Notice.
I have seen, in the Federal Gazette, a Notice, signed by Mr. JOHN CROXALL, which I suppose to have been published in one of that gentleman's lunar spells, or he would not have closed his little notice in so short a way. I mean, as usual, to be moderate. I call on the gentleman to prove any attempt on my part to injure him, and particularly to shew reason for supposing that I would collect money due to him, when he knows that I refused, months ago, to receive money for him.
I could wish that the poor old man had not been so much agitated, on being fairly detected in improper conduct, which will soon appear, (with proper vouchers, if necessary,) in my answer to his "Further Notice."
