QUEBECK, September 28.
In the criminal court of the king's bench, for the district of Quebeck, now holding in this city were tried last week, John Moss and Charles Richmond, two Americans, for endeavouring to seduce two sergeants of the 49th regiment from their allegiance and to desert. They were found guilty, and immediately after, sentenced to stand in the pillory from 12 to 1 o'clock on Saturday the 26th instant, and to six months imprisonment. The former part of the sentence was accordingly carried into execution on the day fixed.—The criminals were surrounded by a great crowd of spectators civil and military; who behaved in the most peaceable and orderly manner. On the former leaving the pillory one of them thanked the audience for not throwing at them, when a soldier called out, "say then God save the king," which the American repeated. The soldier added, "and God bless the queen," which the former also repeated. As to orderly conduct in the spectators, it is ever the case here on such occasions, because we know of no such thing as a mob in this country. Hence the punishment of the pillory is always confined to what the law means it to be, public exposure.

It is currently reported that the agents of the general government have bought up all the Canavass in this city. Should this report be found correct, its truth, and the president's late proclamation, will justify an opinion, that the Federal government apprehends a war. [Pret.]
Speaking of the county election, the Aurora, sagaciously observes, that "the majority in favor of the democratic ticket, was not as great as it has been at times; but that it was greater than it had been at others." This observation reminds us of the description of a lost cow—"She has a tail not so long as some cows, but longer than others." [Ibid.]

SAVANNAH, Oct. 9.
Extract of a letter from a house of the first respectability in Liverpool, to their correspondent in this city, dated August 11.
"From the best information we have been able to obtain, a war seems likely to occur. It is not the late affair of the frigates, which is alleged to be the ground of difference, but some points in the treaty under discussion between the countries, which we understand cannot be agreed on—it appears to us the present ministry will make no concessions beyond what were made by their predecessors, and which were not deemed sufficient on your side."

FEDERAL GAZETTE.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 26.

BURR'S CONSPIRACY.
The great exertions of some of the performers at Richmond, in what the Aurora calls "the farce," may be supposed to have produced a high fever. The Virginia Gazette contains several pieces which seem to have been produced by much warmth; among them is an advertisement signed "S. Swartwout," and addressed to Gen. Wilkinson, containing this paragraph—
"Having failed in different attempts, to procure an interview with you, such as no gentleman of honor could refuse, I have only to pronounce and publish you to the world as a COWARD & POLTROON."

From the Richmond Enquirer of the 23d. Latest Proceedings.
After the delivery of the opinion of the court, on Tuesday, the chief justice observed, that he had not specified (in that opinion) the particular district to which the prisoners were to be committed. He thought it best that there should be only one trial for them: but if Burr was sent to Kentucky, Blennerhassett would not, because he had provided no means for the expedition but in the district of Ohio.
Mr. Hay then moved for their commitment to Ohio, which was ordered.
Mr. Wickham then moved for an attachment against Mr. Benjamin Hawkins, an Indian agent, for detaining Dr. Cummings, a witness in this prosecution, and breaking open certain papers in his care belonging to Mr. Blennerhassett one of the accused: a rule ordered.

Messrs. Burr and Blennerhassett were admitted to bail, in the sum of 3,000 dollars each. Luther Martin and Dr. Cummings, securities for A. Burr: Dr. Cummings and Israel Smith, for H. Blennerhassett.
The court then adjourned till their court in course.

NEUTRALITY.
The British have commenced the capture of Danish vessels in the West Indies. The two nations appear to be completely at war—and there remains now no neutral of any commercial enterprise, but the United States. Great as has been the prosperity of this country, it must now be increased if our rulers preserve peace. Nearly the whole trade of the world must fall into our hands. As the Danish islands will be captured, Denmark must hereafter be furnished with West-India produce through the United States and Danes will also be unable to import from the East Indies, the articles from thence which they have been in the habit of consuming.
If the Russian ports are occluded against the British—the latter will be obliged, during our neutrality, to import their supplies from the north of Europe in American vessels, and some articles, which they have heretofore received partly from the Baltic ports, they would hereafter be necessitated to obtain exclusively from America. The demand for naval stores, timber, flour and pot ashes, we should presume, would be greatly augmented at the ports in Great-Britain. [Boston Palladium.]

Our affairs with England.—Great complaints have been made, and with great justice, of the insupportable secrecy of the government in regard to our relations with Great-Britain. Notwithstanding the millions of property at hazard, and notwithstanding the perplexing embarrassments which necessarily result from the present equivocal state of things, by which every one is deterred from entering into any extensive commercial speculations, the merchants have not been able to obtain so much as a hint from the government as to the probable result of the pending negotiations, nor any intimation of the course of conduct which it would be prudent for them to adopt. This system of secrecy, however, is not without exceptions. Though no information is given to those most deeply interested in receiving it, to those whom the president loves he communicates. Within the present month of October he has written to THOMAS PAINÉ at New-York, that nothing decisive has occurred on the subject of our affairs with England; but that all little circumstances which have come to the knowledge of the government were unfavorable to their wishes for peace.

Our readers may rely upon the authenticity of this statement. It comes to us thro' such a channel that we cannot be deceived; and we challenge a contradiction. [U. S. Gazette.]

Methodists. The sixty-fourth annual conference of the society of Methodists, commenced at Liverpool, in England, on the 27th of July, and terminated on the 11th of August. It appears from the returns, that an increase of 3492 members has been made to the society within the united kingdoms in the course of the last year. Thirty preachers have this year been admitted on trial, and upwards of fifty new chapels are appointed to be built. The Methodist missionaries in Wales, and amongst the Catholics in Ireland, are said to have been very successful. [London Paper.]
