HE erases all spots out of old pictures, (such as are done in oil colors) either upon canvass, wood or glass; joins them together if broken, so as not to be perceived, where the damage had been. He gives life to the colors, and recovers old pictures in beauty, as if just come from the hands of the painter, without defacing the design, nor even the least stroke of the original artist. He erases spots, occasioned by age, out of engravings and repairs them, (although defaced or even torn) to their former beauty. He cleans and mends glasses and frames, and fixes the first, close together by peculiar art. He cleans silabaster, marble and brass, of various statues—like-wise watch cases ornaments, in a manner that shall appear as if new. He repairs mechanical work. He also gives movements to mills, which for want of water had stopped. HE erases no pay if his performances do not prove satisfactory to his employers. He purchases old torn and damaged pictures, and old pieces of mechanic-art—like-wise broken watches.
