Mr. Wrifford,

Late from Boston,

Purposes to teach the ART of WRITING, in this place, by a new and expeditious method.

Persons rising ten or twelve years of age, possessing good common capacities, may acquire a fair and handsome hand, by receiving twenty lessons; one hour of time to each lesson.

The method is well suited for the benefit of young persons fitting for the mercantile line of business; and also for ordinary writers already engaged in the same line, of almost whatever age; likewise for young gentlemen who are either in or destined for the learned professions

Ladies who either have or have not received their education, in other respects, can be attended either at their own dwellings, or elsewhere, as they may choose.

Mr. W. takes up the Art of Writing as a species of drawing, and teaches it by a system of rules, methodically arranged; but as the plan may perhaps be rather novel in this city, it would be difficult, in a notification like this, to point out the peculiar mode of proceeding.

Any person who may think proper to call on Mr. W. at Mr D. Fulton's, sign of the Globe, Baltimore-street, will, it is presumed, be satisfied in those particulars of which they may wish to inquire.
