

With this application, which is specific, a prompt compliance is practicable; but when the request goes to copies of the orders issued in relation to Colonel Barr, to the secretaries of the war & navy departments, it seems to cover a correspondence of many months with such a variety of officers civil and military all over the United States, as would amount to the laying open the whole executive books. I have desired the secretary at war to examine his official communications, and on a view of these we may be able to judge what can and ought to be done towards a compliance with the request. If the defendant alleges that there was any particular order, which, as a cause, produced any particular act on his part, then he must know what that order was, can specify it, and a prompt answer can be given. If the object had been specified, we might then have had some guide for our conjectures as to what part of the executive records might be useful to him. But, with a perfect willingness to do what is right, we are without the indications which may enable us to do it. If the researches of the secretary at war should produce any thing proper for communication and pertinent to any point we can conceive in the defence before the court, it shall be forwarded to you. I salute you with esteem and respect.

TH: JEFFERSON.

George Hay, Esq.

WARSAW, March 16.

The Ambassador of his majesty the emperor of Persia, to his majesty the emperor of the French and king of Italy, has received from Tehran, the account of the brilliant success obtained by the arms of his sovereign.
The Prince, Abbas-Mirza, son of the emperor, and renowned in the East for his bravery, announced to him, under date of the 26th of December last, that prince Mehemmed-Vel-Mirza, one of his brothers, who commands in the Khorassan, has carried his victorious arms over to Oxus, and that he had taken the city of Sirvat, belonging to the Tartars-Usbecks, situated about 5 days journey from Boukara. The governor of this country has sworn obedience to the emperor of Persia.
Kaboul and Candahar are entirely subject to Feth-Ali Schah. They make this day a part of the Persian empire, and many solemn embassies have been sent to the emperor, to assure him of the fidelity of the inhabitants of this country, even to the frontiers of India.
The prince Abbas-Mirza is in the Moghan and Carabagh, at the head of a formidable army, four days' journey from Tiflis. He has taken from his army 40,000 men, to march to Georgia. Ahmed-Ahan, who commanded them, has already taken Churegh and Penbeh, where he found many pieces of artillery. All the Russians who defended those places have been killed or brought prisoners to prince Abbas-Mirza. A great number of Russian deserters arrive every day at the Persian camp. The emperor of Persia, to recompense the brave Ahmed-Khan, has joined to his government that of Erwan. This train of success, obtained at every point of the empire, gives to Persia a new degree of splendor and of power. The Khorassan is no longer exposed to the incursions of the Tartars—the authority of Persia arrives even to the frontiers of the English possessions in India. The Russians are badly situated in Georgia, and are attacked on all sides. The most perfect union exists in all the provinces of the empire, and Persia can bring new forces against her enemies.
The Russians have made propositions of accommodation. Feth-Ali Schah has refused them. He has stopped all kinds of commercial relations, and all communication with Russia; and has answered, that as long as the grand emperor, his friend and ally, shall carry on war against the Russians, they ought not to hope for peace, nor a cessation of arms from Persia.
The emperor of Russia left Memel on the 5th of April, for his army of reserve in Lithuania. His Prussian majesty followed him, having in his suite the baron Hardenberg. The English general Hutchinson has also left Memel for Lithuania.
The heavy artillery destined for the siege of Danzig, arrived before that place on the 18th of April.
Another levy of 15,000 men is making in Poland to reinforce the national army.

PARIS, April 16.

Extract of a letter from Mr. De Lamarre, vice consul at Warsaw, to his excellency the minister for foreign affairs.
RURGAUEN, Feb. 26.
The Turks have in several skirmishes gained advantages more or less considerable over the Russians.
On the 2d January, the Russian-aga, Ayan of Silistria, attacked the Puliyan-Aga, Galatz, killed 300 of them and made 200 prisoners, which were sent to Mustapha Pacha, with some bags of heads and ears.
On the 20th of the same month, 1500 Russians and Wallachians, having advanced from Bucharest and Zimizza, a village in Wallachia, in front of Sistrow, the Turks killed or took 200 prisoners, and put the rest to flight.
A more important engagement took place on the 29th, near Ismail, between Pechivan-Aga and the Russians. The latter lost 800 men killed, 500 prisoners, 3 pieces of cannon and several standards of colors. Pechivan-Aga has 15000 excellent cavalry under his command, the half of whom consists of most determined Tartars.
On the 9th February, another partial action took place near village of Piatra, some leagues beyond Bucharest. The Russians had 600 men killed, and lost 600 prisoners, besides a piece of cannon and 800 horses.
Mustapha Pacha's army amounts to 60,000 men. He gives pardon to no rajah, who is in the ranks of the Russian army. He treats his prisoners well.
It appears certain that disensions have broken out at Bucharest, between Yusplanti, Michelon and the Boyards. The Russians have almost all left the town, in order, it is thought, to recross the Dniester. They are at most to the number of 12 or 15,000 men.
Prince Suzzo, who has arrived here within these few days, has sent his spatar to Crajove, in lower Wallachia, in order to assemble the faithful Boyards around him, and arm the inhabitants; it will then be seen that not a single Boyard will remain with Yusplanti.
I am, &c. LAMARRE.

