. Bonaparte having insultingly rejected his proposals, relative to the neutrality of his territory, the wounded veteran has been conveyed on a litter to Altona, where he remained on the first instant.

There has been an unfounded report, that Bonapart had been shot by a student of Halle or Jena.

HAMBURG, Oct. 31.
