A Farm Cow, I live at the old farm still, Ten miles from Baltimore, and one from Seekamp's mill; There is at my place now, A small black and white Stray Cow; Which by good judges I am told, She is about four years old; Branded on the upper side of each horn, but does not plainly appear; She has no other mark but a piece cut off the right ear.

For the description I think I am not to blame, About the last of August to my place she came; And as the expense daily enlarges, I wish the owner to take the cow, and pay the charges. JOSHUA OWINGS, d4t