FEDERAL GAZETTE.

SATURDAY, JUNE 20.

By the attention of our correspondent at Richmond, we are enabled to furnish our readers with the latest proceedings against Burr. The importance of this trial appears greater every day, and the trial of Wilkinson is already much talked of. We hope for a speedy and legal adjustment of all the cases; but will yet denounce none concerned. Let every man be tried by Law and Evidence.

By the John and Joseph, capt. Mattingly, from Antwerp, we have received the latest intelligence that has arrived from Europe, being several days later than the N. York and Philadelphia arrivals. The Paris papers (contrary to the Aurora's prediction) contain no account of a general battle. The most serious operations have occurred in Pomerania, between the French under Mortier, and the Swedes under Essen, after which, as appears by the armistice translated for the Federal Gazette, both armies were willing for a cessation. The general Essen established his head quarters at Stralsund, 20th April.
The several late arrivals announce—
Victory by the British at Alexandria; and failure in their attempts at Constantinople.
Victory by the Persians and Turks in Asia. Advantage gained by the Russian Grand army, 1st. by powerful reinforcements, with the king of Prussia at their head; 2d, by the right wing of the French falling back 50 miles, from its advanced position towards Grodno; which manoeuvre, they say, was for concentration, preparatory to the expected decisive battle.

ARMISTICE
Between the French and Swedish Armies.
The undersigned, his excellency marshal Mortier, &c. on the one part, and his excellency baron Essen, commander in chief of the Swedish troops, on the other, have agreed to the following:
Art. 1. There shall be a suspension of arms between the troops of his majesty of the emperor of the French and king of Italy, and those of his majesty the king of Sweden.
2. The Swedish troops shall give up the islands of Usedom and Wollin to French garrisons, who shall take possession on the 20th of April.
3. The Peene and the Trebel shall be the line of demarcation between the two armies. The French shall occupy a post beyond the Peene and behind Anklam.
4. During the armistice, his excellency baron Essen engages not to furnish, directly or indirectly, any succour whatever to the cities of Colberg and Danzig, nor to the troops of any power at war with France or her allies.
5. No debarkation of troops of any power at war with France, shall be permitted at Stralsund, in Swedish Pomerania, or in the island of Rugen, during the present armistice. If, however, any troops should land, contrary to the orders of his exc. baron Essen, he engages to prevent all hostility on their part.
6. Hostilities shall not recommence until after previous notice of ten days.
7. All soldiers made prisoners after the signing of the present armistice, shall be mutually returned.
Done at Schlakow, 18th April, 1807—
8. P. M. ED. MORTIER. (Signed) BARON D'ESSEN.

The Duke of Montrose Packet, from N. York, arrived at Falmouth on the 16th of April.
The Alkland Packet from Lisbon arrived at Falmouth on the 21st of April, and brought the mails per the Diana Packet, from N. York, and Halifax, she having put into Oporto in distress.
Arrived at Falmouth April 14, the Diana frigate, having detained, and brought in with her, 3 American vessels. Also arrived, the American brig George, White, 25 days from Charleston, for orders.

Captain Patterson, arrived at Boston on Saturday last, from Sardinia, was boarded by a few leaguers from Gibraltar, by an English armed brig, having on board dispatches from Sicily for the English government. The officer who came on board captain Patterson, informed that these dispatches contained an official account of the capture of Alexandria, by sir Sidney Smith, who had been joined in the expedition by a large body of Arabs. Two French frigates and a corvette were also captured near the place by the squadron, attached to the command of this gallant officer.

A Contributor to the Baltimore General Dispensary, who has been long acquainted with the merits of Dr. Williamson, begs leave to recommend him as a suitable character, for one of the attending Physicians; at the same time he feels a degree of pleasure in thus publicly stating, that if the most arduous application to acquire medical information, (in which the Faculty pronounce him to be very competent,) if the most unwearied attention to the duties of his profession, or if an orderly life and moral deportment are recommendations worthy the attention of the Contributors, then the writer feels confident that Dr. Williamson, has a fair claim to their suffrages.

A considerable degree of public spirit has been exhibited, in support of the institution, and it would be a subject of serious regret if any want of private virtue in this department should occasion a misapplication of its Charities. Those acquainted with the gentleman above named, know that his character is a sufficient guarantee for the performance of his duty.
