A Fashionable Disease

CURED WITHOUT ANY USE WHATSOEVER OF MERCURY.
NOTWITHSTANDING the many remedies for curing and removing the Venereal disease from the constitution, and without the use of Mercury, which have been frequently pretended, and almost as often proved ineffectual; although the honorable faculty, Docti Medice, have united most generally in declaring no remedy to exist; in their belief, capable of removing the Venereal in all cases without the use of Mercury, which they do not hesitate to pronounce extremely pernicious, and not unrequently making the most desperate ravages on the whole constitution, and rendering the state of health ever afterward wretched and miserable; yet, notwithstanding all these objections heaped together, the writer, who has no other interest in the business than such as every well disposed citizen ought to have, and feel for the happiness and well being of his fellow creatures, does most confidently give assurance, that he is positive that there is another remedy, perfectly mild and easy in its operation, and which will effectually remove the disorder in all cases, and to all intents and purposes, as that Mercury will effect the same, but frequently to the great injury of the person's future health and happiness.

The writer, knowing the disadvantages under which a medicinal specific labors, which makes its appearance (as it were) in Arcano, undertakes to make this important affair known in behalf of the proprietors; and he will neglect no opportunity or justifiable means of making this business generally known as an extensively useful as possible—the old fashionable, mechanical, precise, and lingering mode of proceeding, in similar matters to the contrary, notwithstanding. Therefore, he earnestly requests those who may need assistance in the complaint above alluded to, that they make reasonable application in order to obtain a timely relief—Says a wise and learned gentleman of this country—"Except the king's pox, (to which this is similar and equal) a discovery so important and so useful to mankind, has not been made in phycia during the last century." "It has been more than seventy and seven times tried in America, within two years past, and has never uniformly operated, in all cases, to full satisfaction." The specific, which is a pleasant cordial, speed and used without any change in diet or mode of living, and with the same inattention that a glass of wine is drunk. It is offered, for the first time, for the benefit of the people in this place. Although the particular province of this useful specific is the Venereal, yet, as it effects this point by purifying the blood and cleansing the system, it consequently has great power in removing all those complaints which arise from impurity of the blood. It will extract the mercury from the blood of those who have made too imprudent use of this "potent destroyer of the human frame." Application to be made at the house, standing in the corner of Granby and Queen-streets, on east-side, leading from the Market to the Point, in the morning before noon, and in evening, where a gentleman, competent to the business, will wait on those who may call, with all possible care and tenderness, in behalf of Doctor Henschel, late resident at London, Paris, and last at Rome.

N. B. "He that is wise shall be wise for himself, but he that scorneth, alone shall bear it."
