By JAMES BOSWELL, Esq.

The Third Volume, which will complete the work, will be pu hished in about 3 weeks, when the price will be raised.

Extract from the advertisiment prefixed to the 4th London edition, of EDN MALONE
"Of a work which has been before the public for thirteen year's with increasing appro-bation, and of which near four thousand copies have been dispersed, it is not necessary to say more; yet I cannot refrain from adding, that highly as it is now estimated, it will, I am confident, be still more valued by posterity a century hence, when all the actors in the scene shall be numbered with the dead; when the excellent and extraordinary man hose wit and wisdom are here recorded, shall be viewed at a still greater distance, and the viewed at a still greater distance; and the instruction and entertainment they afford, will all at once produce reverental gratitude, admiration and delight."

The following engint Apostrophe is from the pen of Richard Cumberland, e.q. "Alas! I am not fit to paint his character; nor is there need of it; Etiam mortuus loquite; every man who can buy a book, he bought a Bostue!!; Johnson is known to all the reading world?"

Church]

MANCHESTER, May 16, 187. MANCHESTER, May 10, 107.

My very Dear Sir,

Though laboring under much bodily indisposition, which renders the use of my pan burdensome, I cannot forego the oppertunity of inclosing a few lines to you, in the packet of books which our occiety here with send you because I wish to acknowledge, thankfully, the receipt of your two lass ravors, the first bearing date, June 1st, 18 6, the second Nov. 18, 1806. You must however excuse my re-18, 1806. You must however excuse my replying to the questions contained in them, until I acquire more strength, when, if ever the time arrives, I shall be happy to resume my pen, and give you the real sentiments of my mind. You will perceive, from the contents of the packet, that I have been again using the contents of the packet, that I have been again using the strength of annexager in the lying to the weapons of concroversy, in reclying to the remarks of the " Christian Observer, the " Plain Answers," &c. Of this last work you expressed a wish to have fifty copies sent you, but on mentioning the business to our society they thought it would be best to send you 25 copies of the "Picin Answers," and 25 of the answer to the Christian Observer. From the Copy of our report, which is also inclosed in the packet, you will perceive what liberty we have taken with your letters and how we have endeavored to give circulation to the important information which they contain. This, I trust, will be a motive with you for continuing your interesting communications

It will give you pleasure to hear that the new doctrines are making their way, gradually, in this country, through all orders and ranks of people, and this, I trust not only by an illumination of the understanding through the knowledge of the truth, but by the more efficacious purification of the will and life from all defiled affections, through the influence of a heavenly love and charity. We already rackon up between thirty and forty of the regular clergy, who have become devout readers

You have perhaps been informed of the general conference of the ministers of the New Church, which was held at London last week: Nothing has yet come down to the soshortly published.

I have now exhausted all my strength, and must there ore conclude with my best prayers for yourself and the society over which you preside, that you may be enriched with every blessing from the Father of mercies, & attain unto all the peace of the New Jerusalem. In the spirit of this prayer, I remain, dear Sir, more than words can express, your affectionate triend and brother.
